COAL POLICE HELD BY CORONER

Today

A Mistaken Grand Duke.
Happy Mule.
The Reticulated Python.
Optimistic Wall Street.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

GRAND DUKE CYRIL VLADIMIROVITCH, head of the Romanoff family, and luckily for him outside of Russia, thinks he will be czar. He is mistaken, but his statement that he would keep the present Bolshevik system of government, extending it a "logical, constructive phase," is enlightening.

RELATIONS of the czar apparently have discovered that Bolshevism, giving the land instead of blows to the peasants, and education insead of ignorance to the masses of Russia, interests Russians.

JUST now Russia is more interested in the question, "What happened to Trotzky?" than in any visionary grand duke's plans. Whether Trotzky has been "suppressed" or what has happened to him nobody knows.

It is dangerous for a deposed revolutionary leader to disagree with those in power.

"HONEST Ben," a mule, having worked many years for the City of Atlanta, now old and feeble, was to be slaughtered and fed to the lions in the zoo.

Atlanta's kind-hearted Mayor, Ragsdale, will buy the mule, and pension him.

A KIND thought. Many an old man that cannot be fed to the lions, because tender-hearted laws forbid it, while they don't forbid old men and women to worry themselves to death, might almost wish they were deserving mules.

"DE GUSTIBUS NON EST DISPUTANDUM," which means "there is no use quarreling with another man's taste."

A young Chicagoan, formerly a reporter at $18 a week, suddenly heir to a fortune of $1,000 a day, has decided how to spend his money.

He will go to Borneo, hunting for a "perfect specimen of the reticulated python," biggest reptile known to man. He takes a scientific expedition with him, and his time will not be wasted.

BUT how many things could other young men think of if they had $1,000 a day, leaving the reticulated python to his own devices?

ANOTHER week opening finds Wall Street refusing to be scared to death. Speculators are like "old dog Tray, ever faithful." Grief cannot drive them away.

Jack up the interest rate, and still they say, "I think stocks are going to be worth more, and so I am going to buy them." The prices lifted up their little heads as soon as the market opened, and kept them up.

ONE comforting fact for gentlemen that speculate in stocks, paying 10, 12 and more per cent for money. Federal Reserve Bank in 1928 made a net profit of $64,053,000 or $21,000,000 more than in 1927. It seems only reasonable that the Federal Reserve Bank efficient in putting up interest rates, should get a good share of the profit.

CLARENCE DARROW, able lawyer, says the crime wave is due to "the curb on liberty"

Lack of liberty may distress some, not many. Bootlegging, turning over to criminals hundreds of millions formerly collected by the government on sales of alcoholic drink, makes crime profitable. And that's what accounts for the crime wave. A man that once, with difficulty, earned $5 a day, now earns $500 or $5,000 a day, easily, if willing to take a risk.

DR. OSBALDESTON, veteran of the Crimean War, nearly 100 years old, decided that life wasn't worth while and killed himself.

As a preliminary, the old man went shopping for a cheap funeral. He had to spend only $100, was willing to accept a coffin of plain boards, but nobody would bury him for so little.

WHEN everything else has been investigated, it might be worth while to investigate the high cost of dying.

MANY a widow finds herself poor and in debt after paying for a husband's funeral. Thinking it a disgrace to question prices, where the loved one is concerned, women often pay $600 for a coffin that cost the undertaker $60. And they hire long strings of automobiles that the corpse does not need.

MANY women are in the British Parliament. One hundred more of them will run for Parliament presently, seven of them with titles of nobility. Here we only have four women in Congress, able women all four, but not enough.

PLEASANT news is the announced discovery of potash beds in Texas and New Mexico.

The beds, said to equal in quality German potash deposits, cover 25,000 square miles.

Let us hope it will be possible to let farmers have some of that fertilizing material at a fair profit to those that dig it.

PHYSICIAN ACCUSES LYSTEROF TORTURE

John Borkoski, Tyre miner, was beaten to death by three coal and iron policemen, a coroner's jury decided today in recommending the trio held for the grand jury on a charge of murder.

The jury's action followed graphic testimony by Dr. J. M. Patterson, Pittsburgh Coal Company physician located at Imperial.

DESCRIBES TORTURE

Doctor Patterson told a story of revolting brutality which he charged the coal police inflicted upon Borkoski as he lay helpless on the barracks' floor at Imperial.

Borkoski died in the Sewickley Valley Hospital February 10 of injuries which county detectives alleged had been inflicted by Lieut. W. J. Lyster and Privates Harold Watts and Frank Slapakis, then coal and iron police in employ of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, but whose commissions have since been revoked by Gov. John S. Fisher.

A demonstration of approval from the audience, manifestly hostile tot he defendants, greeted the verdict which held Lyster, Watts and Slapakis for grand jury consideration.

INQUIRY RECOMMENDED

The coroner's jury recommended that "as those held are coal and iron police, a complete investigation be made of the conditions governing the coal and iron police system."

The accused men were recommitted to jail without the privilege

LINDY GOES TO MEET MOTHER

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—There was a new combination of "We," Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and a revenue cutter, when the famous flier went down the bay today to meet his mother, returning from Europe on the Dollar Liner President Wilson.

Virtually every clerk in the offices housed in the building found some excuse to go into the barge office where "Lindy" was sitting on a desk with his long legs hanging over the side, awaiting a cutter pass.

He refused requests for autographs and in reply to queries about his recently announced engagement to Miss Anne Morrow, daughter of Dwight W. Morrow, United States ambassador to Mexico, he had only one reply:

"Ask me another."

Acosta Seeks Right To Resume Flying

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Bert Acosta, pilot in many historic aerial flights, including that of Commander Byrd to Paris, came to the capital today to ask the government to let him fly again. Acosta has been on the ground for some time. His license was taken up after he had flown low over Hackensack, N. J., some months ago.

FANNIE HURST

FANNIE HURST HERE, DECRIES MINE KILLING

"The coal industry as it operates in the Pittsburgh district is a social sore that is festering," declared Fannie Hurst, who was in Pittsburgh today at the coroner's inquest into the death of John Borkoski, Tyre coal miner.

"I thought that public opinion was aroused a year ago and that something was going to be done about the terrible conditions in the coal industry. All that has happened is that the operators have put court plaster on the sore, when what is needed is the best surgeon in the world. This coroner's inquest of the Borkoski murder is just one of the phases of a terribly dangerous condition for the safety of America."

Miss Hurst, who investigated strike conditions here a year ago, came to address a meeting tonight at the Y. M. & W. H. A., Bellefield avenue, filling out part of a lecture tour she was forced to cancel two years ago.

It was the opinion in the East from encouraging newspaper reports, she said, that the coal strike had been amicably settled.

"I am convinced however from what I have been told of the brutal murder of this farmer-coal miner that there has been no change for the better in the attitude of the operators of the coal industry toward the miners.

"It will be said that this murder occurred during a drunken brawl and that this father of several children is not entitled to any particular sympathy because he was one of the drinkers. But the alcoholic intoxication in this case appears to me to have simply added to the drunkenness of power to result in the murder."

Smith and Party Go to Palm Beach

PARENTS JOYOUS AS PIN BABY GULPED IS REMOVED

Only 22 days old, Betty Lou Francis smiles contentedly in a crib in the Presbyterian Hospital, not understanding why her mother and father were so joyous today.

She won't understand for several years, until Mrs. Frederick Francis, the mother, tells her this story:

"Betty, when you were two weeks old you swallowed an open safety pin. That's why we were worried. We took you from one hospital to another. Then in the Presbyterian Hospital a woman doctor removed the pin from your stomach."

Betty was rapidly recovering today after an operation by Dr. Ellen G. Patterson. During the seven days she was in serious condition with the pin in her stomach, she gave no indication of suffering pain.

MELLETT KILLER ESCAPES

GIRL FOUND IN KIDNAP HUNT

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 19.—Mary Jane Curci, 17, 417 Card avenue, Wilmerding, student at Pittsburgh Academy, missing from her home since last Tuesday and said by the authorities to have been kidnaped, was found last night through the efforts of New Castle and Pittsburgh authorities, at Struthers, O.

Two of three men accused of having taken her there, Walter Patterson and Joe Graves, of Hardwick and Yatesboro, have entered pleas to the charge of violating the motor laws of the state relative to the use of a driver's license. They are in jail here.

As soon as these charges can be adjusted, they will be taken to Pittsburgh to answer for their part in the alleged abduction of the Curci girl. There is a third man in the case, the authorities here state.

Detectives Daley and Tortorelli, of Pittsburgh, arrived here Monday afternoon and questioned Patterson and Graves with the assistance of Detective C. G. Logan. Graves it is said, agreed to go to Struthers and show where he and the other men had left the girl. This was done and the girl was found and taken home. She had her school books with her when apprehended in Struthers.

Manvilles Likely To Be Reconciled

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Young Thomas Manville, son of the late asbestos king, and his estranged wife, Mrs. Lois Arline Manville, Kansas girl, are going to patch up their difficulties, New York learned today. Both admitted that a reconciliation was imminent. Mrs. Manville, who at one time worked as stenographer and secretary for her late father-in-law, Thomas Franklin Manville, left her husband on November 24, 1926.

Open Gas Jet Kills 11 in Paris Cold Wave

PARIS, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Escaping gas took a toll of 11 lives in a lodging house here today.

The bodies of the victims, all men, were discovered by a watchman at 7 o'clock this morning. All the windows in the room where the men were sleeping were tightly closed to keep out the bitter cold.

A gas jet was found partly open.

Black Takes Air On Hop to Naples

Kidnap Rescue Appeal Seen As Hoax

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Belief that a frantic telephone appeal to state police from a woman to rescue her from kidnapers was a hoax led state police to drop their investigation of the case today.

A woman who called the local state police barracks last night said she was Mrs. Floyd Schaefref, of Mauch Chunk, and was being held by kidnapers in a house at Highland Park, Salisbury Township. The connection was broken.

It was learned that a Mrs. Floyd Schaeffer resided at Mauch Chunk but was not at home. State police said relatives at her home were not concerned about her whereabouts.

HUSBAND, WHO 'STILL LOVES,' DIVORCED

A matrimonial triangle in which the husband professed his love for his wife while admitting an affair with another woman, who was declared the mother of his child, was revealed in Common Pleas Court today when Judge Frank P. Patterson granted a divorce to Mrs. Marian S. Freeman Davis, 32, of 6410 Bartlett street, Squirrel Hill.

The husband, H. Ralph Davis, formerly with the immigration and educational department of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, did not contest the suit.

LETTER TELLS OF LOVE

"I do love you and always shall—I don't deserve your forgiveness and can't ask it," Davis' letter, introduced in the testimony, read.

It contained many endearing passages and concluded with:

"My future is yours to dispose of. I can't even suggest your course—but, oh, lover, I do, I do love you. I fear your reply, but I await it."

The Davises were married December 31, 1916.

VISIT VEILED TROUBLE

Last summer Davis went to Philadelphia. His wife went to Milwaukee to visit her mother. When she returned to Pittsburgh, late in September, Mrs. Davis testified, she learned of "the other woman," that Davis had taken her to Philadelphia, and that the woman had become a mother there.

Hattie Israel, of 6410 Bartlett street, an aunt of Mrs. Davis, testified that she confronted the correspondent with the birth certificate of the child.

"She admitted that the child was hers and that Davis was the father," Miss Israel testified.

REED HITS DRASTIC RUM BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Taking the floor in debate early this afternoon, Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh, delivered a vigorous speech in opposition to the original Jones bill, providing severe penalties for prohibition offenders.

Unless some amendment is adopted modifying the penalties to which casual and first offenders are subject, Reed declared, he would vote against the bill sponsored by Senator Wesley L. Jones, Republican dry of Washington. Such an amendment as the Pittsburgh Senator urged now is pending before the chamber.

Reed told his colleagues that "certainty of punishment" is far more effective in commanding obedience to any law than "severity of punishment."

"Now that we have launched on the prohibition experiment," he asserted, "we owe it to the Constitution to give it a fair trial. Yet I doubt the wisdom of the process of seeking obedience to the law by increasing penalties against violators.

"If we make punishment more certain we will bring about respect which will not be forthcoming otherwise."

Reed said bootleggers and rum runneers have no fear of fines, since it failed to make them lose cast with their associates or standing in the community.

Stimson Will Leave Philippines Saturday

MANILA, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Gov. Gen. Stimson has made reservations on the Steamer President Pierce, which leaves here for the United States, February 23, it was learned today. Although he declines to discuss it, Stimson is believed scheduled to become a member of the Hoover cabinet. He would not comment on the invitation of Premier Tanaka, of Japan, who asked Stimson to dine with him March 4, while en route to the United States. Stimson previously had announced that he would decline all social engagements.

$2,427,514 DRY ITEM DRAFTED BY COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—President Coolidge has drawn up for submission to Congress a supplemental budget estimate recommending that an additional $2,427,514 be appropriated for prohibition enforcement in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930.

It was explained at the White House that assurance had been given that proponents of the $24,000,000 amendment for prohibition enforcement, which was attached to the first deficiency bill, would be satisfied with the sum recommended by Mr. Coolidge.

The item of $24,000,000 for dry law enforcement was placed in the deficiency appropriation bill at the instance of Senator Harris (Dem.), Georgia. The House declined to accept it and the bill has been tied up.

Recently the Treasury informed the House Appropriations Committee that it could use $2,500,000 more immediately to strengthen enforcement by the prohibition and customs services.

Walker, of New York City, was on a fishing trip somewhere in the Gulf of Mexico today aboard the yacht "Harmony," after outwitting an unofficial welcome committee here last night by arriving ahead of schedule. 4 OTHERS FLEE OHIO PRISON

BULLETIN.

MARIETTA, O., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Washington County authorities and Marietta police were summoned to Lowell, 10 miles north of here, today after Sheriff C. B. Henry, of Morgan County, reported that W. W. Young, one of the prisoners, who early today escaped the state prison at Columbus, and another man, had been located there. Sheriff Henry said one of two men had been positively identified as Young and that he and his officers were closing in from the rear.

International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 19.—Five convicts, including Patrick Eugene (Pat) McDermott, who was serving a life term for the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton (O.) News, escaped from the Ohio State Penitentiary early today, sawing their way out of their cells.

The delivery was made from the third tier of the new cell block. Mattress material was used to make the ladder the prisoners used in descending to the ground.

None of the guards on duty in the cell house at the time of the escape were aware that the men had gone over "the wall."

OUTSIDE AID

Outside assistance aided the escape, tracks in the snow indicated.

McDermott, "trigger man" in the Mellett murder, was sentenced to life on Christmas Eve, 1926, after a trial which lasted several weeks.

He was turned over to Ohio authorities by his two brothers at Twin Rocks, two miles from his home in Nanty-Glo, Pa., in October, 1926. He had successfully evaded a nation-wide man hunt for several months.

Tom and Bernard McDermott, the brothers, accompanied Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, to "Pat's" hideout. It was believed at that time that McDermott had been in hiding at Twin Rocks for weeks.

FLEE IN SNOWSTORM

Seven other men in the three cells refused to escape. The five prisoners fled into a blinding snowstorm.

When Mrs. Kart awoke this morning she discovered that her husband's bed had not been disturbed. Becoming suspicious she searched the house and found the body.

MAN, WIFE HELD IN SALE OF LIQUOR TO BOY, 14

Walter Jannas and his wife Bessie, of 57 Steuben street, were held for court charged with violation of the Snyder act, and their son, Walter, 15, was committed to Juvenile Court after a 14-year-old school boy testified in Morals Court today that he had bought moonshine in their place.

Michael Hutnick, of 1769 West Carson street, a pupil in Thaddeus Stevens School, testified he had bought liquor several times at Jannas' home, paying 50 cents a half pint. He told them each time he wanted it for his "sick father," he said.

The Hutnick lad was found lying on the sidewalk near his home intoxicated last Friday, police testified, and was removed to South Side Hospital. After much persuasion he told where he had bought the moonshine. A raid on Jannas' place followed yesterday.

Walter Jannas testified he had sold Hutnick liquor because he thought it was for the "sick father."

PRE-WAR WHISKY USE FOR MEDICINE DECREASING

JESSE BROWN PLEADS NO DEFENSE

Jesse R. Brown, brother of Guy W. Brown, also a vice president of the Fayette City National Bank, at the time alleged misappropriation of funds wrecked the bank, entered a plea of no defense to three charges of misapplication of bank funds at noon today in United States Court before Judge R. M. Gibson.

The charges involve a benevolent and home mission fund of the Redstone Presbytery, Fayette County, aggregating $15,206, shown by government testimony to have been transferred by devious bookkeeping channels to the account of Guy W. Brown, and alleged by the government to have been employed for the payment of checks signed by him.

Jesse R. Brown was indicted jointly with his brother on these three charges. There will be no prosecution on the latter, as the same offense was stated to have been covered in the 26 counts of misapplication of bank funds on which Guy W. Brown was convicted Saturday. No disposition was made on the plea today. William B. Heiner, counsel for Guy W. Brown, who stated a motion for a new trial will be filed, has until Thursday to act.

COUNTY OPENS BUILDING BIDS

The County Commissioners today opened some of the largest bids ever submitted for work in this county, those for the construction of the proposed county building, to be erected at Ross and Diamond streets and Fourth avenue. The S. M. Siesel Company submitted their bid of $2,493,750, the lowest of eight submitted by large contracting companies.

When the contract for the work is awarded, it will be the second largest ever given out by the local commissioners. The total cost of the Liberty Tubes, the largest, was $4,543,000.

All contractors submitted two amounts, the one large total being their estimate for the county building providing it is to house the morgue offices.

BILL CREATES 50 FAT JOBS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 19.—Creation of a bureau of detectives in the Department of State Police is provided for in a bill introduced today in the House by Representative Sowers, Philadelphia. The bill is aimed to aid communities in suppressing crime. The Sowers bill provides for a chief detective at an annual salary of $10,000 a year. There would be one chief assistant at $8,000 and eight lieutenants to be paid $7,000 a year. There would be 40 detectives provided for by the bill and these men would receive $6,000 annually.

Curry Asks Change Of Venue in Retrial

Arguments for a change of venue in the retrial of the appeal from the award of viewers for damages in the Curry Building case were heard before Judge James R. Macfarlane in Common Pleas Court. A decision will be rendered later. The county has taken the Curry property as part of the new county office building site. The board of viewers awarded $370,000 damages, but Albert Curry had placed a valuation of $435,000 on the property and subsequently brought suit. The jury which heard the case awarded $315,000. Curry appealed and was granted a new trial.

PAT M'DERMOTT KNOWN AS DANGEROUS GUNMAN

CANTON, O., Feb. 19.—(INS.)—"Pat" McDermott, tough little gunman who fled the Ohio Penitentiary today, is clever, elusive and, when close pressed, desperate.

Officials here today recalled how he remained at large for three months, in 1926, with detectives and police all over the country seeking him as the "key man" in the Mellett murder.

Don Mellett, vice-fighting editor of the Canton Daily News, was shot down as he stepped from the garage, just outside his home, July 16, 1926. The assassins fired from a vacant lot, across the street, where they lay in wait for his return from a social engagement.

The publisher had conducted an editorial crusade against bootlegging and vice, and suspicion was at once directed against Louis Mazer, Ben Rudner and other reputed "underworld" chiefs.

The first tangible evidence came, however, when Steve Kascholk, boyhood friend of Pat McDermott, came forward with the story that Ben Rudner and Mazer had hired McDermott and himself to come to Canton to "beat up a guy." Kascholk said he lost his nerve when he learned that he might be required to assist in a killing.

McDermott remained, Kascholk related. After this story had come out a nation-wide hunt for the "trigger man" ensued.

It developed that McDermott had been in hiding in Cleveland, shielded by friends, among them Ben Nadel, who was later "taken for a ride" and shot to death by rival bootleggers. Nadel, Rudner and McDermott had met while they were serving terms in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

PAT M'DERMOTT BREAKS JAIL

Besides McDermott, the escaped prisoners are:

William W. Young, 36, Washington County, who was serving a life sentence for murder.

Mike Jacko, 19, Cuyahoga County, serving a life sentence for murder.

Joe Russo, 23, Cuyahoga County, serving a term of from 10 to 25 years for robbery.

James Walton, 28, Cuyahoga County, who had been sentenced to serve from 10 to 25 years for robbery.

MISSING AT BREAKFAST

The five-cornered delivery was discovered at breakfast time. All prisoners were ordered back to their cells and a careful check was made, disclosing the fact five men had gained freedom.

They had been confined in three cells. Two sawed their way out from one cell, two from another and one from a third.

All available Columbus police and detectives joined penitentiary guards in conducting a search for the men.

The guards on duty at the time of the break were Charles Shibely and J. B. Isaccs. They were relieved by day guards before the escape was discovered. Warden P. E. Thomas has ordered Shibely and Isaccs to return to the prison for questioning.

VENTILATORS UNLOCKED

The five prisoners escaped through ventilating doors in the tier in which they were confined. The ventilating doors, it was found, had been secured only by wire, instead of lock and key.

Warden Thomas charged that the guards were neglectful in their duty by allowing a plumber, who is now sought for questioning and who had been working on the ventilating system, to retain the key to the doors and also for not seeing to it that the doors were locked when they reported on duty.

During his trial McDermott denied he took part in the actual murder of Mellett. Later he admitted he was on the "firing line" along with Floyd Streitenberger, Canton detective, and Mazer. McDermott said, however, he did not have a pistol and that Streitenberger and Mazer did the shooting.

PLUMBER BLAMED

Officials of the prison were of the opinion that it was a conspiracy between the plumber and the five prisoners who escaped.

The men are believed to be making their way to Cleveland. Box cars and freight trains in the railroad yards here are being searched.

A statement was made by Warden Thomas soon after the escape was discovered. It follows:

"The whole thing illustrates that no mechanical device, made or conceived, will withstand ignorance and disobedience of orders on the part of officers. Investigation has shown that some officer trusted the key to the ventilating corridors to an inmate plumber, thereby giving the plumber the means by which a collusion seems to have been formed between him and those who escaped by leaving the corridor door unlocked and only held closed by a small wire.

"The so-called 6 o'clock count did not report anyone missing, while testimony from the seven men left in the three cells shows that the men left between 4 and 5 a. m."

COUNTY AWARDS CONTRACTS

M. J. McMahon, a local contractor, was awarded the contract for the building of the Deer Creek bridge near Dorseyville by the county commissioners today. He submitted a bid of $33,266, estimated cost of the superstructure work, the paving of the bridge and approaches and removal of old material.

The American Tar Products was awarded a contract of $7,875 for supplying coal mix, which is used by the highway department for patching highways. The Duquesne Slag Products Company was awarded two bids, one of $74,800 for supplying 8,000 tons of slag for the asphalt plants and one for $25,650 for 2,500 tons of slag for road work.

The commissioners also awarded two contracts for lumber to the McKeesport Lumber Company. One called for $4,200, the cost of supplying locust posts for road work, and the other amounting to $1,070 for white pine lumber for general use. The Kelley Island Lime and Transport Company received a contract amounting to $70,500 for fine sand.

School at Federal Destroyed by Blaze

Fayette Township officials were endeavoring today to obtain temporary quarters for 160 pupils of the Federal School, at Federal, which was destroyed by fire last night with a loss estimated as $15,000. Hampered by lack of water, firemen from Bridgeville, Scott Township and Bower Hill fought ineffectually to subdue the flames.

Poet Outliving House, Prophecy Goes Awry

"When comes the day
"These lines are found and read,
"He who wrote these humble lines
"Lies numbered with the dead."

The author is still alive. The owner of the property penned the poem in 1901, apparently thinking the house would be preserved indefinitely. It is being razed for a state hospital.

HOOVER AT HOME IN CAPITAL, FACES WORK

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—(INS.)—President-elect Herbert Hoover returning to the capital this afternoon for two weeks of intensive work before he takes over the presidency on the 4th of March.

HEARST HONORED FOR AID IN FLAG CONTEST

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 19.—For valiant service rendered the flag of the United States, William Randolph Hearst, newspaper publisher, and Col. Frank Knox, general manager of the Hearst newspapers, have been presented the Cross of Honor, the highest decoration of the United States Flag Association, by Col. James A. Moss, president of the association.

The presentation took place yesterday at the opening session of the annual convention of Hearst newspapers executives. In the absence of Mr. Hearst, George Hearst, his son, received the cross which he will give to his father in California next week.

The crosses, Col. Moss said, were awarded Mr. Hearst and Col. Knox in recognition of the great educational service of Americanism being performed by the Hearst newspapers in sponsoring the annual flag contest.

"Through the annual contest the Hearst newspapers will come to exercise over the youth of this nation the greatest influence for education, Americanism and fearlessness in duty of any organization in the country except perhaps the public school system," Col. Moss declared.

GUILTY, VERDICT IN BEER CASE

The Monongahela Beverage Company, of Monongahela, Pa., was found guilty of violating the prohibition laws in a verdict returned in Federal Court today. The jury found the company guilty in the removal of high test beer from the plant. The brewery had been operating under a federal permit for the manufacture of cereal beverages.

Before the case was placed in the hands of the jury yesterday, the court directed a verdict of acquittal against Vincent Pala and Frank DeCooman, employes, arrested by prohibition agents in a raid on the plant. The raiding agents were unable to identify the two defendants as the men, they testified, they had seen place beer on a truck at the factory. The acquittal left only the company on trial.

Henry E. Jordan, a former South Side hotel keeper is president of the company. Assistant United States District Attorney William J. Aiken was in charge of the prosecution.

CORONER HOLDS COAL POLICE

of bail by Coroner W. J. McGregor.

How Borkoski was beaten in the Imperial barracks of the Pittsburgh Coal Company was vividly described by Dr. Patterson, Pittsburgh Coal Company physician at Imperial.

In poignant language and with realistic pantomime he declared the miner's ears were twisted, his broken nose pulled, his crushed body beaten and lashed, as he lay helpless in the coal and iron police barracks Sunday morning, February 10.

ACCUSES LYSTER

"That man did it!" said Dr. Patterson, dramatically, pointing at W. J. Lyster.

Lyster, Harold Watts and Frank Slapakis are charged with the murder of Borkoski. They were coal and iron policemen at the time of his death. Lyster was a lieutenant, the others privates. Their commissions have since been revoked by Gov. John S. Fisher.

5 POLICE IN ROOM

Charles B. Prichard, former director of public safety, appeared at the inquest as their counsel. This was his first appearance in the case.

There were five coal and iron policemen in the room where Borkoski was being mistreated, and not one, Dr. Patterson declared, raised his voice in protest. He identified the five as Lyster, Watts, Slapakis, Corp. Judd Meehling and a man named McDonald or McDougall—he was not sure which.

As Borkoski lay on the floor, Dr. Patterson said, Lyster kicked him in the side—"a hard, forcible kick."

"Was there any provocation?" Coroner McGregor inquired.

"Oh, no, the man was helpless. He was half stunned."

Lyster, in irritation, picked up a long heavy leather strap, Dr. Patterson testified, doubled it, and whipped Borkoski severely.

Borkoski revived somewhat under the lashing, and the doctor examined him. He found his ribs broken and bound them with adhesive tape. He also dressed a head wound.

DOCTOR DISREGARDED

Dr. Patterson declared he told Lyster "this would have to stop," as the man was in a critical condition, but that the police lieutenant continued to whip him.

The policemen appeared to be trying to get some sort of confession from Borkoski, the witness said.

Corp. O. J. Meehling, of the coal and iron police, testified that John F. Higgins, arrested with Borkoski, told him that Borkoski had stabbed Watts.

Meehling admitted seeing Watts and Lyster mistreating Borkoski, and avowed that he had remonstrated with Watts.

He did not say he remonstrated with Lyster subsequently, however, when Lyster, according to Meehling's testimony, twisted Borkoski's ears until they bled.

Constable Ross Schaffer, of Glenfield, wearing horn spectacles and careful of his language, told of being called from Imperial, 18 miles away, Saturday night, February 9, to get two prisoners.

Schaffer took Borkoski to the Sewickley Valley Hospital, where he died soon after being admitted.

County Detective Robert G. McMillen testified he had been assigned to investigate the killing of Borkoski and described what he had been told and seen.

As they were being led back to prison by Deputy Coroners Michael Horan and Herbert Jefferies the trio were asked for a statement. Lyster, acting as spokesman, said:

"They had their say today. This was their day. We'll have our say later. Then it will be our day.'

Those named heirs were Irene Obinger, Samuel Cunningham, Keith Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Cunningham and Florence Mountain. The Tarentum Savings and Trust Company is named executor.

LIFE OF CHICAGO KILLING PROBER THREATENED

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Coroner Herman N. Bundesen revealed today his life had been threatened twice in the past three days, which he attributed to his activity in investigating the St. Valentine's Day massacre of seven members of the Moran gang.

Sunday, Dr. Bundesen said, he received an anonymous telephone call in which he was told "you will be the next to go if you don't watch out." Yesterday, he said, he received an anonymous letter asking him how he would "like to kick the bucket."

Every detective squad member on the Chicago police force was called in for questioning in the gang massacre investigation today. Each was asked:

"Where were you last Thursday morning between 10 and 11 o'clock?"

That was the hour in which seven of George (Bugs) Moran's men were lined up in a North Clark street garage and slain.

Most witnesses have asserted the slayers were using a detective bureau squad car. Several said that two of the five men in the automobile wore police uniforms.

SIGNS $700,000 PAVING BIDS

Mayor Kline today signed ordinances for street improvements totalling nearly $700,000. These included the repaving of Hazelwood avenue, at an estimated cost of $170,000, and of Water street from Penn avenue to Grant street, $125,000. The other measures call for repaving of 14 streets in different parts of the city under the 1929 schedule, to cost $402,00.

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang announced that completion of the widening of Grant street likely would be undertaken this year. Twenty feet will be taken off the east side between the Boulevard of the Allies and aWter street, to conform with the portion of Grant street already widened.

DISTILLING MAY BELONG DELAYED

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The rapid decline in the medical use of pre-war whisky, legally held in bonded warehouses, may postpone the necessity of resuming distilling for several years, it was learned at the Treasury today.

Officials said that at the rate of withdrawal for the last few months, there is nearly 10 years on hand, according to estimates of the volume in warehouses.

It had been thought probable that arrangements to resume whisky manufacture would be started early next year by the Treasury, owing to the necessity of having a supply of five-year aged liquors on hands.

HAVE 10,000,000 GALLONS

Before a final decision is made the actual supply will be regauged. Estimates fix the amount at about 10,000,000 gallons, although thefts, leakage and evaporation may have reduced it materially.

Officials attributed the decline in medicinal use of whisky to two causes: The tendency toward an inferior grade of liquor obtained on prescription, and the fact that many are turning to the cheaper bootleg whisky for medical uses.

Reports showed that medicinal whisky withdrawn from warehouses officially is frequently "cut" with water before it is sold on prescription and that many phyicians are surrendering prescription privilege because of the difficulty in obtaining good quality liquors.

There are still thousands of gallons of whisky in the warehouses of remarkable quality. All liquors in bond are at east 15 years old, and there are some rare old blends, purchased by individuals for intended future use and with a pedigree of 100 years.

RELEASE SOUGHT

Few days go by that the Treasury does not receive letters asking the release of some of this antique beverage for personal consumption. Withdrawals are illegal except by persons having permits to purchase liquor for the few legitimate uses.

Several million barrels of the finest whisky on the market were purchased by individual drinking people when the country went dry and placed in bond, on the assumption that it could be withdrawn when desired. Such of this old stock as has not been sold to persons holding permits is still evaporating and becoming more potent and valuable. It probably can't be duplicated anywhere in the world.

SNAKES AT PENN STATE DINE BUT ONCE A MONTH

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Feb. 19.—The appetite of a snake is nothing to be proud of if they are all like those belonging to the department of nature study at the Pennsylvania State College. A meal once a month is sufficient and sometimes too much for the Penn State reptile family, according to those who take care of them.

Feeds Snakes

MISS A. L. GAUSE

Miss Gause, assistant professor in nature study, Penn State, handling a black snake at "feeding time."

Two small pieces of raw meat, two raw eggs, and a small amount of milk is the meal which Prof. George R. Green, head of the department, has prescribed as sufficient to feed five or six snakes at one of their monthly meals.

Instructors in the nature department say that the State College snakes are very temperamental and easily affected by a sudden change in temperature. Their living quarters are kept at a warm and even temperature. Copperheads, rattlers, black snakes, green snakes, garter snakes, snapping turtles, a wood turtle, one gila monster, a painted turtle and some sun fish make up the collection of animals, fish and reptiles belonging to the nature study department of the college.

FLOOD OF LEGISLATION LOOSED ON COAL POLICE

COUNCIL-METRO BOARD CLASH STIRS POLITICIANS

FISHER WANTS LAW TO STOP ABUSES

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19.—Supplementing his measures abolishing the coal and iron police system, introduced in the House last night, Representative M. A. Musmanno, Allegheny, today presented a bill creating a substitute force to be known as "corporation guards."

Stringent regulations in the bill presented today are designed to prevent such abuse of authority as caused hundreds of complaints against coal and iron police, culminating in the wave of protest that followed the brutal killing of John Borkoski, Santiago miner.

$10,000 BOND ASKED

These regulations include the filing of a $10,000 bond by the corporation for each guard hired under the act, the requirement that each application for a commission be advertised in at least two newspapers and a legal journal before being granted, the specification that the commission be granted only after a hearing before the attorney general, and the restriction of the activities of such police to the grounds of the corporation employing them.

"Corporation guards" would be permitted to function only within 500 feet of the entrance of the mine. Commissions of such police would be in effect only one year.

The bill introduced today by Musmanno and the repealers presented by him last night were only part of the drive against the coal and iron police system started here. Senator William D. Manfield last night presented a bill drastically regulating the activities of such officers. The bill was favorably reported today.

WHO ARE THEY?

While this bill was introduced in the Senate, Representative Carl C. Baldridge, Allegheny, hit at the heart of a subject that has caused much discussion here since the bituminous strike. He introduced, and the House supported him unanimously, a resolution demanding the names of all coal and iron police, their employers and their whereabouts.

Under the terms of the resolution, the House would receive the information on or before March 15. Baldridge, addressing the House, charged that one company had 2,200 commissions on its list, but can produce only 22 bona fide officers.

FEAR "TOO MANY COOKS"

Gov. John S. Fisher and attaches of the office of Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods today continued their work of drafting a bill designed to curtail the powers and activities of the coal and iron police.

Senators Frank J Harris and Herman P. Brandt, both of whom have prepared legislation affecting the subject, are awaiting the action of the administration, their feeling being that sufficient legislation touching the system already has been introduced and that "too many cooks will spoil the broth."

There is a report here today that the Governor will hold a conference at which Harris, Mansfield, Brandt, Musmanno, Baldridge and others interested will be present. At this conference an effort will be made to have everyone get behind one satisfactory piece of legislation that will prevent abuse of the police powers, place responsibility and curtail the activities of the coal and iron officers.

SCULPTURED IN COAL

Mr. Balken, acting assistant director of fine arts, Carnegie museum, and the famous "Coal Man," bust of a Belgian miner carved of Belgian coal by Malvina Hoffman, outstanding American sculptress.

MEN OF MINES TO BE CARVED IN COAL

Western Pennsylvania's coal miner will be idealized by Malvina Hoffman, outstanding American sculptress.

Already, she explained yesterday as she directed erecting of her first exhibit in the Carnegie galleries, she has been promised the coal, a huge slab of such quality that she can carve it without the danger of brittle edges snapping off. A certain quality of hardness in it has been assured her.

Miss Hoffman knows how to carve in coal, for in her exhibit now open to the public in the balconies above the Hall of Sculpture, there is a head of a Belgian coal miner, carved from Belgian coal. The difficulty she encountered in the brittleness of this medium was overcome by a chemical treatment.

Miss Hoffman, in real life, Mrs. S. B. Grimson, is a native of New York, and has studios there.

WED TWO YEARS, ROSE STOKES REVEALS

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Rose Pastor Stokes, the "Rose of the Ghetto," whose romance with J. G. Phelps Stokes, millionaire Socialist and philanthropist, came into the divorce courts in 1925, has been a secret bride the last two years, the Evening Journal revealed today.

Thus she identified herself as the step-mother of 9-year-old Jerry Romain, boy intellectual, who was clinging to her hand yesterday when she and 230 other strike pickets were arrested in the garment district. She was accused of not sending the child to school.

She now is the wife of Isaac Romain, a labor leader. At present she is tutoring the children of a rich and socially prominent New York family, said the former Mrs. Stokes. She is under summons to appear Thursday in Municipal Term Court to answer a charge of violating the state educational law by keeping the stepson out of school.

The summons was issued after she and several other alleged radicals were dismissed yesterday following their march about the garment zone.

Mrs. Stokes Romain said she does not care to reveal at this time the place where she and Romain were wed nor the exact date.

PROVISIONS OF MEASURE WIPING OUT COAL POLICE

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 19.—Following are the provisions of the bill introduced by Representative M. A. Musmanno today creating a substitute for the coal and iron police system which he wants abolished:

1—Application for a commission as a "corporation policeman" would be filed with the Attorney General.

2—The Attorney General would fix a date for a public hearing on the application, advertising it in two newspapers and the legal journal of the county from which the application comes.

3—The person wishing to be commissioned would have to appear in person at the hearing for cross-examination by any citizen of Pennsylvania.

4—The commission, if granted, would be in effect for one year only.

5—Before the commission could be issued a bond of $10,000 would have to be filed with the state, the applicant for the commission, the company desiring to employ him and an incorporated surety company being the sureties on the bond.

6—The guard, before receiving his commission, must take an oath before the recorder of deeds to support the Constitution of the United States and of Pennsylvania.

7—The guards would have authority on the property of the company employing them and would have power, on the premises, to arrest any person for the commission of any unlawful act upon a warrant drawn by an authorized official.

8—In the case of mining companies, such as coal companies, the activities of the guards would be restricted to within 500 feet of the entrance to a colliery or mine. Outside of the prescribed territory guards would have only the power of private citizens.

9—All existing commission would be revoked upon passage of the bill.

ASKS LIGHT ON U.S.-BRITAIN FINANCES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—His original resolution knocked out on a point of order, Rep. Loring Black (D), of New York, introduced another in the house aimed at determining whether there is any agreement, informal or otherwise, between the Federal Reserve Board and the Bank of England governing credits and rediscount rates.

Black's original resolution several days ago addressed a series of questions to Secretary Mellon.

Speaker Longworth ruled that it was improperly addressed. The new resolution calls on both President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon to inform the House what relations, if any, exist between the American and British financial institutions.

It was inspired by the Federal Reserve Board's recent slap at the volume of stock speculation in Wall street, and also by the fact that Sir Montagu Norman was visiting Secretary Mellon here at the time the board acted.

"Congress and the public should be enlightened about the administration attitude," said Black. "Particularly it should be ascertained whether the Reserve Board is more concerned about European financial progress than about a continuation of American prosperity."

Suit Asks $25,000 For Auto Injuries

His wife and daughter injured when his car was wrecked in collision with another machine, Dorf W. Blakeslee, of Locust street, has filed suit for $25,000 in Common Pleas Court against Raymond Vento. The accident occured November 4 in Stanton avenue, near Meadow street. Both the mother, Mrs. Margaret Blackeslee, and daughter, Dorathie, 2, were cut and bruised. Blakeslee, who was driving, escaped serious injury.

WIDER POWERS FOR STATE AVIATION BOARD PROPOSED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19.—Powers of the state aeronautics commission are to be increased considerably through proposed amendments to the administration code. These amendments are in the form of a bill offered in the Senate by Senator Baldwin, of Potter County. The bill today is in the hands of the finance committee.

The air board is taken out of the class of advisory state bodies and made administrative. Adoption of the administration's revisions would give the commission the power to enforce as well as promulgate regulations for aircraft in Pennsylvania.

Appointment of a chairman of the commission by the governor is provided for in the code. This chairman would receive a salary of $7,500 a year. Under the present laws the chairman is the secretary of internal affairs. Robert M. Ginter, former Pittsburgh newspaperman, who has been secretary of the commission since its creation, probably will be made chairman of the new board.

FIVE ON BOARD

The code provides a commission of five members instead of seven, as at present. Separate bills giving the air commission increased authority will be introduced in the legislature within a short time.

Two air bills were introduced in the House last night and one in the Senate. Senator Baumer, Cambria, is the sponsor of a bill that would place aerial transportation companies under the head of common carriers and be subject to the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission. Such control has been exercized by the commission, but the Baumer bill specifically mentions air transportation companies as common carriers.

Representative Turner, Delaware, put in a House bill that would give the Federal government jurisdiction over the land and buildings at the Middletown intermediate air depot. This field now is used and owned by the United States Army. The second bill in the House last night concerning aviation was one by Representative Clovis, Greene, which gives the seventh class counties of the state right to acquire and operate air ports.

Class Up in Arms Over Dry Agent Prom "Guests"

LEWISBURG, Pa., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Members of the class of 1930 at Bucknell University are said to be highly indignant because the junior prom, held Friday evening, was graced by the presence of state police, Federal prohibition officers from the Lewisburg office, and local authorities.

The students claim it was by the invitation of Miss Amelia Clark, dean of women, that the unwelcome visitors were present.

Possible violation of the dry law and the co-ed dance rules was given as the cause by Miss Clark, the students assert.

TEMPERATURE TO DROP AS SNOWFALL CONTINUES

Winter reigned again today after ousting the upstart Spring.

Following sunshine and balmy breezes of yesterday snow swept this district today and will continue tonight and tomorrow, with a falling temperature, it is predicted.

Yesterday the temperature ascended to 43 degrees. This morning it had dropped to 22 and was billed to slump to between 10 and 15 degrees tonight.

The overnight shift in weather caused youngsters to abandon wagons, scooters and roller skates and return to coasting and other winter sports.

"Snow is falling throughout the Ohio and Mississippi valleys," said Forecaster W. S. Brotzman. "A vast low pressure belt in this region kept the expected cold wave from moving in from the west last night."

DENY REVOLT IS BREWING IN MEXICO

NOGALES, Arizona, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Although an under current of excitement was apparent here today, Gen. Francisco Manzo, commander of the federal forces in Sonora, denied reports that a revolution was brewing in the northern part of Mexico.

Accompanied by Gov. Fausto Topete, of Sonora, and Arturo de Saracho, personal representative of President Portes Gil, of Mexico, Gen. Manzo visited this city yesterday.

Gen. Manzo made an emphatic denial of reports concerning an impending revolution.

"My command," he said, "is in perfect accord with the Mexican government. My name has been linked with revolutionary movements many times, but reports that I have revolted I brand as untrue."

Gov. Topete and de Saracho were equally emphatic. The governor of Sonora said his state was peaceful and quiet, and de Saracho attributed the rumors to alarmists.

Excitement was caused here when it was learned that a large amount of money had been ordered sent from Nogales, Sonora, to Mexico City, but bankers attached no especial significance to the shipment.

PLEA TO IGNORE ANNEXATIONS REBUKED

Council's barrage was delivered yesterday when the commission sent a communication asking that the city ignore overtures for annexation of boroughs and townships, pending final disposition of the metropolitan plan.

Chairman Joseph T. Miller, of the commission, told Council in the communication that "the present agitation is creating an unfavorable impression among the municipalities outside the city and fostering a resentment prejudicial at this time to the best interests of the county."

HERRON GIVES LASHING

Council viewed the matter otherwise. Councilman John Herron lashed the commission's statement and declared that the city would stick to its course of holding out the welcome sign to any outside municipality wishing to join Pittsburgh.

Herron finished with this statement.

"If the Metropolitan District Commission sends us any more communications of this sort we will begin to suspect it."

Other councilmen declared privately that in their belief the commission's chief aim seemed to be to perpetuate the existence of the boroughs and townships of the county.

COUNCIL MAINTAINS STAND

Back of Chairman Miller's stand, it was declared, is a desire to give the boroughs and townships a chance to try the metropolitan form of government before they decide on annexation to Pittsburgh.

"It is the judgment of this commission," he wrote to Council, "that consideration of annexation projects should be postponed until such time as the municipal units of this county have had the opportunity to know and consider the proposed metropolitan charter for the whole county."

By a unanimous vote, Council ordered a reply sent to the commission that the city would adhere to its policy of accepting overtures for annexation whenever made.

$3,500 REWARD UP FOR CHILD

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Rewards totalling $3,500 had been offered today for the discovery of 4-year-old Doris Virginia Smith, who was last seen playing in Jefferson Square Park last Friday. It is believed that she has been abducted.

Police have advanced two theories concerning the disappearance of the child. One is that she was kidnaped by a degenerate and probably murdered.

The second theory is that Doris might have been kidnaped by relatives.

7,000 DOPE CASES, SETTLED FOR CASH, HIDDEN BY U. S.

LAW CHEATERS SHIELDED BY DUSTY FILES

By A. M. ROCHLEN.

(Copyright, 1929, by Los Angeles Examiner and Universal Service.)

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—"Closed cases" tell no tales!

Seven thousand final reports of narcotic laws violations settled by the government for cash in the last five years slumber in the official files at Washington.

Sealed lips and department orders have made these cases forgotten mysteries, in spite of the fact that all over the country thoughtful men and women are protesting against the policy of cash compromises without trial in the fight against the dope menace.

Records Kept Closed

Admissions that secrecy goes hand in hand with settlements in this type of cases were made to the Examiner yesterday by Harry V. Williamson, agent in charge of the federal narcotic division of California and Nevada.

"It is impossible for me to open government records to anyone. It simply can't be done. It is against the rules of the service. Once the federal government closes a case it stays closed," Mr. Williamson said in answer to criticism from member of the State Medical Board.

These cases, Washington heads of the narcotic division say, are only "technical violations" and "weak and doubtful ones," but technical or otherwise, they remain closed and sealed—"paid in full" and forgotten.

Authorities Disagree

Many of the country's leading figures in the fight against the dope evil think differently!

And some of the cases, rescued from departmental oblivion and dusty filing cases, are characterized by state officials and law enforcing bodies as important and flagrant violations of statutes designed to control an altogether too fast growing evil.

Instant response from all over the nation to the Hearst papers' protest against secrecy and commercialization of narcotic cases followed the disclosures that a small governmental bureau in Washington, instead of open courts, passes on the narcotic case violations of registered physicians and druggists.

The 1928 report of the narcotic division shows that 15,379 physicians and other practioners, and 50,601 retail dealers in the United States were granted legal right to prescribe and sell narcotics.

7,186 Cases "Settled"

While the overwhelming majority of these men and women are keenly alive to the danger of illegitimate use of their privileges and the medicinal value of the narcotics placed in their hands, those who violate the Harrison Narcotic act for gain constitute probably the greatest menace of all, law enforcement officers declare.

The compromise cases to which the Hearst papers have called national attention come from this class of violators.

Inspection of the Narcotic Division's report for the past five years shows that 7,186 cases of narcotic laws violations were settled by the government for cash. The United tSates Treasury was enriched by the sum of $485,928.44.

Uncle Sam did pretty well in 1926, collecting $144,054.70 from persons who violated his narcotic laws and paid in full for their crimes.

"These were only technical violations, cases in which we never could have obtained convictions and in which compromises were as good as fines." The narcotic division declares in answer to the storm of criticism that followed charges by the Hearst newspapers that "cash for crimes is being accepted at Washington.

"High Pressure" Hinted

But various state officials and law enforcement officers are not so easily convinced.

Somewhere in the imposing total of 2,083 cases and $104,166.64 modestly recorded by the narcotic division among its 1927 achievements, there is one "closed case" that did not look "technical" to California authorities.

It was a case involving a Colorado physician, who later came to California. This case, Dr. Charles B. Pinkham, secretary of the California edical Board, wrote to the narcotic division, "is reported to have been quashed through the acceptance by your office of a payment of $5,000.

"This is a sum considerably above the average payment in compromise and conveys an impression that either the offense was glaring or that Dr. —— was the victim of some high pressure proceedings."

How many other "technical cases" may have practical aspects, none but the officials making final judgments in Washington can tell. And under their rigid rules and regulations, none can question them except some state board fortunate enough to learn through "grapevine" channels that a doctor or druggist under their jurisdiction had violated the law and "paid his way" out in cash."

"There is no better way to encourage violations of the law than to place a license to that end in the hands of a violator," is the comment of Superior Judge Louis Ward, of San Francisco, for years a prosecutor for the State Board of Medical Examiners.

"The making of a compromise with such violators, particularly as in the present instances, permitting them to pay much less for the privilege of breaking the law than they obtain as the fruits of their illegal ventures, is the best possible way to encourage crime, engender contempt for the law and to destroy the very protection reared by the statute.

"The Examiner is to be heartily congratulated upon its activity in exposing this evil," Judge Ward declared.

Justus L. Wardell, former collector of internal revenue and surveyor of port of San Francisco minces no words in attacking the compromise evil.

Branded as Dangerous

"If the Harrison Narcotic Act permits the Federal government to compromise with drug peddlers—and that includes doctors—or treat them in any other way than dangerous criminals, then the Harrison Act should be amended, and speedily," Mr. Wardell told the Examiner.

From a wealth of experience through the years of official contact with the narcotic menace in its phases, Wardell unhesitatingly branded official compromise as "fundamentally dangerous."

And then Mr. Wardell touched another important phase of the situation.

"If the Harrison Act makes it impossible for ethical physicians to give proper treatment, then again the law should be amended. The greatest problem involved in the narcotic situation is the scientific treatment of addicts, and when society begins to regard these unfortunates as victims of a disease, instead of social outcasts, criminals and pariahs, real progress will be made."

Mr. Wardell is no stranger to the compromise system. Nearly 10 years ago, when the State Medical Board first discovered that cash covered a multitude of crimes, Mr. Wardell was collector of internal revenue in San Francisco. A doctor and a druggist were arrested by the narcotic inspectors. They were charged with running a morphine mill in San Francisco. More than 700 perscriptions were said to have been written and filled by the pair. A dumb waiter ran from the doctor's office to the drug store, and a line of addicts moved rapidly along to the click of cash registers, the state officers say.

Then the doctor made an offer in compromise.

Protests Made in Vain

Judge Ward protested. Mr. Wardell protested. The state board, through Dr. Charles B. Pinkham, its militant medical secretary, protested. But rules and regulations, reinforced by red tape, held fast.

Two years later, and only after Dr. C. E. Sawyer, personal physician to President Harding, made demands for the information, the state board learned that the "morphine mill" case was compromised in Washington for $5,000.

And the first thing Dr. Pinkham ran into in his effort to take some punitive measures against the doctor in the case was a maze of red tape and regulations at Washington.

The now-famous department order TD26, obtained by Dr. Pinkham's efforts and a personal visit to Washington by Senator Sanborn Young is the net result of 10 years' battle. Under that order, state boards may get information about physicians in compromises, but only upon written request, and only when the commissioner of prohibition, narcotic division, in the "exercise of sound discretion" deems it advisable and desirable.

In Seattle, where a number of leading citizens make up the membership of the Narcotic Research Association of the Pacific Coast states, the cash compromise policy has raised a storm of protest.

Following the action of members of the Washington State Legislature, deciding that a memorial be sent to Congress asking amendments to the Harrison act to banish secrecy and cash compromises, judges, clubwomen and social workers minced no words in expressing their feelings.

"I am unalterably opposed to all such compromises—to any compromise whatever, so far as dope evil is concerned," Judge Chester A. Batchelor told the Hearst newspapers.

"If you want to keep slender (and who doesn't in these days) avoid sweets and smoke Lucky Strikes. There seems to be something about them; possibly the flavor, that satisfies the craving for the rich things that add weight.

"'Voila', reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet—the trim figure is always fashionable. Advertisements that I saw when I recently arrived in America, said:—'The best way for sugar to be eaten is as a flavorer of foods'. They are quite correct in cautioning a modified use of sugar. Sweets to excess are bad. I advocate a few puffs of the Lucky Strike toasted flavor when sweets tempt.

"I may add that I smoke Lucky Strikes myself, and I think they have contributed much to the state of mind which has helped me to create my greatest successes.

GASOLINE TAX RAISE FOUGHT BY AUTO CLUB

Protest against the measure pending in Harrisburg to increase gasoline taxes from three to four cents a gallon and a companion bill to increase driving license fees was voiced last night at the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh.

A resolution passed by the club declared the State Department of Highways already was receiving sufficient income for maintenance of state roads and for a reasonable amount of new construction. Officers of the club were instructed to co-operate with the Pennsylvania Motor Federation in opposing passage of the proposed legislation.

The club re-elected its present board of governors: Robert Garland, H. Lee Mason, Jr., R. P. McAllister, A. E. Nieman, G. Glenn Sipe, W. Y. Taylor and Paul C. Wolff.

CHICAGO CORONER FINDS BOOTLEG RUM TOLL APPALLING

URGES GENUINE TEMPERANCE AS REMEDY

"The alcohol hand on the clock of death continues to click off lives with sickening certainty. Thousands in the United States are paying the penalty exacted by the demon, moonshine. Not to speak of those blinded and insane and the victims of vice and crime resulting from the consumption of raw moonshine and poisonous varieties of liquor."

This expression came to the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest headquarters in New York from Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, of Chicago, coroner of Cook county, Ill., who has had full opportunity to study the workings of prohibition.

In an interview given to the Chicago Herald-Examiner, Dr. Bundesen expressed appreciation of the $25,000 offer of William Randolph Hearst for a practicable temperance substitute for prohibition, and added:

"The coroner's office has come to a realization of the havoc wrought by moonshine and bootleg whisky that has flooded the country since the Eighteenth Amendment was enacted.

"That something should be done to stop it is apparent to all and probably the first and foremost action would be to expose the conditions that exist to the cleansing light of universal knowledge, since all these things maintain themselves almost entirely on public ignorance.

"The Hearst plan to obtain a remedy for this condition is one worthy of the highest praise. From among the thousands of solutions offered, surely great help will come."

James W. Good

From Illinois also comes another interview with James W. Good, of Evanston, prominent Republican who will be remembered as the Western campaign manager for Herbert Hoover. Mr. Good declares:

"The entire situation as regards prohibition has come down to the question that Mr. Hearst has submitted for solution. The country is indebted to Mr. Hearst for his intelligent, patriotic stand in starting this movement which will cause people to think as to the best way of settling one of the greatest questions, if not the greatest question, confronting the nation.

"More people will study the problem of how the legal status of prohibition may be treated, whether by the Congress or by states, soberly and dispassionately. Personally, I feel that the outright repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment for another decade is out of the question."

The temperance prize contest continues to attract floods of laudatory letters, accompanied by entries of plans seeking to win the capital prize of $25,000 and the provisional lesser prizes of $5,000 and $1,000 made possible by William Randolph Hearst, their donor.

The best thought in the nation is being attracted to the contest and the task of the contest award committee, to be composed of eminent Americans whose names are to be announced at a later date, will be no simple matter in determining the winner or winners.

The contest, closing on April 30, still has nine weeks to go, since Mr. Hearst desired to give every interested person in the country an opportunity to express his or her opinion on how best to bring about true temperance.

Contestants, however, are advised not to wait too long before sending in their entries, in order that the final awards may not be unduly delayed after the close of the competition. The exacting labor of examining and classifying the competitive papers and preparing them for the study of the committee of judges requires all of the allotted time before the winner of the capital prize thesis can be named.

Following are other interesting additions to the discussion of the contest:

Joseph J. Tynan

Joseph J. Tynan, vice president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, San Francisco, Cal.:

"I am in favor of Mr. Hearst's temperance contest. When a nation of 120,000,000 people has to see daily evidence that a law intended for its good is resulting in a condition of deplorable failure, it is certain that that nation is going to demand a remedy.

"But up until the time that Mr. Hearst made his offer of $25,000 for a temperance plan, I do not believe any concentrated action had been devised. This contest, I believe, will stimulate a united effort toward the discovery of this remedy; one that could only be attained by the combined efforts of our country's thinkers."

Louis Little

Louis Little, attorney, Pittsburgh, Pa.:

"Mr. Hearst's prize idea is 'superb. It allows every American to participate in offering a plan which may return to the United States a proper respect for its laws.

"Unquestionably there is something wrong with either the prohibition law or the manner of its enforcement. The citizenry is either rebelling against high-handed legislation or a system of enforcing the law, which at times lends itself to espionage, bribery and corruption.

"It would be foolhardy to estimate the percentage of decent, respectable and law-abiding citizens who have in some manner violated the Volstead act directly or indirectly. It would be just as foolhardy to class such people as malicious or persistent law violators.

"My experience in the criminal courts and minor judiciary convinces me that the disregard for this law has created a spirit of lawlessness in our community which is menacing the social life of the family and flaunting in the face of the youth an inclination to commit the bolder and more violent crimes.

"True temperance and the need of a law sensible, fair, honest and enforceable is the biggest thing in America today. If the prize offer can develop such a plan William Randolph Hearst will receive the everlasting thanks of our people and the Hearst contest will mark an epoch in American history."

7 Rules for $25,000 Temperance Contest

The purpose of the contest is to obtain a practicable plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by state and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than 1,000 words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practical temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the temperance contest committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

The Penalty of Leadership

IN EVERY field of human endeavor, he that is first must perpetually live in the white light of publicity. Whether the leadership be vested in a man or in a manufactured product, emulation and envy are ever at work.

In art, in literature, in music, in industry, the reward and the punishment are always the same.

The reward is widespread recognition; the punishment, fierce denial and detraction.

When a man's work becomes a standard for the whole world, it also becomes a target for the shafts of the envious few. If his work be merely mediocre, he will be left severely alone—if he achieve a masterpiece, it will set a million tongues a-wagging.

Jealousy does not protrude its forked tongue at the artist who produces a commonplace painting.

Whatsoever you write, or paint, or play, or sing, or build, no one will strive to surpass or to slander you, unless your work be stamped with the seal of genius.

Long, long after a great work or a good work has been done, those who are disappointed or envious continue to cry out that it cannot be done.

Spiteful little voices in the domain of art were raised against our own Whistler as a mountebank, long after the big world had acclaimed him its greatest artistic genius.

Multitudes flocked to Bayreuth to worship at the musical shrine of Wagner, while the little group of those whom he had dethroned and displaced argued angrily that he was no musician at all.

The little world continued to protest that Fulton could never build a steamboat, while the big world flocked to the river banks to see his boat steam by.

The leader is assailed because he is a leader, and the effort to equal him is merely added proof of that leadership.

Failing to equal or to excel, the follower seeks to depreciate and to destroy—but only confirms once more the superiority of that which he strives to supplant.

There is nothing new in this. It is as old as the world and as old as the human passions—envy, fear, greed, ambition, and the desire to surpass.

And it all avails nothing.

If the leader truly leads, he remains—the leader.

That which is good or great makes itself known, no matter how loud the clamor of denial.

That which deserves to live—lives.

TWO SUSPECTS IN CAB HOLDUP CAPTURED

Less than 20 minutes after James L. Brown, 26, a taxicab driver, of 908 Punta Gorda street, East McKeesport, had been held up and robbed of $4 by two armed "fares" in Sylvan avenue early today, Patrolman Daniel J. Friel arrested two suspects at Second and Hazelwood avenues in connection with the robbery. Both had revolvers when arrested, and one confessed his part in the holdup, police said.

The prisoners identified themselves as James McCarthy, 27, of 4418 Sylvan avenue, and Fred Haney, of 1833 Fifth avenue. McCarthy is alleged to have admitted that he participated in the holdup. Brown told police that one of the bandits wore a black mask and the other covered his face with a handkerchief.

McCarthy is said to have attempted to throw away a black mask when arrested.

MOTHERS STOP! CHILDS COUGH

KIDS LIKE TO TAKE THIS SIMPLE REMEDY

"My children love to take the cough and cold remedy our old doctor recommended. It banishes a cold, fortifies them all winter, and helps their appetites."

There is no dope, alcohol, chloroform, etc., in it. A barrel of it would do no harm.

Almost like ice cream and tastes so nice kids cry for Lin-O-Nine, which contains wholesome, beneficial Oils of Flaxseed, Eucalyptus, Cassia, Betula, Irish Moss and Glycerine, churned into a cream flavored with Wintergreen. Yum! Yum! It's good, the kiddies say, according to thousands of wise mothers who always have a bottle of Lin-O-Nine in the house. Better than Cod Liver Oil as a tonic—and it tastes nice.

Doctors recommend Lin-O-Nine for grown-ups, too. 50c and $1.00 sizes at druggists, or send dollar bill for large 15-oz. bottle, parcel post return mail. Kerr Chemical Co., Brentwood, Md.

With all fashions "going feminine" just now, Tailor-Type dresses, based on a law of simplicity which has a certain, flexible grace, keep within the feminine trend but never become picturesque or fussy.

To this end, the new Spring models for town wear and travel employ dull crepes, crepe-satin with the dull side predominating, heavy georgette crepe, and new crepes which have the effect of novelty sheer woolens and which have such intriguing names as travelaine and crepe chiendent.

To satisfy the modern desire for color, they are to be had in smart, light Spring shades—lovely blues, spirited rose tones, greens, shades of beige, gray—as well as navy blue.

Our Daily Short Story

Fine Feathers

By Laura Reid Montgomery

WANDA had not thought much about her clothes for a long time. When her old sweetheart, Tom Meadows, had returned from college he had been vaguely surprised at the change in her. But he had said nothing and gradually, in the pleasant rush of his life, he had ceased to think of her.

The death of Wanda's mother had left her in the position of "mother" to the young children. It was Marcia who, almost imperceptibly, slipped in the place formerly held by Wanda.

Marcia was a very pretty girl of 18 years who had grown somewhat selfish. To keep her supplied with the pretty frocks, that she alternately coaxed for and demanded kept Wanda fully occupied and she had begun to lose interest in her own appearance.

"Wanda, Tom has invited me to go with him to the surprise-party on the Wendells tonight," cried Marcia, bursting in breathless and rosy-cheeked. "I intended to wear my suit but now I must have my new silk to wear. Put away that old mending and sew on it."

"I couldn't finish it in time, Marcia. I have so many things to do—" Wanda replied.

"Why, Wanda, don't be cross. We can't get along without you and, besides," added the younger girl, "no one would know anything about the supper we're going to take. That was what Lily Smith said: 'To be sure and see that you went because you had such a good head for the amounts needed.'"

"Sort of a cook-chaperone, I suppose," muttered Wanda, then repenting of her tartness she smiled at the pretty shallow face and promised to go.

"Yes," cried Marcia, vastly relieved, "because Lily said you used to go with Tom ages ago when you were young and she might think you jealous because he asked me instead."

HELPED BACK TO GLORIOUS HEALTH

Pittsburgh Lady Praises Ten Herbs; Ended Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Bowel Trouble.

When a medicine can entirely relieve a person of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders, it must have amazing power that lifts it above the commonplace. That is true of Ten Herbs, the celebrated new natural compound, which is being introduced at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh. Not in a few instances, but time and again Ten Herbs has given just such relief to men and women of this section—this statement cannot be doubted by anyone who reads the local papers.

"Ten Herbs proved to be just the medicine my system needed," was the recent statement of Mrs. Otillia Newmeyer, 254 Industry Street, Pittsburgh. "And I cannot praise it enough after what it has done for me. It seemed as though my stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels were all out of order. My kidneys were the worst. I was told that I would soon have to go to a hospital for this trouble. I was troubled so badly with constipation that at times I would go almost a week without getting relief. Besides all this, I suffered with indigestion. Gas would form and I would have a heavy feeling in the pit of my stomach. While eating, food would sometimes seem to lodge between my throat and stomach, and I could not get it up or down. I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown—and it was hard to get a good night's sleep. I lost weight and was becoming anemic.

"Now, thanks to Ten Herbs, all these conditions have been changed. My liver and kidneys are working fine. My bowels are regular as can be. Stomach trouble has been relieved. My nerves are so much stronger that I can go to bed and sleep like a child. My complexion is clearer, and I have gained 12 pounds in weight. I feel better and stronger in every respect. Ten Herbs kept me on my feet lately by warding off a number of colds. I have recommended Ten Herbs to my friends and gladly endorse it to the public."

Ten Herbs is being introduced at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, and is sold at all May's Drug Stores.

Nerves—Nerves

Mrs. Minnie Hildebrand, Box 124, Lafayette, O., writes: "It was a glad day when I sent for the sample of Wheeler's Nerve Vita-Lizer. I was so bad and nervous I jerked and shook like a leaf. With the first dose of your medicine, I began to feel like myself, and I sleep so good. All say, 'How much better you look.'"

Send 10c to J. W. Brant Co., Dept. 65, Albion, Mich., for a large free trial of this wonderful sleep producer and you can then get the regular size at most any drug store at $1.10 a bottle.

This Penn. Girl is Happy Now

The quick, easy way those ailments of children, such as headaches, feverishness, biliousness, coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, etc., simply vanish with the first few doses of California Fig Syrup, is always a surprise to those who use this fine old medicine for the first time.

Weak, puny, restless and cross children never fail to pick up weight and gain strength and energy under its gentle influence. It stimulates the appetite, regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally of their own accord.

A well-known Pennsylvania mother, Mrs. P. Reilly, 5258 Rodman St., Philadelphia, says: "Marguerite is rosy-cheeked, bright-eyed and happy, now; but we had a lot of trouble with her. Her stomach and bowels seemed to be weak. She suffered from constipation and biliousness until she was fretful and peevish most of the time. Then we gave her some California Fig Syrup and her trouble stopped quick. We kept on giving it to her and soon she was well and strong."

Be sure to ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name so you'll get the genuine, endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

"MADE ME LIKE ANOTHER MAN"

"Everything Looks a Lot Better Than It Did a Few Weeks Ago"

"World's Tonic has made me like an entirely different man," declared Mr. Carl Risch, to the World's Tonic interviewer. "Everything looks a lot better to me than it did a few weeks ago," said Mr. Risch, who is employed at New Kensington, Pa.

"For several months I had attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia. I was actually afraid to eat, because after each meal my stomach filled with gas so that it bloated, and this gas pressed on my heart. Sometimes it made me so short of breath that I felt I was smothering. Several times I lay gasping for breath and expecting each one to be my last. My bowels were all out of order, and only the strongest kind of physics every day would give me any relief. My liver was sluggish, and I was bilious most of the time. This gave me terrible headaches and often I was so dizzy I felt I would fall over. At night I was so nervous I could not sleep, and lay there with my body jerking and my muscles twitching. In the morning I felt I could not get up, and with all my pains and aches I was irritable and morose. My weight dropped off greatly.

"So many of my buddies talked about World's Tonic, the new wonderful medicine that creates excitement everywhere it is used, so I thought I would give it a trial, even though some widely advertised medicines had failed to help me. I took almost two bottles before I would admit that it had done me any good. But after that improvement was rapid. Now I enjoy my meals and eat freely without fear of any bad results. Gas does not worry me any more, and there is no feeling of smothering after my meals. My bowels are regular, and I am free of headaches and dizziness. My nerves are stronger, I sleep restfully and get up in the morning refreshed. I certainly would be most ungrateful to this great remedy if I did not urge other people to use World's Tonic." This good medicine can be obtained at all Dow Stores (formerly McCulloch), or any other first-class drug store. (A-60) plication of jealousy and advanced age, worked feverishly and accompanied the gay party to the house two miles west of town where they had planned to surprise May Wendell.

Halfway out a storm blew up and the girls were drenched. Wanda, intent upon keeping the iced cakes from getting damp from the wet coverings, remained in the kitchen emptying the baskets and where Mrs. Wendell found her. The girl was thoroughly wet and her hostess bundled her into her room to change.

Wanda stared at herself in genuine amazement when she had put on the gay little frock. Short sleeves and short-full skirt and a neck cut out quaintly and filled in with a delicate froth of laces smelling of lavender turned her into a smiling girl whose dark eyes glowed softly above the rose gown. Her hostess, watching her, caught up a comb and loosened the bronze hair into a curly fluffiness about the small face and with a few deft twists, unfastened the heavy knot behind.

"There," laughed Mrs. Wendell," you look the way you used to look before you began to think yourself Marcia's mother. Run into the living room now, I shan't let you touch another thing about supper. You are to play tonight."

Tom Meadows, crossing the hall, stared in astonishment as he saw Wanda descending the black oak stairs. She smiled shyly at him, and the years that lay between them dropped magically into the past.

"Wanda, I had forgotten how pretty you were. You keep away from us so that—" he had reached her by this time and the two smiled hazily at each other.

"It's the rose-gown," she whispered after a long silence.

He seemed puzzled, but a quick survey of the rose-gown pleased him and he answered:

"When we are married you must wear rose-gowns every day."

Splendid Recipe To Stop A Cough That "Hangs On"

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be made at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this home-made remedy loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which usually follow the "flu", are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

SLEUTHS CHECK RACKETEERS ON PAROLE

County detectives today were checking up on the activities of 165 alleged slot machine and liquor racketeers paroled by Judge James B Drew for offenses charged to them by the grand jury after the recent county graft probe.

Chief County Detective George Murren ordered the investigation after persistent reports that many of the paroled offenders had resumed their "rackets." The majority were put under a year's parole by Judge Drew, who fined each one $25.

Absence of witnesses and counsel brought postponement yesterday of three trials scheduled as a result of the probe. Trial of Stanley Orie, brother of Magistrate John Orie, was deferred until Monday because of the illness of a witness. Trials of Harry and Edward Paul, indicted for maintaining gambling devices, and of William Archey, reputed proprietor of the Pittsburgh Yacht Club, for alleged illicit liquor sales, were held over until Monday.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

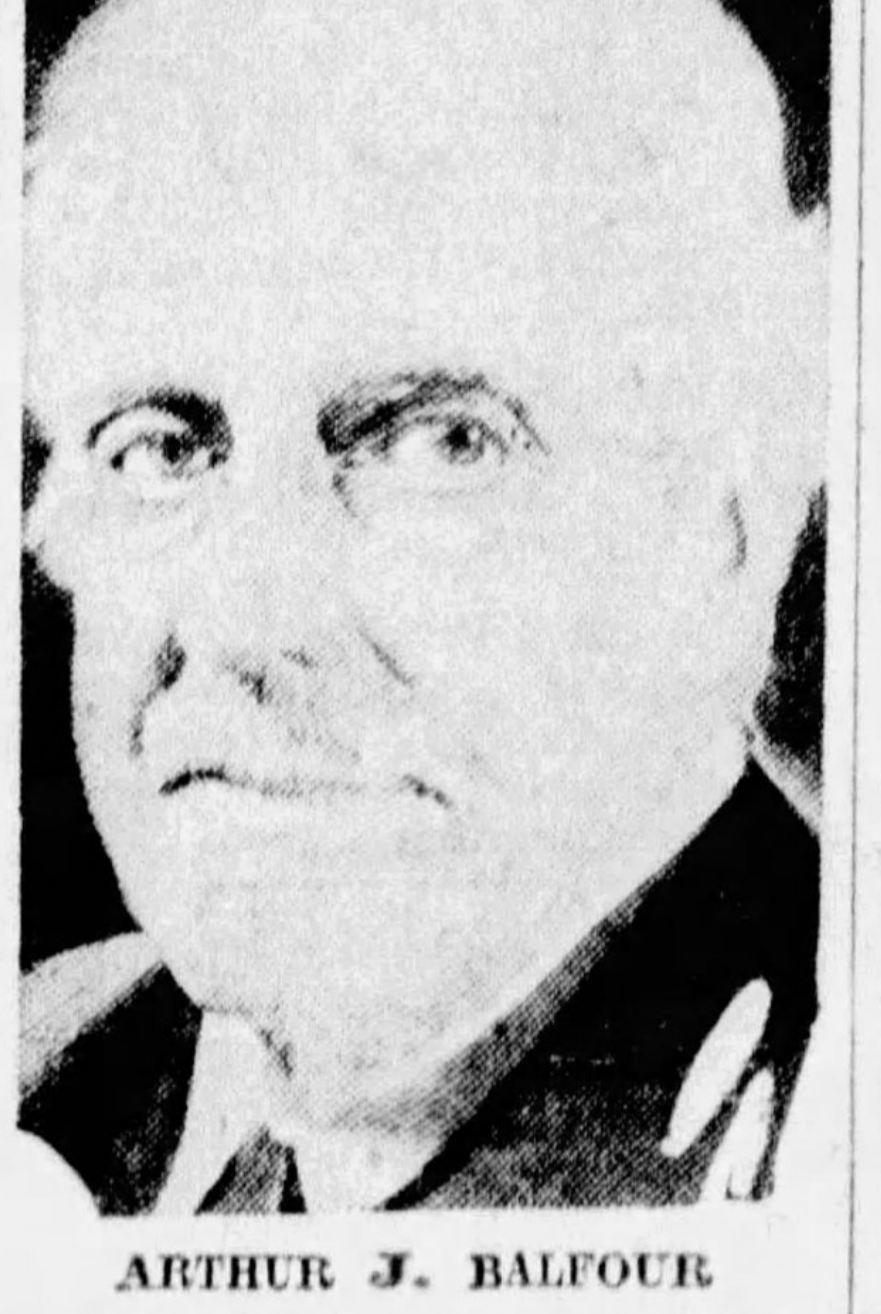
INTIMATE PAPERS OF COLONEL HOUSE

House Asks for Option on British Capital Ships After World War

CHAPTER III.

THE provisions of the Navy Bill passed by Congress in 1916 would, when carried into effect, make the United States Navy second only to that of Great Britain; indeed, in the opinion of various experts the reinforced American Navy would approximately equal that of the British in total strength. The immediate value of this increase in the American naval forces, however, was lessened by the emphasis which the Navy Bill placed upon capital ships, whereas in the war against the German submarine the great need was lighter and swifter craft. The Allies asked, accordingly, that the United States postpone the building of capital ships in order to concentrate upon destroyers.

Led Mission



ARTHUR J. BALFOUR

Balfour, who was during the World War Great Britain's secretary of foreign affairs, came to the United States as the head of an important mission after President Wilson's speech asking for a war declaration. Read today's installment of "The Intimate Papers of Col. House" on this page.

Since the United States desired above everything to bring effective assistance in the war against the submarine, they were anxious to meet this request. But they had also to consider what the ultimate effect would be upon their after-war naval strength if they neglected the building of capital ships. Would it be possible to enter into an arrangement with the British which would permit the United States to concentrate for the moment upon the building of destroyers and yet ensure the American Navy against the peril resulting from lack of capital ships, which, in the opinion of many experts, constituted the bulwark of naval strength? House raised the problem frankly with Balfour and Drummond. On May 13 he wrote in his diary:

"In talking with Drummond, I called attention to the Allied demand that we build submarine destroyers at the expense of our major battleship program. To do this would leave us at the end of the war where we are now, and in the event of trouble . . . we would be more or less helpless at sea. I thought if Great Britain would agree to give us an option on some of her major ships in the event of trouble, . . . we could go ahead with our destroyers without fear of subsequent events.

"Drummond replied that Germany's navy might be left intact after the war and Great Britain might have need of all her fleet in a further war with Germany. In this event I suggested we give Great Britain an option to read that in case of war with Germany we would return the battleships which we had taken over, and would give her in addition an option on some of our major ships. He is to take it up with Mr. Balfour and let me know the result."

Agreement Suggested

No decision was made by the British until after the return of the Balfour mission. Early in July House received from Mr. Balfour a cable which analyzed the problem in the light of the immediate submarine danger as well as of the future relations of the United States.

Mr. Balfour's cable stated that the possibility of a naval agreement to permit the United States safely to concentrate upon destroyers and light craft instead of capital ships had been carefully considered by the war cabinet. It was of vital importance, the British Admiralty believed, that the maximum number of destroyers be built. If the United States government felt that its Navy was likely to become dangerously unbalanced, the British cabinet would be willing to consider some sort of defensive arrangement with the United States to meet the danger. Col. House's proposal that the British agree to provide definite naval assistance to compensate for the unbuilt American capital ships was likely to raise, however, rather dangerous international issues. Mr. Balfour suggested therefore that the six major powers at war with Germany all enter into a naval agreement providing for mutual assistance against any maritime attack for a period of four years after the conclusion of the present war.

Col. House did not like the suggestion as well as his own plan providing that the British give the United States a definite option on certain British capital ships to be exercised in case of future trouble. Perhaps he feared lest the general defensive agreement should develop into something similar to a formal alliance that might arouse the opposition of American opinion. In Mr. Balfour's plan may be discovered the germ of the Naval Treaties of 1922, which were later concluded by the Harding administration.

Letter to President

Magnolia, Massachusetts
July 8, 1917.

Dear Governor:

I am enclosing a cable which I have just received from Balfour. I am sending it in duplicate so you will have a copy for the State Department. No one knows of these negotiations excepting Lansing and Polk.

Breckinridge Long who is here today is taking this letter.

I cannot see that the solution Balfour suggests would be of much service excepting that it would prevent Japan from falling into the hands of Germany and forming a combination against us.

In the event of trouble between Japan and ourselves, or other parties to the agreement, they would be forced to be neutral, or if there was war between any of the signatory powers, the others would necessarily be neutral.

That is not quite what we had in mind. I see no reason why our first proposal should not be accepted, and I see no reason why it should offend Japan or any other nation if known. What I suggested was that in view of our diverting government shipbuilding in our naval yards from the construction of capital battleships to that of vessels suitable for anti-submarine warfare, and the building of a merchant marine in order not to interrupt the supplying of the Allies with necessary materials for the continuation of the war, Great Britain should agree to give us an option on the purchase of such capital battleships as we might wish to replace those which we discontinued building because of our desire to aid them.

This would not be directed against Japan any more than it would be against France, Italy, Russia or even England herself.

Sir William Wiseman expects to return to England early next week and before going he will spend a day with me here. Will you not let me know your conclusions so I may discuss the matter with him and let him in turn take it up with his government?

If the English are afraid of Germany, it seems to me it would be reasonable to include in the agreement a clause by which in the event of war between Germany and England, they might demand the return of these capital battleships.

Affectionately yours
E. M. House.

Wilson Indifferent

On July 13 President Wilson invited Wiseman to discuss outstanding problems before his visit to England; in the course of the conversation they came to the naval proposals of Balfour and House. Wilson was not enthusiastic in support of either plan. He did not like the idea of anything approaching an alliance with the major European powers and Japan, even one limited in its scope to a purely defensive naval agreement. Nor did he agree with House that the question of capital ships was one of vital importance. The exigencies of the submarine war, he felt, would in any case lead to an emphasis upon the building of destroyers at the expense of capital ships; he seemed quite satisfied that this would not touch the effectiveness of the American Navy after the war.

Moreover, he pointed out that while the U. S. was now ready to take her place as a world-power, the strong feeling throughout the country was to play a "lone hand" and not to commit herself to any alliance with any foreign power. With regard to Japan, Wilson said that in his opinion a successful attack on the Pacific Coast was absurd owing to the long distance from the Japanese base and the difficulty they would have in obtaining any suitable base on the Pacific Coast. The possibility of their attacking the Philippines or some outlying possession was, he thought, quite another matter, and presented a possibility which could not be overlooked.

Col. House was not convinced that the day of the capital ship had passed. Until this was certified by naval experts he believed that it was the duty of the administration to provide full insurance for the defense of the United States. "There may be something in the future," he noted in his diary on July 14, "but up to now Great Britain's successful blockade of Germany is maintained because she has a superiority in capital battleships."

House to President

Magnolia, Mass.
July 17, 1917.

Dear Governor:

. . . I have a feeling that he (Wiseman) misunderstood you (concerning the value of capital battleships) for surely the present control of the seas is solely due to the superiority of the British fleet in capital ships. No amount of smaller craft could take their place. While they are not effective in submarine warfare yet, submarine warfare is as distinct a phase of sea warfare as aircraft are in land warfare. I think it is true today as it was before the war that the nation having the most powerful capital battleships in both size and speed is the nation that will dominate the sea.

I hope you will insist upon some arrangement with England by which this country may obtain some of their capital ships at the end of the war, in the event we should wish them. The arrangement would be a safe one, for they need not be taken if not desired. I discussed this question thoroughly with Lord Fisher and other British naval men and there was no disagreement as far as I can remember.

E. M. House.

To this letter the President returned no specific response, and the discussion lapsed during the summer. Late in August, in answer to an inquiry of Sir William Wiseman, who was then in England, House cabled that the "capital ship question is lagging because of pressure of matters of immediate urgency." But when Wilson came up to visit House on the North Shore in September the question was again raised. House emphasized the need and value of capital ships, the President at once [illegible] of their value and [illegible] the infeasibility of a satisfactory arrangement with the British. (Editorial Note—British naval expert opinion supported Wilson rather than House, insofar as it declared that the American Navy was already relatively strong in capital ships (except battle cruisers) and weak in the categories of fast light cruisers and destroyers.) Col. House thus describes the discussion with Wilson in his diary of September 9:

"After I had made an argument in favor of capital ships, he refused to discuss the question further, declaring that no matter whether I was right or he was right, it was impracticable to make an arrangement with Great Britain at this time looking to our securing some of her capital battleships after the war in consideration of our abandoning our shipbuilding program of capital ships in order to build submarine destroyers. He thought the only thing that could be binding on Great Britain would be a treaty, and a treaty must necessarily go to the Senate for confirmation. He did not believe this country was prepared for a treaty of that sort with Great Britain. Anything less than a treaty he thought footless, because the present administration might change and the British government might change, and what would a verbal agreement amount to under new administrations? I argued that an arrangement could be made which would meet the approval of our people. He in turn said if the British government wanted to do this after the war, they would do it anyway, and if they did not want to do it, we had no means of making them short of a treaty."

Navy Program Changed

Because of the imminence of the submarine peril and the representations of the Allies, the American naval authorities used the discretion left them by Congress to bend all their energies towards the building of light craft. Only two battleships, the Mississippi and New Mexico, were completed and commissioned while the United States was at war, and these had been started before we became a belligerent. The keels of two others, the Maryland and Tennessee, were laid before the armistice. Work on capital ships of the 1916 program, according to a Navy Department report, was virtually suspended during the period of the war in order to concentrate the facilities of the experienced ship-building plants upon the destroyer program and other types needed to cope with the submarine problem.

(Letter from Navy Department, July 29, 1926. "Under acts of Congress dated 4 March, 1917 and 6 October, 1917," the letter adds, "235 destroyers, in addition to the 50 required by the 1916 program were laid down; the contracts for six of these were subsequently cancelled, leaving 229 destroyers of the emergency program which were actually completed. Of the 50 destroyers authorized in the 1916 program, 35 were contracted for and built.

"During the period of the war, 6 April, 1917 to 11 November, 1918, 44 destroyers were completed. Of these the keels of five had been laid prior to April 6, 1917.

"No capital ships were built entirely within the period of the war. The building period of capital ships is materially longer than the 17 months period of actual hostilities.")

When the war ended, of the 10 battleships provided for by the 1916 program, only two had been completed and nothing had been done on the six battle cruisers authorized by that program. It is obviously a matter of conjecture or of expert opinion as to whether the American Navy was unduly weakened thereby during the months that elapsed before the conclusion of the Washington Treaties in 1922.

When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address "The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

Ends coughs the MEDICAL WAY!

No other Cough Syrup has it!

Peter coughed and sneezed.

coughed and sneezed—till "Triple Action" gave him quick relief.

"PETER is a delicate boy—very apt to catch cold. This winter when he started coughing and sneezing, we gave him Smith Brothers Cough Syrup. It is almost unbelievable how quickly this syrup helped him. He stopped coughing, his fever went down, and in three days he had lost his cold completely! We are certainly grateful to Smith Brothers Cough Syrup—it worked wonders with our boy!"

MRS. ROBERT I. HIGGINS

Husband and wife . . . both catch serious colds . . . . . .

Both well in two days. "Triple Action" did it!

"WE had to visit some friends on a bad rainy day. When we got home that night, we both were coughing in chorus. My husband had fever and complained of a pain in his chest. I gave him some Smith Brothers Cough Syrup and took a teaspoonful myself. Right away I felt better.

In the morning we continued taking Smith Brothers—and in two days we both were just as well as ever. My husband and I now both swear by Smith Brothers Cough Syrup!"—MRS. W. P. FROST

¶ Smith Brothers Cough Syrup works so surely and so quickly because of Triple Action. This scientific principle does the three things that you must do to get a cough out of your system: 1—it soothes, 2—is mildly laxative, 3—clears air passages. It has the famous cough drop flavor.

Senate Patronage Probes Authorized

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Authority to investigate appointments to all Federal offices, including postmasterships, was granted the Senate Patronage Committee in a resolution adopted yesterday by the Senate.

Extension of the authority of this committee was asked by Chairman Brookhart after Representative Wurzbach (Rep.), Texas, had sought a hearing for witnesses who wanted to deny charges that liquor had been sold openly in Texas hotels after dry agents had been bribed.

KONJOLA ENDED STOMACH MISERY AFTER 4 YEARS

Remarkable Recovery Reported by Former Sufferer—Gained Relief in Week and Half.

"Konjola brought me complete recovery after all hope was gone." Time and time again this glad expression finds its way into the written or spoken indorsements of Konjola, the new medicine. What encouragement this should be for all who suffer and who seek in vain for relief from the clutches of disease. How Konjola with its 22 body-cleansing, health-giving, pain-banishing ingredients, performs these seeming wonders, when all else tried has failed, is being explained daily by the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company, (formerly McCulloch's) Penn avenue and Sixth street, Pittsburgh. Here all those who meet the Konjola Man, to learn of the powers and feats of this master medicine, will be shown actual, proved, verified facts of Konjola's splendid powers. Those who seek health through Konjola, with its juices of 22 roots and herbs, are not asked to listen to mere promises. Konjola is a medicine of deeds, not words. Here is a typical case of Konjola at work. Read every word of the statement of Mr. William Lutz, Oakdale, Pa., a short distance from Pittsburgh, as he said to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"What a glorious thing it is to have my health again after suffering for four years, and I owe it all to the merits of this splendid medicine, Konjola. All my troubles came from the extremely disordered condition of my stomach. I was unable to find a bit of food that digested right. Immediately after eating I began to suffer from gas bloating and severe pains in the pit of my stomach. At times I got so dizzy that it was necessary to hold onto something to keep from falling. Spots appeared before my eyes and make objects dim in front of me. With all this trouble I was unable to sleep well at night.

"When I first heard of Konjola and when it was recommended to me, I was inclined to laugh at the idea of it benefiting me. But my case became so bad that, like a drowning man, clutching at a straw, I took the opportunity to give Konjola a trial. Well, this medicine turned out to be a great deal more than a straw—it gave me a firm foothold on the glorious road to health. Within a week and a half I knew that I would soon be a well man again. Konjola went to work at the very source of my ailments—it cleansed my system and regulated my organs. My stomach functions perfectly now and food never causes the slightest distress. I have sound, refreshing sleep at night and with a good appetite, I have gained in strength and energy. Konjola accomplished in a few weeks what all other medicine failed to do in four years. It is worthy of the highest praise."

Thus does Konjola work in every case—those that are stubborn and of years duration. It is a medicine that performs, not promises. Konjola contains no alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It needs no such hazardous ingredients.

The Konjola man is at the Dow Drug Company, (formerly McCulloch's) Penn avenu and Sixth street, this city, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

SENATE HOLDS UP 2 JOBS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The Senate judiciary committee gave quick assent to the nomination of Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the retiring Democratic leader of the House, to be a judge of the Court of Customs Appeals. Two other judgeships nominations, however, were held up yesterday for further consideration, Irvine Lenroot, former Republican Senator from Wisconsin, and Henry Glassie, former Democratic member of the tariff commission.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, asked for some information about Mr. Lenroot's connection with the power utility companies.

Glassie was opposed several years ago by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, because of his participation on the tariff commission in a decision on the sugar duty.

Weather Conditions.

There was an unusual change in the pressure distribution during the last 24 hours. The Plains states high remained nearly stationary, but diminished in pressure, and changed in form from a long ridge to nearly circular. The highest pressure is 30.44 inches, at Huron, S. D. Falling barometer developed over the lower Mississippi Valley and the Ohio Valley states, and snow set over that entire area. The snowfall was light up to 8 a. m., and a heavy snowfall is not expected over this section. Another low pressure area developed over the far Northwest, and is causing rising temperatures over British Columbia and Alberta.

There was a considerable drop in temperature over the Ohio Valley states, elsewhere the changes were mostly slight. Low temperatures continue over the Plains states.

River Conditions.

There was no change in the river conditions since yesterday. Stage at Pittsburgh is 10.9 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.7, and Dam No. 6, 7.8. The dams are up.

Meditations of a Wife

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Off With the "Bun!"

FUNNY, how women who fought and wailed for "freedom from the tyrant, man," will calmly permit a little French hairdresser to put such an atrocity over on them, as the "BUN!"

To one who spent three-quarters of her girlhood hunting for slipping hairpins, curling, waving, brushing and "doing up" a mass of superfluous back hair, it is appalling to see young girls deliberately going back to the horrors of the Corset Age.

* * *

We who once proudly boasted that we could "sit on" our hair, were a long, long time succumbing to the bob. We hugged our sorrows and our headaches to us, and refused to be shorn until the last horn blew.

HELEN ROWLAND

Never shall we forget the day when we closed our eyes and listened, shuddering and shivering, to the clip-clip of the shears, as our treasured Crowning Glory fell to the floor in quantities sufficient to make a good-sized mattress.

* * *

But now that we have known the joy, the comfort, the freedom and the beauty of the BOB and have reveled in the coolness and CLEANLINESS of healthy, shining hair, we can only contemplate with horror the return to self-imposed slavery.

* * *

We remember the long, hot summer days, when we went around with tired, sticky, perspiring heads under the weight of rolls, plaits, puffs and rats. We remember all the little "dee-vices" and instruments of torture—the pads, hair-nets, hatpins and side-combs—invented to make our burden more terrible.

* * *

We remember all the sacred rites and hard labor of a shampoo; the Sunday afternoons spent with our heads hanging out of the window, courting apoplexy; the pains in the backs of our necks; the torture of swimming and diving under our handicap; the embarrassment of straggling locks after a game of golf or a canter in the park; our beaded foreheads on warm nights! Oh, Suffering Sutherland Sisters! WHAT we remember!

* * *

And we look in astonishment at the girls who are letting their hair grow out, and wonder what in Heaven's name they SEE in that unsightly little knob at the back of their necks, to compensate them for the sacrifice of their becoming, youthifying bobs.

But the modern girl appears to be deliberately trying to make herself look frumpy and old and plain. Just for a fad! Or because "Paris has decreed it!"

Aren't women funny! All their lives are spent in praying for rain—and then wishing it would clear off; kicking for something—and then wishing they hadn't GOT it!

* * *

Give us back our wild, free locks! Off with the "bun!" On with the shears! Delilah was right!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

How Do You Smoke? Asks Dr. Copeland

CLEARNESS of voice is important to you and to the people with whom you converse. But sometimes there is hoarseness, if not actually loss of voice.

Hoarseness or huskiness is frequently the result of chronic catarrh. It comes, too, from the irritating effects of dust or a smoky atmosphere upon the tissues of the throat.

Have you ever thought that the habit of chewing or smoking the cigar may produce constant irritation of the throat? At this time I shall not discuss smoking, as to its harmfulness or otherwise. I desire to consider merely the manner of smoking.

Every smoker has his particular style. He may smoke a pipe, a cigar or a cigaret. He may use a holder. He may be a "dry smoker" and hardly moisten the end of the cigar of cigaret. He may be a "wet smoker" and have the cigar butt, or even half its length, soaked with saliva. All folks with sensitive throats should avoid chewing the cigar.

To permit the cigar to get wet and then to chew it, means that the mouth is constantly filled with tobacco-infiltrated saliva which trickles down the throat, producing irritation as it proceeds. Little particles or flakes of considerable size break away from the cigar butt and reach the throat, to irritate and inflame it, exactly as any other foreign substance would.

The more tobacco excites the flow of saliva, and the more it produces irritation of the throat, the more certain you can be that your manner of smoking is harmful. If this continues you must give it up entirely, or learn to smoke less energetically.

I assume that smoking is a soothing and agreeable practice to those who indulge in it, or they would not smoke. It is important, however, to reduce to the minimum its possible evils. To this end it is important to get complete combustion of the tobacco.

All our habits should be temperately indulged. This is just as true of tobacco smoking as it is of everything else. Under no circumstances should you indulge a practice to the detriment of your health. Good sense and moderation should govern your acts.

Answers to Health Queries

H. P. Q.—Do high blood pressure and kidney disturbances go together or is the latter merely a result of the former?

A.—Not necessarily, although the kidneys are often productive of the trouble. Examination will determine the exact source of the trouble and then definite treatment can be advised.

G. F. Q.—What causes a pain across my chest? I have had X-rays made. What causes my ears to itch and become sore?

A.—If the X-ray does not show trouble with the lungs, your trouble may be due to neuritis.

2.—Perhaps you have eczema, in which case your diet must be corrected.

M. R. Q.—What do you advise for curing partial deafness caused by nasal catarrh. I have head noises.

A.—I would suggest that you use a nose and throat spray regularly every night and morning.

C. R. Q.—What will remove freckles?

A.—Equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide will act as a bleach. Try applying good cold cream after using, since the preparation may prove drying.

T. L. Q.—Where would one find a specialist skilled in the removal of superfluous hair

A.—Inquire at one of the hospitals in your vicinity where they will be glad to advise you along these lines.

Don't Neglect a Cold Now, Is Doctor's Advice

Don't neglect any cold nowadays. Colds are so weakening; and in a weakened condition, you are so susceptible to more serious troubles.

When you find you are catching cold, take care to keep the bowels open. That's the first precaution every doctor advises. That's the way to avoid the congestion which makes you feverish, achy, half-sick, miserable.

Millions know the quick way to open the bowels, keep them active, is with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin. Every second of the day someone, somewhere is going into a drug store to get a bottle of this splendid medicine, made from simple laxative herbs and pepsin by the formula Doctor Caldwell found so effective during his 47 years' medical practice.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin is mild and gentle in its action, but it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution. Containing neither narcotics or opiates, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it gladly.

For colds, fevers, biliousness, indigestion, headaches, heartburn, nausea, bad breath, loss of sleep—any troubles caused by poor digestion or faulty evacuation, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin will prove a blessing.

Its overwhelming success and popularity is based on real merit—on one satisfied user telling another. Your drug store sells the generous bottles on a positive money-back guarantee to give satisfaction.

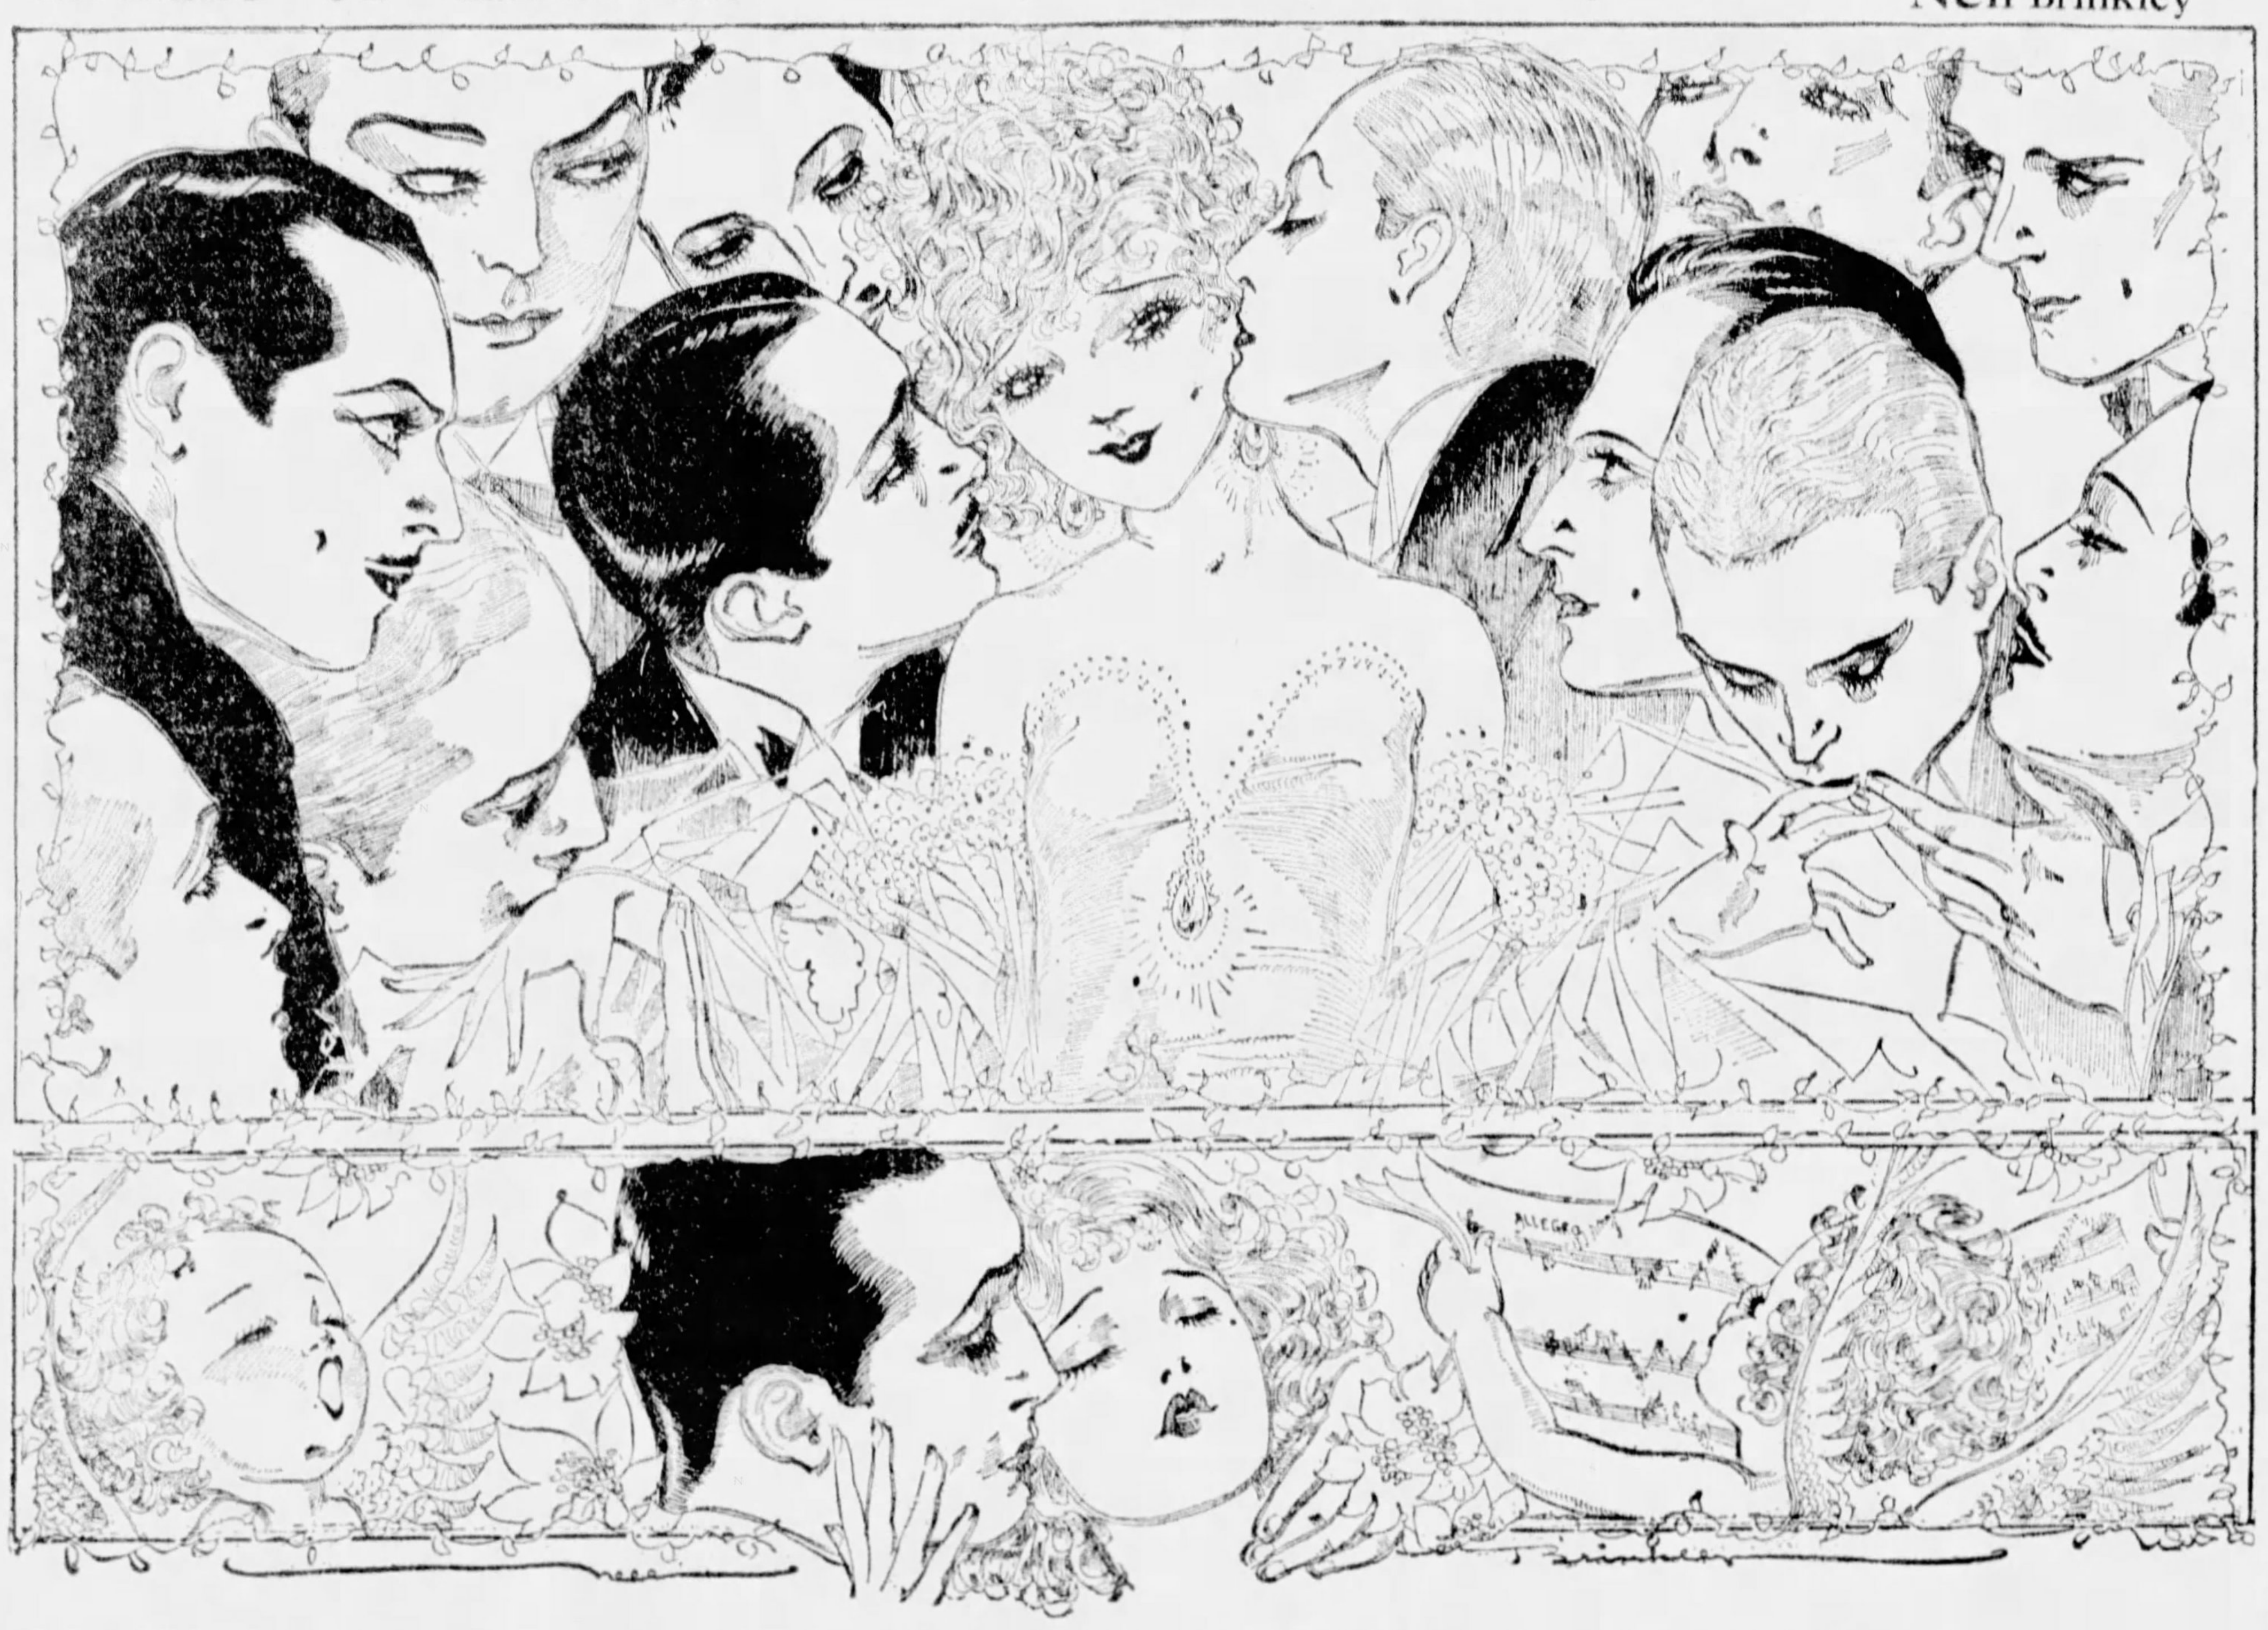
IDEAS OF HEAVEN

Drawn by
Nell Brinkley



HERE be but two. But there are as many of them as there are of "what is Love," and "what is Happiness."

Heaven! Gloriette would call it Heaven if she could be surrounded by moving picture heroes, handsome masculine faces, all turned herward like sunflowers toward the sun on a Colorado prairie! That would be Heaven. With all the other girls in the offing, contemplating the spectacle with combustible eyes.

Heaven! Below her is Gloriann, whose cherished idea of the Heaven of love is one man, the one man, good, even if he isn't so heroically handsome, loving her alone; ONE man, and an empty landscape save for Eros singing softly the Song of Love. Just that. A very different idea of Heaven.

The little old person thinks Heaven on Earth to be peace, with enough to keep him or her so she won't worry.

The true lover his one love's arms.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A CONTINUATION OF LOVE'S EMBERS

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Flares When Dicky Says She's Being "Catty"

THERE is no emotion, I believe, which so completely robs one of common sense as does jealousy. Edith Fairfax has been long enough in my life and Dicky's for me to realize that my husband is not in love with her, that he never has been, and in all probability never will be. Yet though I pride myself upon not betraying my feelings, I never hear Dicky speak of her or refer to his work with her without involuntarily visioning them together in some romantic surroundings.

My reaction to his proposal to take his car to New York with him was an instance of this unreasoning jealousy on my part. My common sense and my knowledge of Dicky told me that he no doubt wanted the car with him because he detests subways and street cars, and has the aversion of most good drivers to taxicabs. If he did chance to take Edith out for a drive, my reason said that it would mean no more than if some masculine friend went with him. Dicky is a gregarious individual and Edith is good company. I know that he likes her, and that their partnership in the art magazine not only provides them with a strong mutual interest, but often makes imperative their consultations outside of office hours.

Dicky was speaking again and I gave him all the attention which I could manage. But my thoughts and my spoken words were running in opposite directions.

"I didn't think you'd need it," he said," and I sure do. There's a good garage right near the Kelsey, and I can chuck it in there when I'm not using it."

"To drive Edith around." The words were so near my lips that I was panic-stricken for fear I might let them slip. But I managed to put an innocuous query.

"You are going to the Kelsey, then?"

"Yes, but not to our apartment. Old Harry and I are going to stay in theirs. He won't be there all of the time, but as much as I can persuade him to stay."

I felt an absurd lightening of my spirits. If he were with Harry Underwood, there would be but slight opportunity for him to see Edith Fairfax, first because the two men are sufficient unto themselves, and second because Harry does not like Edith, although he tries to conceal his aversion for her.

"Now, my 'thirdly' and I am done," Dicky said. "Ede said you asked her out here and she wants to know if this next week-end will be convenient."

The housekeeping problems involved by the impending visit of the Brixtons forced a swift negative from me.

"Oh! not this week-end, nor probably the next one. Any one after that."

"Why not the week after Christmas or this time next year?" Dicky demanded truculently. "You've got crust enough for a million pies! Ask a person out and then when she accepts the invitation in good faith, start to stall. Of course I can tell her you've changed your mind and don't want her. And then women wonder why they're called cats!"

Curiously enough there was no thought of jealousy in the quick anger which girded me for my reply. It was the age-old marital battle over entertaining guests with its opposing masculine and feminine standpoints, into which I leaped.

"Tell her anything you please," I said icily, "but I think she'll have sense enough not to believe you. I shall call her up this morning and explain about our expecting a houseful of guests with no idea of just what day they're coming, and about Marion going off to a school within the next two weeks. Being a woman, she'll be able to understand, and will be glad to come when we can devote all our attention to her as our guest of honor and not have her crowded, uncomfortable or neglected."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

B Is Right

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

One day, while sitting in the main lobby of a hotel, a woman and a man were entertaining the guests of the hotel by singing and playing the piano. While this was going on a man entered the lobby and crossed the room to the farthest corner and sat down, but he did this all very quietly. Immediately two women sitting in back of me started to say how impolite they thought he was. I also thought it was wrong, but B thinks it was correct. What do you think?

EVELYN.

I AGREE with B. I see no reason why the man should not have taken a seat where he wished, so long as he did it unobtrusively.

Going "Dutch"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When two girls are dining at a restaurant who pays the bill, or should each pay her own? Also who tips?

2. I often go to a show with my girl friend and her parents. Her father insists on paying my way and I do not feel right about it. Shouldn't he allow me to pay my own way? I am self-supporting.

IGNORANT.

THIS is entirely according to convenience. Usually it makes less confusion if the bill is a joint bill, and then is divided. Each contributes to the fee.

2. If the father insists on being the host on these occasions, you should submit graciously. Try to think of other ways of returning this courtesy—sending a gift to the home, for instance, some phonograph or player-piano records, books, magazines, or, directly for the father, a box of his favorite (and be sure that you find out which is his favorite) cigars or a carton of cigarets.

Too Many Rings

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me what is the correct order for rings to be placed on a lady's finger? The main question is, should one place two or three rings (all of which have some sort of set-in) on one finger?

A friend of mine says she thinks it is proper, but I disagree with her because, to my eye, it looks as if one is trying to overdo the thing, and the result is really disgusting to look at. However, we see so many people in street cars and other public places who do this, that I do not wish to be a critic without reason.

I. N.

ALL of this is entirely a matter of one's personal taste. But I certainly wholeheartedly agree with you. However, I don't think that one sees as much of this crowding of one finger with several rings as one used to—do you? Perhaps this is reason for comfort, artistic comfort.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, February 20.

THE astral influences ruling on this day may not be accepted as entirely auspicious. Although there will be a fair state of activity and initiative this is accompanied by an uncertain and unfavorable situation in employment and in all dealings with superiors or those in places of authority. Also the personal associations, social, domestic, affectional, may be attended by anxiety, disappointment or inharmony, unless well managed. Small worries and deceptions are likewise foreseen.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of a degree of activity and enterprise in business, but if in employment there are definite hazards of friction and inharmony. These also attend personal matters unless social, domestic and affectional safeguards be set up. Be wary of small deceptions.

A child born on this day may be active and energetic, and should succeed better in business than in employment. It should cultivate good nature, prudence and discretion, especially with the opposite sex.

Verily you are suspended like scales between your sorrow and your joy.—Kahlil Gibran.

HARRIS TO INTRODUCE NEW OLD-AGE PENSION MEASURE

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19.—Reports that the old-age pension amendment will be introduced here next week caused considerable excitement among the legislators today. The measure, a proposed amendment to the constitution, will be introduced in the Senate next Tuesday by Senator Frank J. Harris, of Crafton.

It is the same bill that caused the biggest fight of the last session. Introduced by Mrs. Flora M. Vare, Philadelphia, it slipped through the Senate without trouble and seemed likely to meet the approval of the House when W. L. Mellon, Joseph R. Grundy and Gov. John S. Fisher brought all the pressure they could command against it. After a bitter fight it was defeated.

The old-age pension bill is sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Eagles. The decision to reintroduce it this year was made at a conference last night attended by Senator Harris, John F. O'Toole and J. Howard Devlin, of Pittsburgh, and members of the order and of the Legislature from many sections of the state.

PROOF OF BRIBE CHARGE ASKED

HARRISBURG, Feb. 19. — The House last night adopted unanimously a resolution of Representative Howe, Allegheny, calling on Dr. Arthur C. Morgan, past president of the Pennsylvania Medical Society, to furnish the names of legislators he charged with taking money from the chiropractors. Dr. Morgan has until next Monday night to supply the information.

Dr. Morgan made the charge in a speech last November in Philadelphia that members of the Legislature had accepted money to work for the chiropractors in getting a license bill through this session.

The resolution provides that he furnish the names of the members taking the money and also the persons making the offer.

Boy Scouts to Take City Traffic Count

An ordinance authorizing the payment of $900 to Boy Scouts for a traffic count to be taken on May 23 of this year was presented in City Council yesterday. Eight hundred boys will be engaged in the work. Each is to receive 50 cents and lunch money.

KEEP YOUR STOMACH YOUNG AND SWEET

Every bite of food you eat MUST be digested, and the waste matter eliminated. That's sure. If your stomach is sluggish and old, from the excessive acids which keep eating away the gastric juices, you must dissolve them, or you never will be free from indigestion, sour risings, bloating and drowsiness after you eat.

Get a package of Pape's Diapepsin from your nearest drug store and chew one of the tablets after meals. Instantly the distress is relieved, it dissolves the acids, sweetens the stomach and you will have an appetite again like you had when a child.

All drug stores have Pape's Diapepsin. More than 5 million packages are used a year.

There are no bargains in health

To safeguard precious health and preserve your teeth, avail yourself of the best skill and knowledge of dental science. It is economy. It is the only reasonably sure means of preventing disease that attacks neglected gums, thus ravaging the system, robbing youth, and often causing loss of teeth. This disease is the more serious for only dental care can stem its advance once it is contracted.

See your dentist at least every six months.

Brush your teeth regularly. But don't forget that teeth are only as healthy as the gums. So brush gums vigorously, morning and night, with the dentifrice made for the purpose, Forhan's for the Gums. It helps to keep them firm and sound.

After you have used Forhan's for a few days you'll notice a vast improvement in the way your gums look and feel—firmer, sounder—thus strong enough to resist disease. Also you'll find that Forhan's cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay.

There are no bargains in health. Get a tube of Forhan's from your druggist and start using it today.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Engagements Including Pittsburgh Families Hold Spotlight

THOSE of our folks who are "on the wing" have been monopolizing space for several weeks. With an occasional word concerning our next crop of debutantes, we've been fairly well limited to the travelers as a source of news—a prolific source, of course, but it is getting a bit monotonous, isn't it? Perhaps if we were doing some of the traveling—the city does get a little tiresome during this season of the year, doesn't it?

But now I have some interesting bits of news to tell you, and they concern neither travelers nor buds-to-be. Engagement announcements involving Pittsburgh families of importance hold the spotlight today. One is that of Martha Watson Liggett, daughter of Mrs. William Gamble Liggett, who lived here for so many years, but is now making her home in St. Petersburg, Fla. Mrs. Liggett has announced Martha's betrothal to Joseph Dill Allison, of Selma, Ala.

Martha, you know, is a sister of Mrs. S. Brainard West, of Barnesdale street. And, by the way, Mrs. West is leaving tonight with her small son, S. Brainard West, Jr., to spend about two months with her mother in St. Petersburg. So far as I know, no date has been set for the Liggett-Allison wedding.

THEN just last night, the engagement of a member of another well-known local family to an eastern man was announced. The Edward William Gwinners were hosts at a small dinner in their Fifth avenue home to announce the betrothal of their daughter, Sara Louise, to Frederick Eaton Crispin, son of the Clarence Gearhart Crispins, of New York.

Sara Louise is a Rosemary School girl, and the man she is to marry attended St. Paul's School in Concord, N. H. He is a member of the class of 1930 at Princeton. You might be interested to know, too, that Mr. Crispin is a direct descendant of Capt. William Crispin and Capt. Thomas Holme and is a grandson of Mrs. Frederick H. Eaton, of New York.

There was another engagement announcement in the Crispin family last week. This was the betrothal of Mr. Crispin's elder brother, Benjamin Eaton Crispin, and Laurie Tenney Klock, daughter of the M. Crouse Klocks, of Syracuse, N. Y. This engagement was made known, I understand, on Saturday.

I HAVE still another engagement to tell you about, that of a Detroit girl who is related to several Pittsburgh families and who has made many friends when she has visited here. And she is going to marry a man who is living in Pittsburgh but is a scion of a Philadelphia family.

But to get down to facts, I am talking about the engagement of Frances Larimer Miller, daughter of the Harvey Millers, of Detroit, to Harris Goddard Haviland, of Pittsburgh, son of the Walter W. Havilands, of Philadelphia. Frances was the first Detroit girl to make her debut this winter, having been presented at a luncheon given by her mother in November. Later, the Millers gave a dinner for their daughter in the Detroit Country Club. And you remember, of course, that Frances visited her aunt and uncle, the William McKennan Reeds, of Fifth avenue, and her cousin, Clarissa Reed, of Murrayhill avenue, during the holidays. Several parties were given for the popular Detroit debutante while she was here.

Frances is a graduate of the Liggett School and she also studied at Howe-Marot in Thompson, Conn. Mr. Haviland was graduated from Haverford College, Haverford, Pa.

They are due in New York on Thursday, I believe, having sailed on the Lapland, and are planning to spend a few days in Gotham before they come back home. And just going abroad are the Henry Olivers and their daughter, Mary, of Sewickley. They will sail Friday on the Volcania for Cannes, France, and will spend several months traveling on the continent.

College Club Plans Anniversary Program

THE College Club will celebrate its twentieth anniversary on March 22 with a special program. Speakers engaged for the month for the regular Friday afternoon lectures include Dr. James S. Tippett, director of the Community School; the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson and Congressman Stephen G. Porter. A change has been necessitated in this week's program and the dramatic sketch which was to have been presented by the altruistic committee has been postponed until April. The hostesses for the day include Mrs. R. H. Brownless, Mrs. S. L. Goodale, Mrs. S. B. Linhart, Mrs. J. K. Everhart, Mrs. William R. Work, Mrs. J. F. Biddle and Mrs. W. F. Rittman.

MEMBERS of the Mt. Oliver Women's Civic Club will dress in colonial costume for the meeting tonight in the home of Mrs. C. J. Evans, Stamm avenue. Assistant hostesses are Mrs. R. H. Tully, Mrs. David Davis and Mrs. H. C. Ulrich.

AN enjoyable colonial party was held by the Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg in the local "Y" yesterday afternoon. The room was decorated with shawls, flags and pictures of historical interest, owned by club members. Candlesticks of various makes were in evidence on the tables, and added much to the atmosphere. The owners of these decorations were called upon to discuss their history, and this, together with a description of the costumes worn by the members, proved most interesting. The costumes which called for special comment were worn by Mrs. J. E. Nelson, the leader for the afternoon, Mrs. C. D. Armstrong, Mrs. T. D. Lynch, Mrs. J. C. McQuiston, Mrs. Dean Harvey, Mrs. R. H. Dibble and S. B. Cuthbert and Mrs. C. O. Anderson.

A colonial program was presented by Mrs. Ruth Bowers Gibson, violinist; Mrs. Estelle Healy Close, reader and soprano; Mrs. Grace Blenko Martin, pianist, and Miss Helen Rose Gibson, dancer. Old songs were sung by the club's choral and by Mrs. J. T. Parsons, Mrs. W. C. Hawley, Mrs. T. D. Lynch, Mrs. William Findley, Mrs. Guy Scott, Mrs. W. L. McDaniel, Mrs. S. B. Cuthbert and Mrs. William Forrester.

MRS. WILLIAM BRYCE, Jr., of Bedford, state president of the Parent-Teacher Associations, and Mrs. Charles E. Roe, of Denver, national field secretary, shared honors at the tea which Mrs. Daniel N. Bulford gave in the Woman's City Club yesterday afternoon. Officers and chairmen of committees of the Allegheny County P. T. A., of which Mrs. Bulford is past president, were guests. Mrs. O. B. Hughes, Mrs. Bulford's successor, presided at the tea table and the aides were Mrs. O. L. Clovis, Mrs. Robert E. Seldon and Mrs. Curtis C. Mechling. A delightful program of soprano numbers was presented by Miss Alberta Irvin, accompanied by Miss Helen Machette.

GOOD will and intelligence were named as bridges to a better understanding between France and America by Dr. Andre Morize when he spoke before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning on "America Through Latin Eyes." The exagerated idealism which immediately followed the war has disappeared and instead of the exclamation point has come the question mark, Dr. Morize said, and destructive ticism has become the fashion of the day. Intellectual prudence must be exercised, Dr. Moride pointed out, the racial and traditional differences must be kept in mind and allowances made for consequent differences in reactions. The tourist and the press, through superficial observations and misrepresentation, were held responsible for much misunderstanding between the nations.

"NEW COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD" was chosen yesterday by the Pittsburgh Literary and Musical Club for its next year's study topic. Musi for yesterday's program consisted of piano solos by Mrs. Gertrude Robinson Dodds and songs by Mrs. Elizabeth Stephens Cross, who was accompanied by Mrs. Dodds. The papers, which were on "Japan and China," "Japan and the United States" and "Earthquakes" were given by Mrs. Walter Ure, Dr. Fannie Davis and Mrs. Adelaide Cornell. Mrs. George Wallace, whose husband was an associate of Bishop McKim, Episcopal missionary bishop to Japan, gave an intimate sketch of the life and work of American missionaries in that country.

MRS. ELLA DALTON was hostess in the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. W. Isett, for yesterday's meeting of the Carnegie Monday Club. Mrs. George Hosack served as leader of the program, which included vocal solos by Mrs. John Conrad, accompanied by Mrs. W. W. Andrews, and papers on "Mussolini, the Idol of Italy," "Fascism and the Church," "The Mafia," and current events, by Mrs. P. W. Greasel, Mrs. T. J. George, Mrs. George McFarland and Mrs. T. E. Marshell.

* * *

MRS. S. J. CORBETT, chairman of the ways and means department of the Congress of Clubs, is taking reservations for the series of five weekly bridge lessons which Mrs. Florence Chisholm Douglass will give under auspices of the department at the Congress beginning tomorrow. Reservations may also be made at the clubhouse.

HILLTOP REVIEW, No. 251, Women's Benefit Association, will have a George Washington social and bingo party in the All-Nations Bank Building, Twelfth and Carson streets, on Thursday evening.

MRS CHARLES REITELL will speak concerning the history of Pennsylvania [illegible] the meeting of the literary group of the University of Pittsburgh Women's Association tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. W. N. St. Peter, Avalon street. Members of the committee include Mrs. D. G. Craig, Mrs. A. E. Emerson, Mrs. C. T. Engelder, Mrs. W. M. Parrish, Mrs. G. H. Robinson, Mrs. F. A. Rotandaro, Mrs. L. P. Sieg and Mrs. E. W. Whited.

MRS. MARIE TELLO PHILLIPS, president; Mrs. Richard Neff, vice president, and Mrs. Galen C. Hartman, secretary, of the Poetry Society, all being in Miami, Mrs. Lillie Reed McMaster presided yesterday at the luncheon meeting of the society in the Congress of Clubs. In the usual contest, a poem entitled "Home," by Mrs. Dulce Fiske Fairman, was awarded the prize.

Look years younger
in 5 Minutes

Five Minutes Works Wonders

The newest discovery in beauty culture is that creamed magnesia is much better for the complexion than any soap or cleansing cream. It beautifies the skin instantly, in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because skin impurities are acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And now, dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with creamed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face.

It reduces enlarged pores to the finest, smoothest texture almost as if by magic. Being astringent, it drives away the tell-tale signs of age. You will marvel at the effect of your first five-minute facial massage. It rejuvenates the skin so quickly that any woman can look lovely tonight, years younger. It's marvelous how magnesia dissolves blackheads, clears eruptions and corrects oily skin.

And because it is so mild, mothers use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing as a face wash for fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. Not being a cold cream, it cannot grow hair on the face. It removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than soap or cold cream. It changes dull, sallow skin to ivory-white and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. Test it on those clogged nose pores that stand out so boldly. Let it whiten your neck. It will also keep your hands soft and white. Until recently, creamed magnesia was used only by New York doctors' wives, and nurses. But now the large druggists everywhere find it hard to keep enough on hand to supply the demand. To get genuine creamed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. The dollar size holds three fifty-cent bottles. Get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight. It's Guaranteed!

Ladder and Saw Used In Robbery of Store

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 19.—West Virginia police today were keeping a sharp watch for automobile thieves who looted the George L. Jolliffe store at Grafton and hauled away 50 dresses and four fur coats valued at $3,000.

The men brought a ladder with them and sawed bars of a second-story window.

Two Children Hurt As Auto Door Opens

SOMERSET, Pa., Feb. 19.—Hurled to the concrete road when a rear door of their father's automobile accidentally flew open along the Somerset-Friedens highway, near here, Robert and Ruth Herwig, 4 and 9, respectively, children of Robert Herwig, of Stoyestown, were badly hurt. They are in Community Hospital here.

10 Plant Gas Fume Victims Recovered

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 13.—The 10 men confined to the hospital here as a result of being overcome by carbon monoxide gas fumes in the plant of the American Sheet & Tinplate Company at Scottdale on Saturday morning are "out of danger," it was said today, and will be permitted to return to their homes.

MUTT AND JEFF AUTO SUSPECT PAIR HELD

Two boys "Mut and Jeff" of comic strip fame, as to sizes, were held for court yesterday by the Federal Commissioner on a charge of transporting a stolen automobile from Warren, O., to Cheswick. They were James Young, 14, of Parnassus, small for his age, and Glen Shaffer, 17, of Cortland, O., 6 feet 3 inches tall. Theft of some pretzels was indirectly the cause of their falling into the hands of the federal authorities.

Yesterday was the younger boy's birthday and it was celebrated by his being placed in the county juvenile detention rooms and his elongated companion sent to jail. Stealing automobiles seems to be a weakness of the Parnassus youth, who, according to his own admissions in the marshal's office, stole three in less than a week.

Young said he escaped last week from the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza where he had been sent for stealing an automobile. When he got away from the school, he said, he stole a machine and went to his home where he stayed all night without his mother knowing of his presence. Early the following morning, according to his story, he stole another machine from a garage and went to Warren. There, he said, the machine was wrecked, and after abandoning it he became acquainted with Shaffer, and together they stole another car and were on their way to Pittsburgh when caught by Cheswick police for stealing some pretzels in a store.

The police, learning they had an alleged stolen automobile, turned them over to Deputy United States Marshal John Lowers.

"The Fox," whose brutal crimes against women horrified the entire state of California. He is now serving Life Imprisonment in San Quentin Penitentiary.

The Brutal Crime that Shocked California!

"THE MISSING HEAD" has never been found—but two young men were hung for the murder of this beautiful young girl. The details of this actual tragedy are completely revealed in the March Issue of True Detective Mysteries.

"THE ST. LOUIS GANG RULE TERROR"—a thrilling narrative that sheds light on the St. Louis Underworld. Also in the March Issue of True Detective Mysteries.

"I ESCAPED FROM THE LIVING HELL OF DEVIL'S ISLAND" is the true story of a French ex-convict who suffered the tortures of the damned to flee the worst penal colony in the world. Complete in the March Issue of True Detective Mysteries.

IT was shortly after 11 o'clock—the night of April 16th, 1927. Theatre was over.

Miss Betty Haldane, beautiful young actress of the Hollywood Show House, Los Angeles, hummed happily as she started for home. Next to her, on the seat of her little roadster, lay a huge bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley—the gift of an admirer.

She drove along, little dreaming of the fate that lurked in the shadows of her pretty bungalow.

Betty skillfully guided the car into the garage—shut off the motor and turned to the door.

A tall, heavy-set figure of a man, pistol in hand, loomed in the doorway.

"Keep quiet!" he muttered, "Don't scream, or I'll kill you!"

Quickly realizing the situation, Miss Haldane twisted an exquisite emerald from her finger and thrust it into his outstretched hand—then advanced to push past him.

"Not so fast, Cutie!" leered the thug, slipping both ring and gun into his pocket.

A muffled cry—a short, frantic struggle and this lovely young girl fell limp in the clutches of a brutal fiend.

Read the thrilling details of this startling criminal case—the crime that shocked the entire state of California—set the combined police forces on a man-hunt to catch "The Fox." The clue—his capture—escape and subsequent re-capture—the trial and his sentences aggregating 300 years at hard labor. "On The Trail of The Fox" is complete in the March Issue of TRUE DETECTIVE MYSTERIES.

IMPORTANT!

True Detective Mysteries prints only authentic reports of actual crimes—narrating them in all their dramatic, thrilling aspects—but always faithfully clinging to facts. True Detective Mysteries is the only "detective" magazine which deals exclusively with true criminal mysteries.

"LIMPING CHARLIE" CLEAVER IS DRUNK. He drops a careless remark. It was his downfall. A daring train robbery, a spectacular gun fight—and Charlie is captured—eleven bullet wounds in his body. "Tapped Wires," in the March Issue of True Detective Mysteries tells the actual story of the famous Evergreen Train Robbery for which Charlie Cleaver is now serving 35 years in Atlanta Prison.

"THE MYSTERIOUS MURDER OF MRS. HASKELL"—is the case they still whisper about in Texas. Don't miss this amazing story—complete in the March Issue of True Detective Mysteries.

Listerine kills 200,000,000 germs in 15 seconds

Did you realize that Listerine was so powerful?

Hard to believe, isn't it, when you reflect how pleasant and safe Listerine is?

Yet in repeated tests employing the stubborn B. Typhosus (typhoid) germ, used by the Government to test antiseptics, Listerine killed 200 million in 15 seconds!

Now you can understand why millions use Listerine to check ordinary colds and sore throat—both caused by germs.

What a funny way to escape a cold

Countless colds start when germs are carried to the mouth on food. By using Listerine on the hands before every meal, you attack such germs and lessen the risk of cold. Remember this, mothers, when handling baby's food

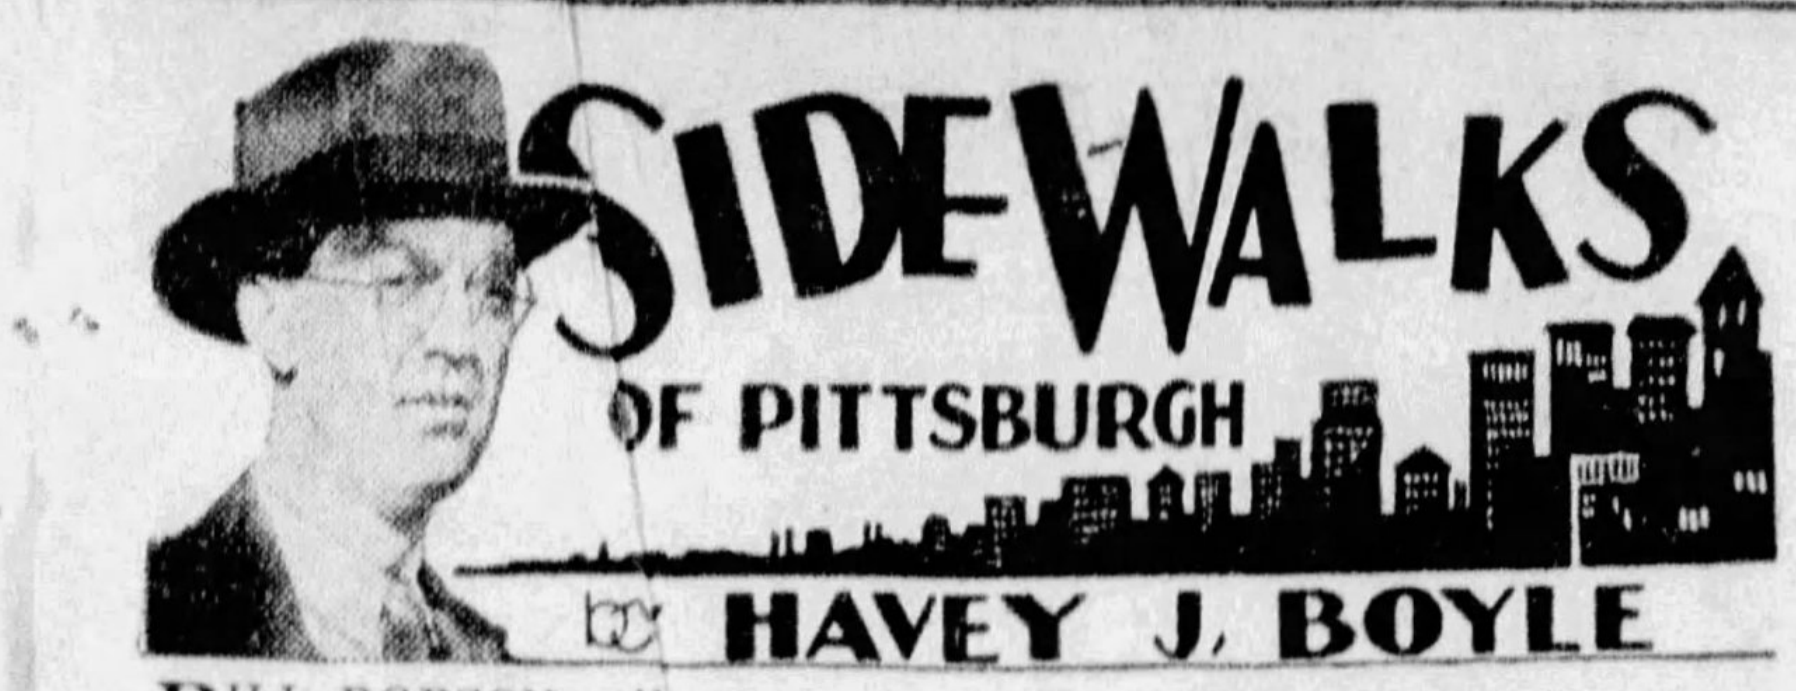
NORTH SIDE'S GOLDEN RUM FLOOD DETAILED



SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

BILL ROBSON calls up to say he is going on the air tonight—WJAS at 7:15 o'clock—with a new feature. Bill plans to give a column or so of Pittsburgh impressions. If his plan works out he will be the first radio columnist.

I can't see why it won't be a good thing. Radio audiences are always on the hearout for something new. To help out Mr. Robson I am herewith donating one blind beggar man, the scenic beauty of Mt. Washington, and the polite movie usher, who suddenly going berserk from many orders to be polite to the customers, said to a fussy old lady customer: "Madam, where the hell do you care to sit?"

What able cartoonist has quit newspaper work to go into the advertising business? Answer: Mr. George Sherman, scholarly, talented and humorous on his professional side, affable, witty and interesting on the personal side. One of the most pleasant evenings I can remember was a rainy night recently where in a certain coffee house I remarked to Mr. Sherman that I liked his cartoons and Mr. Sherman came right back with: "Yes, and I'll bet there are worse columns than yours, too."

Mr. Sherman is no relation to the late general who went theological in describing war.

AND while this is not Drama Week, I have another note about another theatrical fellow, who as luck would have it, is on the North Side. He operates a cinema palace and stimulates trade by intriguing customers with coupons. At a number of nearby stores customers in making a purchase are given a ticket for the movie in question, which when presented with a nickel, gains admission.

Another proprietor gives a piece of silverware on one night to customers and on another night he passes out china.

NINE SALOONS RAIDED

Consumption of water as a beverage was on the increase on the South Side today as a sequel to activities yesterday of John D. Pennington's dry agents, who raided nine saloons, seized two automobiles and confiscated a large still.

Armed with warrants issued on the strength of "buys," the agents descended upon the nine establishments simultaneously. They reported finding all but one "wet." The raids brought the total on the South Side to 17 since Friday.

A clubhouse at 3900 Brownsville road, Brentwood, was raided after agents reported seeing two men carry whisky into the place from an automobile.

STUDIED WHILE POUNDING BEAT

In the lore of self-made men there comes a tale of a policeman who added a dash of poetry, prose and rhetoric to the profession of nightsticks and violence.

The policeman is Anthony Block—now a captain in the district of Allegheny. He is the product of the night school of Allegheny High, having attended classes there for four years during which time he "pounded" his beat at night in the downtown and Hill districts.

Returning from service overseas in 1919, he married, drifted from one job to another, and finally found his way into the rank and file of the police department. Mrs. Block protested this last move, having at that time (according to Capt. Block) her own uncomplimentary views regarding the police department.

GOES TO SCHOOL

Block's early education was self-neglected. Contact with people broadened his contempt for ignorance, and his desire to learn brought him to Latimer Junior High School where under the supervision of Miss Leona Spense his elementary education was completed.

Miss Spense urged him to continue his education. Accordingly, she introduced him to Albert Lessenbury, at that time principal of Allegheny High Night School. There he attended classes in uniform for three years. Incidentally, according to Capt. Block, Miss Spense and Mr. Lessenbury were recently married.

With the completion of his education, Capt. Block felt deserving of a promotion, and shortly after the election of Mayor Kline he was appointed a lieutenant. His examination for that office revealed a perfect score. Six months later, at the age of 29, he was appointed captain—the youngest policeman holding that office in the city of Pittsburgh.

TO EDUCATE CHILDREN

Capt. Block lives at 808 James street. His three small children, the captain says, will have all the benefits education can bring them.

Speaking of education in a general way, he says: "To appreciate fully the advantage of having an education one first must have realized the disadvantage of having been without.

City's Aid Asked To Stop Thefts By Tenants

Councilmanic action to help stop the theft of household equipment by tenants is asked in a communication presented by the Washington Real Estate Company.

The company declares that landlords throughout the city are being mulcted of many hundreds of dollars yearly by renters who sell kitchen sinks, copper plumbing and other equipment to junk dealers.

The real estate firm petitions Council to pass a bill making the junk dealers liable for buying such stolen property.

SANER CODE OF ETHICS URGED IN TECH LECTURES

"The traditionalized, puritanic code of ethics of the past is gradually giving way to a new and saner code, as college students study the scientific aspects of social hygiene," declared Dr. Edith Hale Swift, nationally-known social hygiene lecturer, who is here today. Dr. Swift came to Pittsburgh as the guest of Carnegie Institute of Technology, where she is lecturing before students.

Dr. Swift expressed the belief that the problem of sex and social hygiene is one that college men and women must view in the light of science, if a sane and practicable code of ethics is to result.

"As men and women become more familiar with the scientific causes and effects underlying the problem, the quicker they will solve the problem for themselves," she said.

Passersby went to Bosco's aid, but before the animal was beaten off it had bitten the boy several times on the right arm.

Boys Admit Thefts, Sent to Morganza

Fred Husack, 17, 604 Cabot way, South Side, and Joseph Kapec, 17, same address, were sent to the training school at Morganza today by Judge Thomas J. Ford in Criminal Court, after they had pleaded guilty to robbery. They are said to have robbed Atlantic and Pacific stores at South Fifteenth and Sarah streets and at 1303 Carson street, and the Terminal restaurant, 311 Carson street, last month.

PILOT, 2,000 FEET IN AIR, LIGHTS FIELD FOR LANDING

Roy J. Wensley, engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, inventor of robots, scored another triumph last night when an apparatus developed by him turned on lights of the Newark (N. J.) airport when a button was pushed by an incoming mail pilot in his plane, 2,000 feet aloft.

The pilot, Peter Cranston, touched the button. A wind siren on the plane blew three shrill blasts. On the field below a sound detector was set in operation, and instantly the field was flooded with the glow of the airport's 24,000,000 candle-power flood lights.

Wensley, who has made many developments in electrical "men" and has won fame with his "Mr. Televox," announced completion of the sound device here three months ago. It had a preliminary test at Bettis Field.

Two inventions of the last two years made the new lighting device possible. One is the Knowles grid-glow and the other a vibrating reed selector. It is estimated that the energy a fly expends in crawling half an inch up a wall is sufficient in sound vibration to set the Knowles tube in action. The apparatus will respond only to the exact pitch for which it is set.

JAILED IN FAKE BEAUTY TEST

Stephen Ernest, 30, a married man, of 401 Kambach street, Mt. Washington, accused of approaching schoolgirls to enter a beauty contest, confessed in Morals Court today that the contest was "all a wild dream."

Two Mt. Washington girls, Margaret Radaker, 13, of 442 Ruxton street, and Betty Loeffler, 14, of 72 Estella avenue, told of Ernest asking them to submit to being measured for the fake contest.

FOOT CRUSHED, ASKS $25,000

Charging that instead of raising a street car off his foot, employes of the Pittsburgh Railways Company had backed the car over the foot, crushing it so it had to be amputated, George Heckman, 54, of Troy Hill, has filed suit for $25,000 damages in Common Pleas Court against the company. The accident occurred February 6, 1928, when Heckman was run over while crossing the Troy Hill road to the steps leading to Geottman street.

TAX ON ACTORS HELD UNFAIR

Myron C. Fagan, author of "Indiscretion," the play at the Nixon, today indorsed Louella O. Parsons' view of the injustice of taxing actors' incomes just as if they were persons with steady earnings.

"An actor is virtually a vagabond," said Mr. Fagan, "in the sense that he has no assured income, but lives on milk and honey one year and on bread and water the next. It is unjust to tax him as if he were a business man. Persons with uncertain earnings should not be taxed on the income of each year, but on their average annual earnings of, say, the last five years."

Louella Parsons' story of the annoyance to which motion picture actors are subjected by the income tax collectors was telegraphed from Los Angeles and published in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph yesterday.

"They may make large earnings one year, and, through the income tax with its surtax, be forced to turn over a large part of the money to the government," Mr. Fagan explained. "The next year they may earn next to nothing. As a concrete example, let us take the case of Milton Sills, one of the highest paid of the film actors. His earnings last year were large, but he injured his health in his last picture and may not be able to make another for months."

No Accusers Appear, Four Youths Freed

Four North Side youths, arrested in connection with a series of petty robberies, were discharged by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today, when police said it was impossible to get witnesses to appear against them. They were Irwin Fay, 17, of 4029 Perrysville avenue; John Isler, 17, of 3603 Perrysville avenue; Edward Dietrich, 18, of 18 Bascom street, and Nick Zubsick, 17, of 3925 Menlo street. Two other youths were discharged several days ago in the same case.

Mrs. Gunhild Schultz has the distinction of being the first Braddock resident to receive a letter carried by Col. Charles Lindbergh, having received a letter from her brother, E. A. Johnson, from Balboa, Canal Zone.

The letter was carried by Lindbergh to Washington, and was sent from there by train to Mrs. Schultz. Johnson is stationed at Balboa with the U. S. S. Altair. He is in the air mail service.

Southpaws Battle Right-Handers In Rum Cases

"This counsel table is all wrong," observed Federal Prosecutor Ralph H. Smith, starting the North Side conspiracy trial.

His remark applied to a change in courtroom since the first conspiracy trial. At that time government counsel occupied the left side of the table, the nearest to the jury, according to custom. Moving to the opposite side of the building, they now occupy the right hand side of the table.

DROP SEARCH FOR PASTOR

Active search for the Rev. Harry H. Rutchel, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Vandergrift, had been abandoned today by Vandergrift police, who were of the opinion that Mr. Rutchel, missing from his home since Thursday, was not being detained against his wishes.

Meanwhile the Missing Persons Bureau here had been able to trace the clergyman's movements up to Friday, when he bought a ticket from Pittsburgh to Vandergrift, after coming here from Seward, Pa. His wife received a letter from him on that day, informing her that he would be home Saturday.

At the pastor's home, his wife and three children awaited his return. Members of the pastor's church were expecting him to bring back tickets for a social the church was to hold this week. Mr. Rutchel had planned to have the tickets printed in Pittsburgh.

WITNESS HOST ACCUSES PAIR AS DEALERS

The absorbing tale of two golden years, when the flow of liquor on the North Side reached its floodtide under prohibition, again is inscribed on the records of the United States Court.

The Twenty-third Ward case, which has as defendants Fred Stratman, once a prohibition agent, and Oscar Reister, both described as ward concessionaires, was given to the jury this afternoon with Judge Nelson McVicar's charge.

Immediately attorneys began to select a jury for the trial of the Twenty-first Ward defendants—Daniel McLaughlin, heading the seven defendants.

GOVERNMENT RESTS

The government rested just before the noon recess after calling more than a score of witnesses, hotele and saloonkeepers and small store proprietors, all confessed liquor dispensers, virtually all foreign-born and speaking English with difficulty. All told the same story, with a general faith in detail, involving Stratman as the solicitor of trade in "mooney" and "good stuff" at $4 a gallon and $75 a case respectively, also the collector. A few identified Reister as the delivery man.

Defense counsel, at the conclusion of the government case, offered a motion for binding instructions of acquittal, asserting that no conspiracy had been proved, that the overt acts alleged had not been definitely shown and that counts, such as manufacture, had not been established. This motion was refused, except as to manufacture.

AUNT SUES FOR VET INSURANCE

Mary C. Lewis, of 2450 Wadsworth street, is suing Virginia Turner Moffet, of 2521 Allequippa street, and the government for the insurance, asserting that, in the first place, the first defendant wasn't the legitimate wife of William R. Moffet and, secondly, that Moffet was prevailed upon to change beneficiaries while he was in "incompetent condition."

Moffet was a member of Company F, Three Hundred and Seventy-second Infantry. The aunt relates that she was named beneficiary upon agreeing to pay the premiums. Furthermore, she reports, Moffet, who died last December 5, owed her $1,000.

County Prosecutor Bill Passes Senate

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 19.—The Senate today passed finally the bill of Representative Joseph Marcus to increase the salary and number of assistant district attorneys in Allegheny County. It provides the number of assistants shall not be more than 16 and that salaries shall range from $4,000 to $7,500.

Two Ask New Trials In Club Dry Case

New trials for John Coney and Franch C. Peters, two of six defendants convicted in the Union Fishing Club liquor case last week, were asked in Federal Court today. Counsel, in filing the motions, held the government had produced no evidence of actual liquor sales by the two. Coney was an assistant steward and Peters a waiter.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.

The war didn't scare the Senate as bad as Jim Reed's joke, that he was going to tell who voted dry and drank not only wet, but anything (whether it was wet or not). Some haven't slept since he threatened to do it.

No man that has left that Senate in many a day will be missed like Jim. Ain't it funny how many hundreds of thousands of soldiers we can recruit with nerve, but we just can't find one politician in a million with backbone?

We got a new cure for the flu here in New York. Mayor Walker's doctor prescribed the Stribling-Sharkey fight.

Yours, WILL.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Bound for Reno to get a divorce, and ashamed of the fact because he believes the wreck of his home signifies a colossal failure on his part, Dick Stuyvesant meets Felicia Brett on the train. He lies to her about his destination, saying he is going to Sacramento. She tells him she is on the way to San Francisco to join her father. At the hotel in Reno he finds that an old friend, John Berkeley, affectionately known as J. B., has invited him to share his suite. J. B., confirmed bachelor and rake, hears Dick's story of his marital crash and urges him to forget all about it and take life as he finds it. Dick is half convinced that J. B.'s outlook on life is correct, but he decides he will not give way to such a useless existence so long as there are in the world good women like the girl he met on the train.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER II.

DICK and J. B. arose late. They had an "eye-opener," then sauntered down to the dining room for breakfast. As they passed through the lobby a pretty, fair-haired girl, with dancing eyes set off by a dress of firecracker red chiffon, caught J. B.'s arm.

"Hello, there, J. B. How ah you'all?" A sweet drawling voice, heavy with the accent of the South. "We-ah th'owin' a palty tonight, J. B.—Lola Penn's graduatin'!"

J. B. acknowledged the greeting with a careless "Hello, sweetness," and good-naturedly responded to the girl's obvious desire for an introduction to Dick.

Mrs. Betty Rogers, of Savannah, Ga., recently arrived.

"Yo' heah fo' the Cuah, too?" she asked impudently.

Dick was torn between irritation and amusement. It was none of her business why he was here! But this was Reno. It would be silly to pretend, so he nodded.

"You'll must be suah an' come to the pahty!" Her smile was for Dick, alone. "Don't you fo'get, Big Boy!"

Forgetting was exactly what he intended to do, reflected Dick, rather grimly, as they entered the dining room.

"Read 'em and weep," J. B. commented as they took their seats. "Look at the comic valentine on your left, Dick. Even Queen Mary would suspect that hat! And next to her—A Study in Pessimism—slightly out of drawing. To think that once they were all young and foolish and loved by young and foolish males, with mutual vows of eternal devoiton!"

Dick smiled sourly, while his eyes continued to circle the room.

If one could only look at it all as a play, a spectacle! But individuals stood out—a girl in grey, her eyes dark with tragedy above her blatantly rouged lips; a gentle, middle-aged woman who was frankly crying; a tired shabby mother with two fretful children. Women both too young and too old to bear the disillusion which had come to them, the bitterness . . .

"Hey, what's up?" J. B. demanded, suddenly.

Dick's face had grown white and then, abruptly, a dull red that might have been anger or embarrassment or shame. It was, in fact, a mixture of all three.

A few tables away sat Felicia Brett with another girl and two young men. Evidently a very congenial, jolly party. Dick could not know that the other girl was Peg Hodge, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Tom Hodge, old friends with whom Felicia was staying; nor that the boys were Peg's fellow students at the University of Nevada. Dick's only thought was of Felicia's deceit.

On her way to San Francisco, she had said. And he had believed her. Had thought her innocent and honest. Bah! She was no better, probably, than the little Rogers person with the inviting eyes! In Reno! Felicia, the girl who was keeping up his faith in women! And already she had found herself a man. Probably any man would do!

"What the heck—?" J. B. demanded.

Dick laughed bitterly. "What the heck!" he repeated, but with a far different inflection. All right, he was through trying to be decent! J. B. had the right idea! He looked away from Felicia, from the warm curve of gold hair sweeping her cheek, the line of rounded chin and young throat. "Let's hunt up the Rogers kid and buy her a drink," he said. "I feel like action!"

Well—he'd certainly get it, he mused some 15 hours later as he stood unsteadily in what he hoped was Betty Rogers' room, looking for the bottle of Scotch she had sent him to get from her bureau. Through an open door across the hall he could see cases of empty gin bottles piled beside a bed; a corner littered with an overflow of dirty glasses, empty syphons and ginger ale bottles. This was a party!

The entire fourth floor of the hotel was given over to Lola Penny's merrymakers. A jazz orchestra blared from a small ballroom, and disheveled couples danced in and out of rooms, along the corridor—everywhere but down the elevator shaft, and sometimes mysteriously disappeared—to return or not; no one cared.

One room was dedicated for the evening for the cinematographic art, and a few thousand feet of film, produced in Cuba—where, apparently, men were men and women were darned glad of it—was run over and over before a delighted audience.

Down one side of the ballroom an elaborate table had been erected. It had served to hold the buffet supper, but now it resembled more than anything else the Mississippi Basin after the flood. Wreckage and chaos. Sandwiches mashed and broken, champagne-soaked cakes, broken glasses, countless cigaret stubs and crushed match boxes littered its surface and spilled over on the floor. A miniature railroad track encircled the entire table and the little engine, hauling its tiny flat cars with their cargo of mints, salted nuts and cigarets, was still whizzing about madly. No one had remembered to turn off the switch.

Lola Penny, the hostess, sat limp and alone in a chair, her hand over her eyes, apparently out of tune with her frenzied guests, nor caring that they paid no attention to her. Beyond her, in a far corner of the hall, the colored porter, especially engaged for the evening to take care of guests "suddenly taken drunk," as Lola phrased it, was crooning, "Swing low, sweet chari-o-t, a-comin' fo' to carry me ho-o-o-me."

Dick leaned heavily against the wall and listened. The orchestra had abruptly abandoned jazz and swung full into the music of an old-fashioned square dance. Volatile rhythm, now sprightly, now slow—hectic and funereal—merry—gracious—military—

Life, thought Dick, was a dance! And he meditated, with that sense of profundity which an adequate number of drinks can inspire upon his aphorism. A dance where one kept time to some individual rhythm, a waltz, a gavotte, a march . . .

He shook his head, vaguely. What was he doing here?

"Honey-chile, I thought you'd passed out!" Betty Rogers, a little unsteady but quite happy, slipped her arm about her neck and pressed her cheek against his.

Dick smiled, vaguely.

"Swing your partners!" The music had shifted to waltz rhythm, and the command of the caller-off lodged somewhere in Dick's fogged brain.

Not "Take Your Partners," after all—swing your partners—any partner within reach!

He discovered the Scotch, poured out a drink and sat down on the edge of the bed kicking the door shut as he passed it. Beside him, Betty pursed her red lips—whether for a drink or a kiss he didn't know or care. Gravely he gave her both.

"To you, beautiful one!" he toasted her, and gulped down the rest of the whisky.

Dick laughed at nothing, at everything. Once, long ago, there had been a girl—but she was forgotten. Betty was pretty; she had a flair; she was intelligent, too—knew a lot, Betty did. He tossed the glass across the room and put his arms around her . . .

"Good God, what's that?"

They started to their feet, their muscles responding even before their minds to the mad cry that rose outside. Dick flung open the door.

Lola Penny, her face ashen but her eyes brilliant with a strange, mad excitement, was standing on the ballroom table screaming for her guests. From all sides they stumbled toward her. From bedrooms and sitting-rooms, hall corners, stairway nooks, they straggled out. Through the window behind Lola, faint, dismal dawn glowed in the sky. Betty hung heavily on Dick's arm.

"I want to propose a toast!" came Lola Penny's voice, high and shrill. She lifted an empty cocktail glass and then, swiftly, poured into it the contents of a small ominous bottle. "A toast to Reno—and to death!" she cried. And before anyone could move, she had drained the glass.

Frozen in their places, her guests stared at her.

And suddenly, as the poison seared her lips, her tongue, she clawed frantically at her mouth, at her throat. Then, with a long sobbing cry, she crumpled down amid the wreckage of the littered table, swayed, plunged to the floor and lay still.

NANCY DEANE

By Roy L. Foley

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

THE wind in the bare branches of the great old trees towering above the homes on Fifth avenue was singing a melancholy song in the darkness as Nancy walked along the avenue, now fast, now slow.

The clickity-click of her high heels along the flagstone would beat a quick tattoo, then go so slow that they made no noise at all, as though they were quickening and slowing up with her own thoughts, keeping a tempo with them.

The Deane house, set far back among the trees, looked grim and forbidding, and in it, in the master's bedroom, Montgomery Deane lay dying.

The curtains were drawn. There wasn't even a peep of light through any of the windows, but there were lights both at the front door and at the porte-cochere.

"The command is forward."

How long it took for the maid to appear! In the interval a light came on in the reception room and Nancy could look through the plate glass of the heavy doors. Her courage began faltering again. Forward, forward, forward!

Had she done the right thing? She remembered calling a taxi and telling the driver to take her to the Deane home.

"Yes, lady," he had said, not even asking the number. He seemed to know the house as he might the B. & O. station or the Frick building. And when he had stopped she had crammed a bill into his hand and run, stumbling, down the avenue away from the house.

The driver must have thought she was crazy. She was crazy then. She thought that she must fly from the dark house, that she couldn't go in; but she was calmer now.

The maid was coming down the broad stairs, wondering who could be at the door this time of night.

"I'm Miss O'Day, I did some work for Mrs. Deane," Nancy explained. "I have something terribly important to say to her. Tell her I must see her!"

The maid demurred. "Mrs. Deane can't—something has happened to Mr. Deane. He's sick and it's very late."

Dying! He's dying, Nancy, dying! The command is forward.

"He's dying: I read it in the newspapers. That's why I must see Mrs. Deane. I have something to tell her before Mr. Deane dies. You must call her. You must!"

Nancy forced her way past the maid and threw open the inner door into the reception room. The maid's eyes were round with fright.

"James!" she called. "James!"

"James! Miss O'Day!"

Ah, she remembered Nancy's name, O'Day. O'Day! This lovely lady, this Caroline Glendenning-Deane, with the cold light in her gray eyes, had remembered her name. She was sweeping down the stairs toward them.

Nancy rushed to her. "My name's not O'Day," she cried. "It's Deane. Nancy Deane, and I'm the daughter of your son, Monty Deane. I've come to tell you."

She looked wild now, cornered, tortured, wild. Her head was reeling, things were spinning whirling, whirling, and then they weren't there at all. It was black, all black.

"—and, he said, he said—"

"Go on, child. Tell it all. We want to know everything."

Nancy looked into Mrs. Deane's face, searching it, trying to penetrate that calm mask, the mask of years, that had been put there because Caroline Deane's world forbade the face to act as the printed page of the soul.

Nancy could not read beneath the surface of the mask. There were sympathetic words on Mrs. Deane's tongue, but her eyes were always so cold. Not like Muddy's eyes that blazed when she was mad, but could be so kind and soft when she had comfort to give.

She turned to the man in the bed. Twice now, she had been brought into his presence. Once a few days after his stroke when the doctors said he probably would not die, that he might linger for weeks, or even months, and now when he was able to utter a few words out of one side of his mouth.

"Tell us everything," Mrs. Deane repeated, and Montgomery Deane lying so helpless there, his hair and his cropped mustache, his hands, as white as the counterpane, motioned as though he concurred.

"—he said you sent him to hell." Nancy couldn't find it within her to tell all Monty Deane had told her about his parents. Not everything.

"He said he was going away again, back to the place he came from. He told me to come to you, that was months ago, but I was afraid. I kept putting it off, and off, until—"

Clutched in her handbag, a cheap little bag, bulging with many things was the sapphire ring that Monty Deane had given her.

"Take this ring," Nancy's father had told her, "my mother will know it. It was hers. Say that Julie left it for you when she died. They mustn't know that it was I who gave it to you."

"They mustn't know it was I who gave it to you."

The way he had said those words was burned into her memory.

Nancy twisted open the clasp of the brown velvet bag.

"I have a ring here," she said. "It, I think it was—"

She took the sapphire ring from the square coin purse. She held it out to Mrs. Deane. Montgomery Deane opened his eyes. His face was as expressionless as though every spark of life had been drained from it.

Mrs. Deane gave a gasp when she saw the ring, a quick intaking of breath, and then a little moan. It was a sound like a child makes after it has sobbed itself to a point where it cannot stop. Her hand shot out and almost snatched the ring.

"My ring," she said, "my ring, Montgomery, it's the ring you gave me so many, many years ago."

Now, for the first time the mask seemed to be breaking. For the first time Nancy saw Mrs. Deane give way to real emotion.

"Look, Montgomery, look!"

She fell on her knees beside the high bed and held the ring before the eyes of her husband. He made no sound. Only his fingers moved, a twitching movement, as though they were trying to grasp something that just evaded him.

The maid knocked.

"Dr. Hitchcock is here," she said.

Mrs. Deane motioned for Nancy, and followed her out of the room.

"He told me if I ever needed money or help to take this ring to you, and when I told him a sapphire meant repentance he—he—"

"Yes?"

Mrs. Deane's voice had the calmness in it again. The mask was there again.

"He said there was no repentance in him. He said his soul was dead!"

* * *

Mrs. Deane sat staring into the fireplace. Dr. Hitchcock had gone now. There was nothing more he could do. There was some improvement. He was entirely professional. His directions were simple. No encouragement. No discouragement.

"And you are my son's child, my grandchild!"

She didn't look toward Nancy when she said the words, slowly. She kept her eyes on the glowing embers. Nancy, too, was looking into the fireplace. The relationship was established, but Nancy could feel no warmth of kinship.

"And who are these O'Days?"

There was an inflection of aloofness, as though she were detached—away—as though she might be brushing disagreeable flecks from her fingers. It was a manner seen by Nancy every time she had come into Mrs. Deane's presence. Now that she spoke of Mud and Darry, Nancy despised that manner.

"Are they—are they?—"

"They're sweet," Nancy cried.

She jumped up, quick to defend those dear to her.

"They're sweet, they're sweet, sweet! I love them. Don't you say a word against them. They—"

"Why, child, of course I shan't say anything against them. I don't know them."

Nancy's overwrought nerves were breaking. She felt them going. She tried to cling on, to dig her nails into her palms, to hold on, on, on. She knew she was losing. A surge of hate for the woman who was facing her was engulfing her, body and soul.

"Of course you don't. Of course you don't," she cried. "What do you know about any kind of people but YOUR kind? What do you know about a girl like me? What do you know about a woman like Mother O'Day!"

Her voice was shrill now.

"Did you ever have an oven door that was broken? Did you ever try to twist it together with wire? Did you ever hope and pray for a new stove?"

She stood with her back against the wall, palms flat against the satin brocading that covered it.

"Did you ever have a shabby green rug with red roses, that was scuffed and worn into ribbons, and you had to keep it because you never, never had enough money to get a new one?"

She let her hands fall helplessly. There was no use, no use. The anger that had shot into her brain like lightning died almost as quickly as it had been born. Mrs. Deane was still sitting, still looking into the fire. Her eyes moist.

Nancy still stood with her back to the wall, panting. Mrs. Deane arose, held out her arms and said:

"Perhaps I could understand, perhaps I could. Come."

With the exception of Mr. and Mrs. Deane, and the O'Days, only two people knew that Nancy O'Day wasn't Nancy O'Day at all, that she was Nancy Deane. These two were Howard Wescott and Ginger Varden.

"We'll just let things run on as they have been," Mrs. Deane had said to Nancy, and then she had brought her to the bedside of Montgomery Dean, and repeated it—"we'll just let things run on as they have been. Isn't it better, Montgomery? Isn't it better to keep this secret until you are up and around again? The newspapers mustn't have it now. No one must know."

Nancy had all she could do from saying, "Howard Wescott knows. Ginger Varden knows." Ginger had promised not to tell.

Montgomery Deane didn't answer. Death was written in his face. Nancy could see it. She wondered Mrs. Deane couldn't.

"Montgomery, do you think it is better for Nancy to go on as she has been, living as she has been? When you are well again we can take her to Europe and stay a long, long time, and then—"

Montgomery Deane wasn't following his wife's words. His eyes were fastened on Nancy's yellow head.

"Come here, girl," he said "kneel down here."

Nancy did as she was bidden. He put his white head on her head.

"Tell Harrison Jones to come to me," he said to his wife, "tell him to bring all my papers. Tell him to come right away."

Jones—Harrison Jones! Nancy tried to think where she had heard that name before.

Oh yes, she remembered. Harrison Jones was an attorney of the firm of Jones, Cayburn & Jones. He had done work for the Wear-Ever Knitting Mills, a corporation lawyer.

Mrs. Deane left the room, leaving her dying husband with his hand on the yellow head of his grandchild.

"I am going to change my will," he said. "I am going to change my will—"

INSTEAD of exercise

Don't suffer the consequences of persistent lack of exercise. Learn the simple secret of the exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime! Millions know it!

Cascarets make bilious, headachy, constipated people feel wonderful. Their effect is not only quick, but it's lasting. They give the bowels as much real exercise as they get from an hour of bowling.

Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives do not act like Cascarets. These things produce only mechanical or chemical action. They actually weaken the bowels. You have to keep dosing with them.

Each time you use Cascarets, your bowels become stronger. They are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the natural peristaltic action of the bowel muscles. Nothing else does this. That accounts for the popularity of Cascarets and their tremendous sales of over 20 million packages a year!

OLD-FASHIONED DRAMA GOES BACK TO THE DAYS WHEN HEROINE FAINTED

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

GEORGE SEIBEL

WHEN it's moonlight on the Grand Canal and the Gondoliers are gondoliering under the balcony, and the young lovers are so happy in the Hotel Danieli, we know that it can't last. At once the serpent enters in the shape of an attorney, sent by the hero's father, to part them and shatter love's young dream, because two great railroad systems have to be united and it all depends upon the hero wedding the daughter of the owner of the other system. That is the beginning of "Indiscretion," the new drama of Myron C. Fagan, produced at the Nixon Theater last night.

It is the sort of play that used to be written when Henry Arthur Jones was young. It is full of "How could you?" and "Poor little Betty!" and "Thank God it is not too late!" There is weeping and passion and talk of revenge, and at last it's all a misunderstanding, so that love's young dream comes true. Of course that is 18 years later, when the hero has become a Senator and the heroine has become a great actress, and the only one that has remained the same is the villain, who is still a lawyer and still hopes to win the heroine by lying about her.

He should have known, if he had read Bertha M. Clay and Wilkie Collins, that he couldn't get away with it. He had forged proof that she was dead, he had stolen her baby, he had done everything except incarcerate her in a madhouse—which leaves us grieving that he was not thrown over a balcony in the last act or perished miserably in an auto shash-up.

ACTING—AND LOTS OF IT

Enough has been said to characterize "Indiscretion" as a play. It isn't really a play—it's about four plays. It has so many climaxes that Minna Gombell, who plays the heroine, might be excused for having her nervous breakdown. She has to act and act and act. If ever any woman paid the penalty of going to Venice when she shouldn't have gone, it is Minna Gombell. And Harland Tucker also suffers severely for having taken her when he shouldn't. He, too, has to act and act and act.

As for Arthur Vinton, who plays the villain, he has to lie and plot and smile so desperately that we are almost inclined to sympathize with him and admire him. And Louis Kimball, who is the heroine's faithful friend, but is condemned to smoke a cigaret at RI when he should be throwing the lie into the villain's teeth, also has much work cut out for him at various times, which he does well when it's his cue.

Diantha Pattison has some nicely sophisticated lines, Betty Lancaster has some sweetly touching ones, and Harold Elliott has some foolishly romantic ones. Everybody works so hard, even the dramatist has worked so hard, that the happy ending is well deserved.

CUBIST—AND VICTORIAN

In short, the author of "Indiscretion" has used the formula of 40 years ago, though he has some cubist furniture on the stage and announces his entrances by the honking of a motorcar. He even lets his heroine faint at the end of the third act, in the good old Victorian fashion. No wonder, for she has just heard such astonishing news that she cannot credit it, any more than we can credit her many changes of mood, from playing stormy music on the grand piano to telling bed-time stories with little Betty.

The play is not merely an effort to revive romantic drama—for romantic drama is always with us, and there is a realism of romance as there is romance in reality. It is a reversion to an outworn technique and a rattling of ancient bones. Augustus Thomas and Clyde Fitch would have thought this play old-fashioned. And it is so overcrowded with incident, situations, emotions, that the characters have to walk into ladies' boudoirs unannounced just to gain time for all the action.

Miss Bellamy Sheridan Star

"Fugitives," which is from a Richard Harding Davis story that has to do with an innocent and beautiful girl caught in a web of circumstances and brought to trial for murder, is the current photoplay in the Sheridan Square. Madge Bellamy is the star. Don Terry is the hero. The stage vaudeville is topped by Paul Cunningham and Florence Bennett, song writer and the comedienne respectively. They are supported by Paul Winkopp and Jahärala. Haynes Lehman and Kaiser, who weigh probably 750 pounds between them, offer an act, "Playmates." Pardell and McNally and Martha Lawrence add to the comedy bill. Clark and McCullough in an all-talkie screen skit, "A Bath Between," also are seen and heard.

ALICE WHITE EMOTES IN STANLEY

Alice White, a movie brunet who has gone blonde, checks hats and catches for herself a rich boy friend on the Stanley screen this week. The picture, titled "Naught Baby," presents a breezy story of rich boys at play and gold diggers at work. It is presented with music and sound syncronization. There are no talk sequences.

Alice, in the title role, isn't so very naughty. She masquerades as a society girl—that is all—in an effort to impress a snappy money boy from Boston, played by Jack Mulhall. She gets him in the end, too, but not until after she loses her bathing suit while swimming with Jack at a bathing resort and numerous other experiences. And Alice makes an attractive "society girl," aided by the diamonds Benny Rubin furnishes her from his uncle's pawn shop, and the gowns and motor cars lent her by two other of her neighborhood admirers, who are employed at a modiste shop and a garage.

"THREE MUSKETEERS"

She calls them her "Three Musketeers" and each of them would like to marry her. But none of them do, though they all attend her wedding. The picture marks, as far as our knowledge goes, the first appearance of Rubin in a feature photoplay. This comedian, you may recall, served for many weeks as master of ceremonies in the old Loew revues on the Aldine stage. The picture develops many comedy situations. The cast includes Thelma Todd.

Entertainment on the stage is presented under the title of "Zig Zag Capers." It won applause at the opening performance yesterday. Among the featured entertainers are Al and Ann Striker, Bebe Falvo, De Carlos and Granada, Dick Ware, George Somers and the 12 Stanley Caperites.

Mae Dix Heads Bill in Academy

"Flapper Follies," with a cast headed by Mae Dix, is playing in the Academy as the burlesque attraction. Miss Dix, whose songs are popular, is supported by Sharli, Hindu dancer; Jack "Tramp" Montagu and Johnny "Rags" Ragland, comedians. Other attractions are Florence Drake, billed as "the personality girl;" Marion LaMar and "Little Whoopee," singing and dancing soubret. There are specialties by Miss Dix, Ruth Hamilton, Madeline McEvoy, Jess Mack, Tom Fairclough and The Flapper Four, harmonists. Scenic presentations include "Land of the Dykes," "The Flappers' Carnival," "Lady of the Vase" and "Folies Bergere."

Flooded Road Fund Asked

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—President Coolidge asked Congress yesterday for $3,654,000 for immediate use by the War Department in Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas for repairing roads and bridges damaged by the 1927 floods.

RITZY CROOK IN PENN FILM

"A Lady of Chance," one of those suave crook dramas, is furnishing amusement on the Penn screen this week. Norma Shearer has the star and title role—that of a sweet and innocent looking feminine crook.

When you first meet Norma, known to crookdom as "Angel Face," she is a telephone operator in a ritzy hotel. She is out after the bankroll and out on parole, having had a previous affair with the police. It doesn't take her long, with the assistance of two confederates, to get $10,000 from a nice and wealthy old gentleman. But when the confederates—Lowell Sherman and Gwen Lee—try to double-cross her, she puts a neat trick over on them. And then her eyes fall on Johnny Mack Brown, whom she takes for a big cement and plantation man, and she hears him talk in seven figures. She likes the sound of a million dollars and she likes Johnny's looks. So she sets out to get him.

SOME SURPRISES FIRST

She and the audience get several surprises before the final sequences. And, in the getting, Norma finds that love is greater than dollars. All of which is very nice and makes for a happy ending.

The picture is offered with sound and music syncronization. It has many humorous episodes. And Norma, with the Age of Innocence in her eyes, sparkles at times as a comedienne. Who'd a thought that Ramon Novarro's peasant girl of "The Student Prince" would ever live to be a crook. But the movies have queer ways.

The Penn stage revue is "Barcelona," which has a Spanish atmosphere. Prominent among the entertainers are Jack North, crooning banjoist; Bobby Gilbert, violinist; Ross McLean, vocalist; Rene and Evelyn, dancers; Berge Moller, accordionist, and the dancing Dorothy Berke girls. Of course, Teddy Joyce and his band have a big place in the revue.

MAN MONKEY THRILLS IN DAVIS

There was everything in the Davis Theater yesterday, from exquisite singing by Lottice Howell to thrills of horror as Nathal, the Man Monkey, clambered over seats and walked along the rail of the balcony. This act would please Darwin, convince Bryan, and give Poe material for a new mystery tale. It is a startling novelty, with the accent on the startling. As for Miss Howell, she shows that she can sing Donizetti with all the embroidery and Victor Herbert with all the chocolate—her audience was in raptures.

Cullen Landis, recruited from the films, has a pleasant little playlet called "There Goes the Bride," in which he snatches Helen Wilson from the church door, leaving his aged uncle a floral anchor for consolation, with the funeral motto, "Gone but not forgotten." The couple is good to look at and their playlet not hard to digest.

Jacque Hayes and Irene Cody belong to Pittsburgh and met an uproarious welcome as they reeled off a new lot of fat-and-thin fooleries. Their wildest antics and quips were mild as compared with Ann Codee, who is called a French comedienne, and spanked her diminutive masculine partner as if he hailed from Unter den Linden—it's a high-speed act full of pepper.

High speed also distinguishes the acrobatic and dancing features—the four elastic Karreys, the Turner Brothers in comical dances and falls, and the basketball tourney awheel presented by Harvard, Charles and Kendrick, more exciting than any real game.

There remains Art Landry with his orchestra, 17 people in all, who start off with "Mandalay" and end up with "falling boom." They are darling children of the Muse Calliope and the good St. Vitus—and the audience couldn't get enough of them. Which applied to nearly everything on the bill except the heart palpitations caused by the simian Nathal.

College Glee Clubs In Contest Friday

Glee clubs of Pitt, Tech, W. & J., Allegheny, State College, Juniata and Bucknell will participate in the intercollegiate glee club competition in Carnegie Hall Friday evening. The Chamber of Commerce Chorus under the direction of Harvey B. Gaul, also will sing. The winning college club will compete in a national contest in New York in March.

"FUGITIVES" ON HARRIS SCREEN

Madge Bellamy is emoting on the Harris screen, for the first three days of this week, as an innocent girl accused of murder. It all comes about through a thoughtless gangster, who, after murdering a night club owner, tosses the gun through a dressing room window and onto the lap of Madge. And it all takes place in the picture, "Fugitives," based on the Richard Harding Davis story, "Exiles."

Madge Bellamy.

There are lots of melodramatics in the picture—many of them occurring in an African exile land—out of law's reach—to which Madge hastens. But the sunshine breaks out once more for the heroine near the picture close. The true murderer stops a bullet in far off New York and confesses that he killed the night club owner. Then the young assistant district attorney, who thinks a lot of Madge, eventually sets out to bring her back from exile. But he succeeds in doing so only after several all-round fist fights and some gun play. Don Terry has the hero role.

On the stage Hal Sands and Girls present a sort of musical comedy, titled "Dancing Around," as one of the features. Another feature is Herbert Clifton, who offers a travesty of the weaker sex, presenting feminine impersonations. Gautier's Toy Shop and Josephine Davis, who sings, complete the vaudeville bill.

The program also includes a sound screen specialty featuring Clark and McCullough, news pictures and an organlogue.

Farce Comedy Enright Film

"Stolen Kisses," starring May McAvoy and presented with some talk sequences, is the current screen feature in the Enright. It is a farce comedy—and not a very good one.

May McAvoy

The plot has to do with a wealthy newspaper publisher and his son and daughter-in-law. The father wants to be a grandpa and bemoans the fact that there is no grandson, though his boy has been married three years. After several silly sequences in a newspaper office—or what is alleged to be one—the action takes the young couple to Paris on what the would-be grandpa terms "a second honeymoon." In Paris the young husband becomes involved with an actress and the wife with an old school friend.

They eventually land in the divorce court, which, incidentally, turns out to be the scene of the final fadeout with the couple reunited and the old gentleman dancing around and telling the world that he's going to be a grandpa at last.

The cast includes Claude Gillingwater, Hallam Cooley, Edna Murphy, Reed Howes and Arthur Hoyt.

There is a stage presentation offering a company of six or so featuring dance and song.

JESSEL SINGS IN ALDINE FILM

George Jessel plays himself in "Lucky Boy," vocal photoplay which attracted good sized audiences to the Aldine yesterday. That is, the character he portrays in the film, which is fairly entertaining, bears the name of Georgie Jessel. Like the real Jessel, the Jessel of the photoplay undergoes various experiences, including that of "plugger" in a song shop, in his efforts to become an actor. Like the George of the flesh, the Georgie of the shadow play does become one—and, true to life, a successful one.

It isn't much of a story—nothing of a dramatic or gripping nature—yet it will give satisfaction, mostly because in it Jessel sings. The Georgie of the film is the son of a jeweler who wants his son to follow his footsteps and engage in a regular "business." But Georgie's soul is full of song and sentiment. He wants to be a star of the stage. He finds a vacant theater and intends to put on a show, "Jessel's Follies." Dad is about to shy a clock at him for even mentioning it, but looks at the price tag and doesn't. Mother gives Georgie her earrings to pawn. The crowd gathers to attend the show."

NO MONEY, NO SHOW

In the business office, the manager of the house insists on the balance due him before the curtain goes up. There is no show.

So Georgie becomes a wanderer and in a far city he makes good as an amateur performer and gets a job as a cabaret singer. He returns home because his mother is ill and the end comes with him as the hit of the big revue, and in the embrace of the rich eastern girl he had met in the cabaret in the West.

During the course of the action Jessel sings "My Mother's Eyes," theme song of the piece, "Bouquet of Memories," "My Real Sweetheart" and some well known ditties, the latter as part of his routine in the cabaret and song shop scenes. He also employs some Jessel comedy, which, although familiar, causes laughs. He acts his part satisfactorily. So does Margaret Quimby, as the girl.

The dialogue and songs are exceptionally well reproduced.

Other attractions include sound news and vocal variety skits and a little novelty created for the opening of Loew's Empire Theater in London, in which the audiences see the films and hear the voices of Ernest Torrence, John Gilbert, George K. Arthur, Norma Shearer, Lewis Stone and Joan Crawford of the M-G-M studios.

"MARYLAND" GIVEN IN MOSQUE

"My Maryland," which, beginning Wednesday afternoon, will play the Alvin for the remainder of the week, came to Pittsburgh for the second time in a period of one week more than two months, and was presented before the largest local audience that ever witnessed the play here. This probably means the largest audience that ever saw the operetta anywhere, since it is unlikely that it ever was shown in an auditorium having as large seating capacity as Syria Mosque, which was the theater last night and where the popular Dorothy Donnelly-Sigmund Romberg musical piece will be repeated tonight. Members of Syria Shrine and their ladies, crowding the huge auditorium to the very last seat and standing in the entrance way to the aisles, accorded the efforts of the players every manifestation of approval.

EVENING PLEASANT

This play, with its civil war setting and a romance based on the Barbara Fritchie legend, is so familiar that extended review is unnecessary. It is sufficient to state that it made a pleasant evening's entertainment for those who witnessed it and presented opportunity to compare the art of some players not heretofore seen here with that of others who have been here before. The dramatic story and the popular musical numbers, including the rousing "Your Land and My Land," sung by the large male chorus, had their customary emotional effect.

Nathaniel Wagner, as the Union Army captain, and Mary McCoy, as Barbara Fritchie, the Southern miss whose heart he stole, pleased musically and histrionically. Betty Byron, seen in the first company to play the piece here, was vivacious in her part of Sue, again revealing a mixture of hoydenish charm and talent for comedy. The cast included Frank Lalor, in the comedy role of Zeke; Louis Cassavant, as Col. Negley, William H. Pringle, as Mr. Fritchie; Marion Ballou, as Mrs. Hunter, and others in less prominent parts.

Notables in Reno On Divorce Quest

RENO, Nev., Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Among the prominent persons here supposedly for divorce are Mrs. Leander J. McCormick, of Chicago, who arrived late last month, and Count Jeon de Strelecki, who has been here for several weeks. Strelecki, said to be Polish, is an artist. His wife is said to be a cousin of Rabbi Stephen Wise of New York. She probably will contest the suit.

Fannie Brice Regent Feature

Fannie Brice, in her first talking picture, "My Man," is a current feature in the Regent. The cast includes Guinn Williams, Edna Murphy, Andre de Segurola, Richard Tucker, Billy Seay, Arthur Hoyt, Ann Brody and Clarissa Selwynne. Archie L. Mayo directed. Fannie sings many of her favorite songs, seven to be exact, including "My Man," and she gives the uproarious "Mrs. Cohen at the Beach," for good measure, during the action of the picture. Short Vitaphone attractions and news reels are other items on the Regent's bill.

SPORT COMMENT

NEW RULE KILLS SOME GRID THRILLS

Pop Warner

WITH all due respect to the thought given to the fumble-ball question by Pop Warner and the other coaches who recommended the change, and to the fact that they had the best interests of the game at heart in doing so, there are many who will question whether football has been helped by the alteration announced yesterday by the rules committee whereby all fumbled balls recovered by the defending side will be dead at the point of recovery. Previously this rule applied only to punts and lateral passes. Now it applies to all other fumbles, excepting on incomplete forward passes. It means that when a defensive player recovers a fumble his team merely gets the ball. He cannot run with it after he recovers it.

The coaches and committeemen contend that it will help the game by encouraging the attack, and that a team should not suffer for the error of an individual, but from another angle it may be argued that it will protect poor playing that is penalized in all other sports. It would be much the same if a rule were adopted in baseball to prevent baserunners from advancing if a fielding player fumbled a batted ball or muffed a throw.

THE point that under the former rule the better team did not always win is not well taken. Why should the stronger eleven win unless it plays the better football? If it makes errors it ought to pay for them. Protecting the stronger team renders the outcome of a game a foregone conclusion and makes the size of the score the only question.

Uncertainty is the element that makes any sport attractive, and football will be robbed of much of its uncertainty when the weaker eleven is deprived of a chance to upset the advance dope by taking full advantage of a stronger opponent's misplays. A team that is alert and smart enough to turn such misplays to best account ought to be allowed to get as much as it can out of doing so. Many of football's greatest thrills have been contained in runs from fumbles.

IF this rule had been in force in the past, gridiron history would not have been enriched with the sensational sprints of Arthur Poe, Pie Way, Sammy White, Ducky Pond, Jeff Collidge, Bob Storer and others.

And Roy Riegels would have been saved from the ridicule that we heaped upon him for his wrong-way run. The rules were all right as they stood.

Mike Getto

GLENN THISTLETHWAITE, head coach of football at Wisconsin and former grid mentor at Northwestern gave the Warner system of football another hefty boost during his 12-hour stay here yesterday. The Badger mentor was in Pittsburgh for the annual banquet of the University of Wisconsin Club of Pittsburgh, at which he was the principal speaker. Upon his arrival at noon, he was met by Dr. John Bain Sutherland, Pitt's football coach. Jock was bound for Johnstown, where he addressed the students of the University of Pittsburgh Junior College, but he spent a half hour in conference with Thistlethwaite. The latter was interested in getting Sutherland's aid in securing a Pitt man for his assistant at Wisconsin. Indeed, that was the first thing he broached after leaving the train.

THISTLETHWAITE, along with Dick Hanley, his successor at Northwestern, is a firm believer in the Warner style of football, and uses it to a great extent at the Badger institution. He needs a man well-drilled in the present Warner and Pitt style of play, and it was to this end that he sought the assistance of Jock.

During the course of the conference between the two coaches, at which Jess Carver of the Sun-Telegraph sports staff was present, Thistlethwaite brought up the name of Mike Getto, Pitt's all-America tackle of last year. He had seen Getto in action in the East-West game, and was struck with Mike's playing.

SUTHERLAND spoke highly of Getto's ability, naming him as one of the best linemen with whom he had ever worked and predicted a fine future for the big fellow, once he gained some coaching experience.

Nothing definite came of the conversation, except that Sutherland promised to give the matter thought. Thistlethwaite, however, seemed close to being sold on Getto, and may make an effort to get Mike for his line coach for next fall.

WISCONSIN isn't the first school that has sought a Warner or Pitt-trained man as coach. Bucknell went after Hank Hangartner to develop a line two years ago, which Hangartner did, to the queen's taste. University of Rochester grabbed off Tom Davies. Lafayette has Herb McCracken. Wash-Jeff is under the wise guidance of Andy Kerr. Bill Kern is at Wyoming Seminary. Andy Gustafson rates close to $10,000 a year at V. P. I. Pat Herron left Washington and Lee this year after a successful stay there to take care of his law practice. Tommy Holleran got results at Thiel for five years with little in the way of material. Dick Hanley put the Warner system in at Northwestern and has had his Purple eleven up there, close to the top, for the last two years. Harvey Harman has been turning out successful elevens at Haverford since 1924. And the high schools that have been boasting successful teams with Pitt coaches are well nigh innumerable.

Joe McCarthy

THE high estimate placed on the strength of the Pittsburgh club this year by leading baseball men is further attested by some revised views just voiced by Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Nationals. Recently, the Cub chief said he feared only the Giants and Pirates in the 1929 pennant race. Now he omits any mention of the Giants and says he thinks the Buccaneers will be the Bruins' only formidable rivals.

"I fear only the Pirates," McCarthy is quoted. "They are fast. They score runs, and it is hard to double up those Pittsburgh players when they are moving at their normal pace. If they get normal pitching they will be hard to beat. I'd rather not discuss the Giants, or the Cardinals, either."

AS to his own club, McCarthy said: "We have 30 odd exhibition games to play, and by the end of that time I'll have a pretty good idea of what the team will be like. As to where I'll place the various regulars in the batting order, that's something I can't tell.

"At one time last year I used Beck at the top, and he was on the bases about as often as any other lead-off man. Then he got out of the swing, and could not get on at all. That's a hard job, that lead-off spot. I don't know what our final decision will be."

IN Support of their contention that they cannot be expected to meet the lofty salary demands of some of the holdouts this spring by reason of the fact that they experienced a lean financial

WALLY STEFFEN GREETS SQUAD IN CHICAGO

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

EN ROUTE WITH PIRATES BETWEEN CHICAGO AND KANSAS CITY, Feb. 19.—Augmented by eight athletes, including Capt. Pie Traynor and Third-Baseman Jim Stoner, the Pirate advance guard was rolling toward Kansas City at noon today. The mid-western city is due to be reached at 10 o'clock tonight.

A delegation of angry hat-makers in protest followed Capt. Traynor into the Union Station whence Pie joined up with his mates. Traynor was hatless and if he had one of those racoon coats he would have been shot in mistake for one of the things that frolic on college campuses and adjacent streets.

BACK FROM WISCONSIN

You see, Traynor just got in from upper Wisconsin, where he hunted deer and other wild game in temperature that dropped as low as 30 below zero. He was trying to cool off when he landed in this snow-laden city, but the hat makers fearing an epidemic of hatless athletes this year, protested Pie's action.

Others in the party wore earmuffs, homespun mittens and arctics. One of the first persons to greet the Pittsburgh excursionists was Judge Walter P. (Wally) Steffen, head coach of Carnegie Tech, who arose early and was at the depot shortly after eight o'clock. Wally wished to converse with Dr. William Marks, Manager Donie Bush and others.

GRIMES REPORTS

Burleigh Grimes rode up to the station on one of his horses and was in the group 30 minutes before departure time. One of Grimes' entries won a first prize at a county fair last fall, but they are still looking for the rest of his racers.

As usual Grimes was in the "pink." He spent a lot of time with Traynor, Paul Waner and others in Wisconsin. Traynor told rare tales of Grimes' marksmanship, but he wanted to change the subject when asked for an expression on the David Harum qualities of the Duke of Burleigh.

LOUGHRAN BOUT IS CLOSED

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(INS.)—Closing of a Tommy Loughran-Mickey Walker match for the light heavyweight championship of the world, to be held in the new $7,000,000 Chicago Stadium on the night of March 13, was announced today by Promoter Paddy Harmon.

Harmon also declared that he had closed with Tony Canzoneri and Ray Miller for a bout on the same card, the two bouts to provide a brilliant double windup for the opening of the vast arena on the West Side, which, according to specifications, will seat 25,000 persons, thus making it the largest indoor boxing arena in the world.

Loughran, the defending champion, has accepted an offer of 55 per cent of the gross gate receipts, out of which he agrees to pay Walker $10,000 if Mickey defeats him and acquires the title—or $50,000 in the event Walker fails to lift his crown. Moreover, Loughran agrees to pay the entire purses of Canzoneri and Miller.

NEWTON STOPS GIZZY

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 19.—Battling Gizzy, of Donora and Washington, suffered the first knockout of his career at the hands of Ray Newton, the Blonde Tiger, of Mansfield, O., in the fifth round of their bout here last night. Until his knockout, Gizzy had the edge on the Ohioan. Newton got across a sharp right which caused Gizzy's finish.

In the semi-final, Johnny Smackey of Canonsburg, was given the decision over Joe Ribnickey, of Donora, but many of the fans booed the verdict. Harry Spencer, of Washington, won oven Johnny Russell, of Fayette City.

Dempsey Offered $250,000 to Box Maloney

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—A telegram offering Jack Dempsey a $250,000 guarantee for boxing Jimmy Maloney, Boston heavyweight, here at Braves Field next July or August was sent to the former champion at Miami, Fla., today by Eddie Mack, the Boston Garden boxing promoter.

"Will give you," Mack's telegram read, "guarantee of $250,000 with privilege of 40 per cent of gross gate, less 5 per cent state tax to box Jimmy Maloney at Braves Field in Boston in July or August. Will post $75,000 60 days before fight, another $75,000 30 days before fight and will post the remaining $100,000 48 hours before contest.

"You must open training camp in Boston one month prior to contest. I think the gate will go around $1,000,000 if Maloney wins from Tom Heeney here March 1. Braves Field seating capacity about 80,000. Will see you Monday in Miami to talk real business."

Star Center Lost To D. & E. Quint

WESTON, W. Va., Feb. 19.—Dale Peters, star Davis-Elkins center, will not play the rest of the season with the Hurricane quint due to a severe ankle injury. Peters, who was far in the lead of the state Conference scorers, with 81 field goals, aggravated his bad injury in the Salem game. His retirement is due to orders from the physicians.

PIRATE ICEMEN MEET BRUINS TONIGHT

GAMES TONIGHT
Pittsburgh at Boston.
Montreal at New York Americans.
Ottawa at Detroit.

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—The Boston Bruins will be out to get revenge on Pittsburgh's hockey Pirates when they meet Benny Leonard's skaters in a National League game here tonight. The locals bowed in 2-0 defeat in Pittsburgh last Thursday, and Art Ross' puckmen are eager to turn the tables on the Bucs and strengthen their hold on second place in the American Group race.

Prior to last week the Bruins had scored three straight wins over the Pirates, but with Lowrey, former Toronto star, in their lineup the Pittsburghers showed a more powerful punch, and the locals anticipate a real battle tonight. Eddie Bouchard and Jess Spring, who went from the New York Americans to Pittsburgh in the Tex White deal, accompanied the Pirates here, and they are said to have helped Lowrey "rejuvenate" the Steel City club.

Tonight's game will be of exceptional interest to local fans in that Frank Frederickson, former Boston idol, now at center for the Pirates, will be playing his first game in Boston as a Boston foeman. Local fans have arranged to accord Fred-

SCHOOLS WIND UP CITY LOOP CARD TODAY

Six games brings the regular basketball schedule of the City Senior League to a close today. In any event, results of today's battles in both sections of the circuit are likely to leave a deadlock in each group, which will necessitate play-offs.

Fifth Avenue High, defending champion, tied with Schenley, meets South High's quintet on the South floor. The Bellefielders face Peabody. It appears a cinch for both Fifth Avenue and Schenley to cop their respective contests.

In another Section 1 contest, Ralston tackles Westinghouse High on the Silver Lakers' floor.

Perry High School's sensational quintet takes on Oliver High, leader in Section II, in a game that may cause the Brighton Roaders no end of trouble. If Perry wins, there will be a deadlock for the honors, with the possible addition of South Hills, which could gain that honor by whipping Carrick this afternoon on the Tunnelites' court.

Allegheny High, recent momentary leader of the race, visits Langley High in the other Section II battle. The complete City League and W. P. I. A. L. card follows:

CITY SENIOR LEAGUE.

Schenley at Peabody.
Ralston at Westinghouse.

SECTION II.

Perry at Oliver.
Carrick at South Hills.
Allegheny at Langley.

CITY JUNIOR LEAGUE.

SECTION I.

Peabody at Schenley.
Westinghouse at Baxter.
Allderdice at Gladstone.

SECTION II.

PA STRIBLING BALKS AT REFEREES

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Just as the troubles of Jack Dempsey seemed over, a dog fight broke out over the naming of a referee for the battle of the Everglades, a week from tomorrow night.

The crackle of argument broke out hours after the old Manassa Mauler, happy that the final stumbling block in the path to the success of his first promotional venture had been swept away, announced that the Massachusetts State Athletic commission has named Johnny Brassil and Jack Sheehan as the two outstanding referees for the meeting of Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling in Flamingo Park February 27.

Although the Massachusetts commission named one of the men as first choice and the other as alternate, Dempsey said that the actual referee would not be announced until the boxers entered the ring.

Then Pa Stribling, returned late in the day with his fighting son from a visit to the race track, announced that under no conditions would he agree to either of the referees named.

"Brassil" he said, "is a personal friend of Sharkey, and Sheehan, because of his advanced age, can see none too well. This is the most important fight my son has ever had."

The squabble promptly became an argument on contracts and clauses. The Sharkey forces contended that the Boston Tar signed for the match only when the clause permitting the Massachusetts commission to name the referee was inserted in his contract.

Acosta to Pilot Dayton Nine, Report

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The Courier-Journal says today that Merito Acosta, member of the Louisville Colonels since 1919, is the choice of William F. Knebelkamp and Capt. William Neal, operators of the Colonels, to manage the Dayton (O.) baseball club of the Central League, which Louisville has purchased from the St. Louis Cardinals. Acosta is at his home in Havana and it is understood that he had not been consulted about the matter.

Chick Davies, Others Deny He's Wed

Denials flew thicker than baskets today as Charles (Chick) Davies, Miss Margaret Lyons, of the North Side, the young lady in the case, and the minister spiked a report that Duquesne University's basketball coach had been married yesterday at Wellsburg, W. Va.

Davies, interviewed at his mother's home in Homestead, admitted having been in Wellsburg yesterday, but said he had not secured a license and that he was not married, despite reports from the West Virginia city that he had and was. Later, Miss Lyons also made an emphatic denial and Rev. M. M. Allison, of the First Presbyterian Church, of Wellsburg, the parson who was reported to have performed the ceremony, denied he had tied the knot.

Davies refused to say just what had arisen to halt the ceremony or the securing of a license in Wellsburg.

CLEVELANDERS NEXT FOES OF HEIDELBERG

By TOM BIRKS

Now that Heidelberg has vindicated its earlier defeat at the hands of the Union Switch and Signal eleven in the National amateur cup, Pittsburghers can get all set for the second Cleveland invasion of the season when the Akron Goodyear crack outfit meets Heidelberg in the fourth round of the competition at the Bridgeville Speedway on Sunday.

The Akron team is the class of the Cleveland district this season. It came to Pittsburgh in the National challenge cup and defeated Dunlevy, by a 3-goals-to-2 score after staging a wonderful recovery in the extra periods.

Two former Pittsburghers, Willie Robertson, playing center forward, and Timmons, the goal checker, who used to flash his stuff at Garfield Park, were in the lineup that day and are featured members of the Goodyear outfit.

Owing to the great crowd expected at the game, Manager Balsarini has arranged to take it to the Speedway. The large stand will take care of the crowd, and every play is open. Akron is reported to be running an excursion to the game, so a large rooting element will accompany the visitors.

BETHANY FIVE INVADES BLUFF GYM TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

Portly Furman Nuss and his Conference-leading Bethany Bisons are in town today, and this evening, will attempt to hurdle the last formidable obstacle between them and the 1929 Tri-State Conference basketball championship. The opposition will be furnished by Duquesne's Red and Blue varsity, which, if it falters again and bows to the Green Bisons, will practically hand the title to the West Virginians.

Bethany has set a merry pace in Conference competition. Duquesne, Geneva, Waynesburg, Westminster and Thiel have all been whipped. Westminster secured an even break by winning one of two games played with the Nussmen. After tonight's game, the Bisons play two more league contests, both on their home court. They figure to win all these contests, which means that they will slip into the championship, much to the chagrin of Ken Loeffler and John Lawther.

BISONS ALWAYS TOUGH

Bethany has always been a tough team for the Dukes to "take" here in Pittsburgh. This year, showing unusual strength, and in a winning stride, the boys figure to make it a tough evening for Chick. They beat the Dukes at Bethany three weeks ago, 44 to 28. Decisive, to say the least.

Last night the Bisons slipped into an undisputed position as Conference leaders by downing Thiel for the second time this year.

This correspondent spent a pleasant three hours in Washington, Pa., last night, watching Carnegie Tech and Wash-Jeff engage in a Big Four game. Neither club had won a Big Four game prior to last night's setto. Carnegie hasn't won one yet.

Adam Saunders, who learned his basketball in a Sunday school league, but who learned it well, and who has only been put out of one game in his three years of college ball on personal fouls, paired up with little Dave Hoskins to lead the Presidents to a decisive 50-32 victory over the Plaid. Saunders flipped no less than nine buckets and three foul goals for a high point total of 21. Hoskins accounted for five field goals.

W-J STARTS FAST

The Presidents hopped off to a very early lead, Morty Robinson sinking a field goal after taking the ball on the first tip-off. Goals by Saunders and Hoskins ran the score to 6-0 before Tech scored. After that, it was never close.

The Presidents, playing a much steadier game than the Tartans, getting more and better shots, held a 26-12 lead at half time, making it evident early that it was only to be a matter of the size of the score. The Tartans were unable to make 'em drop, and when that is the case, it's just too bad.

Saunders continued his brilliant work in the second half, dropping in goal after goal, with little Hoskins matching him bucket for bucket for the first four. Capt. Harvey White threw five goals for Tech, Nease three and Merton a pair to keep the Tartans within hailing distance of the Red and Black.

Oh, yes! Roy McKissock was in the game and added to the story he started out in the Stadium Pavilion with Charley Hyatt here last week. McKissock looks like a good guard.

Both teams sank half of their foul tries, Wash-Jeff scoring six and Tech eight. Saunders was good for three out of three. The lineup:

Robinson	F	Crum
Hoskins	F	Brown
Saunders	C	Fox
Gilchrist	G	White
McMunn	G	Nease

Score by periods:

Wash-Jeff	26	24—50
Carnegie	13	19—32

Substitutions — Wash-Jeff: McKissock, Lewis Hamilton, Secrist, Smith. Carnegie Tech: Merton, Weiss, High.

Fouls—Wash-Jeff: Robinson, 2 out of 4; Saunders, 3 out of 3; Gilchrist, 1 out of 4; McMunn, 0 out of 1. Carnegie Tech: Crum 1 out of 1; Brown, 1 out of 4; Fox, 1 out of 2; Nease, 1 out of 2; White, 1 out of 1; Merton, 1 out of 1; Weiss, 2 out of 2.

Team fouls—Wash-Jeff, 6 out of 12; Carnegie Tech, 8 out of 16.

ALLEGHENY-GENEVA CLASH

Allegheny's fine freshmen team, holding victories over Gevena, Grove City, Wash-Jeff and Thiel, must go at top speed tonight if it hopes to make it two in a row over Geneva. The Methodists tackle Ken Loeffler's Covenanters at Beaver Falls, a contest Geneva is very anxious to win. The defeat at Meadville did Geneva's pride little good.

Centre College continues its brief invasion of the tri-state district by meeting West Virginia at Morgantown.

SCRIBES' FETE TO BE ANNUAL EVENT

Sports Editor.

The Pittsburgh sports writers' dinner, initiated at the William Penn Hotel last week as a tribute to John H. Gruber, veteran local scribe and official scorer, is to be made an annual event, in response to a host of suggestions from guests at the affair.

A meeting will be held this week to close the business of the banquet and at this conference preliminary plans will be made for next year's dinner, which will be a bigger and better occasion—if possible.

As pointed out by Toastmaster Joe Mackrell, the Gruber dinner broke all records as a first offering of sports writers in any city. New York and Philadelphia writers annually foster a banquet, but neither came anywhere close to approaching the local event as a maiden attempt. Close to 800 persons attended last week's function and went away lauding the venture and expressing the hope that it would become a fixture in the life of the local sporting community.

From the standpoint of attendance of notables and distinguished honor guests, the Pittsburgh affair also was far in the front rank of such events. The committees in charge of future sports writers' banquets here will find a real task on their hands coming up to the first dinner in the matter of furnishing stellar speaking talent.

Every conceivable branch of sports was represented at this affair and it served as the meeting ground for many old friends who had not renewed acquaintance in years and also to bring the sport page-reading public in contact with the parade of prominent figures that it follows from year to year through the cold type of the newspapers.

Social Note—Chilly Doyle, our baseball scribe, has gone to Paso Robles, Cal., for his annual vacation.

The Pitt-Ohio State game here next fall has been lost beyond redemption by both teams. Coaches Jock Sutherland and Sam Willaman took care of that at the sports writers' diner. Each admitted he hasn't a chance to win.

President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League says the circuit records reveal that 40 per cent of the attendants at the games are women. And they call it a HE-man's game!

A reader asks some information regarding the Rev. Billy Sunday's association with the Pirates back in the '80s. Here it is:

Billy Sunday came to the Pittsburgh club following the season of 1887, being obtained from the Chicago Nationals. He was the regular centerfielder here in 1888, with Abner Dalrymple in left field and Jack Coleman in right. In 1889, Sunday did not enter the lineup until May, owing to illness. In the meantime, Ned Hanlon played center field, Fred Carroll left and Al Maul right. When Sunday got into the game he was placed in right field, Maul being shifted to left to supplant Carroll.

In 1890, Sunday was one of only two players who remained steadily loyal to the Pittsburgh National League club, all of the others jumping to the Players' League. The other was Pitcher William Sowders. Later Catcher George Miller and Second Baseman Fred Dunlap, who had jumped, returned to join Sunday and Sowders on the club they had deserted.

Sunday continued as a regular outfielder until near the end of August, 1890, when he was traded to the Philadelphia Nationals for Pitcher David Anderson. During that season the local National League club used almost a score of players in the outfield without finding a satisfactory combination.

FOOTBALL RULE CHANGES ARE MADE

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—The well-known crime of fumbling has been reduced from a felony to a mere misdemeanor in the statute books of football.

The National Football Rules Committee has announced the adoption of a new provision of more than ordinary import, which makes a fumbled ball recovered by the defensive side dead at the point of recovery.

Possession of the ball under such circumstances will still be lost by the fumbling team, but gone will be the heartache of seeing an opportunist ball-hawk on the other side tear through, scoop up the oval and scamper through a clear field to a touchdown.

WON'T APPLY TO KICKS

In announcing the change, the committee stated it took into consideration "the fact that in the great majority of cases the actual fumble of the ball is the error of a single player and not the fault of the team as a whole; also the fact that loss of the ball by reason of a fumble is generally considered to be equivalent of the loss of about 40 yards, namely the distance lost by the fumble itself plus the average distance of a punt—say 35 yards, the opportunity for which has been lost by reason of the fumble."

This rule will not apply in case of forward passes nor to backward passes which are intercepted before striking the ground, nor will it apply to blocked kicks which will be played as heretofore, it was emphasized.

Of the four rules changes, all important, which were announced as the result of a secret session of the gridiron legislators in the seaside seclusion of Absecon, N. J., last Friday, Saturday and Sunday, a second similarly barred the door against some of the sad consequences of a fumbled kick, whereas the rules of 1928 provided that when a player fumbles in the act of receiving a punt, the ball is dead at the point of recovery by the opposing team the revised code lists all kinds of booted balls in the same category—kickoffs, placements and dropkicks, as well as punts.

MOVE TRY-FOR-POINT LINE

A third rule, which came as a complete surprise to most outsiders, the position from which the try for point after touchdown is to be made, was moved from the three to the two-yard line in the hope that the try for the extra point may more often constitute a triple-threat play. A line play or a pass may now be expected as well as the conventional kick, in the rulemakers' opinion.

Deciding that restrictions upon the use of the "screened" forward pass, which were adopted in 1928 were not sufficient, the committee's fourth decision amplifies the rule to provide that no player of a side attempting a forward pass "who has crossed the line of scrimmage shall either before or after the pass has been made interfere with an opponent until the ball has been touched except in an actual attempt to catch the ball. Except on passes completed behind the line of scrimmage, such players as are ineligible shall be penalized for interference, if they in any way obstruct the right of way for defensive players.

"In case of doubt as to such interference," the rule adds parenthetically, "the penalty shall be inflicted."

TURN DOWN SUGGESTIONS

The only other legislation was adoption of a provision under which secondary schools may be permitted "a more liberal practice in the matter of substitutions than that allowed under the standard rules," by mutual agreement of the teams.

On the many other possible rule changes suggested in various quarters, the gridiron legislators took no action.

SMOKE TALKS
by the DUTCH MASTERS

The best political argument we heard during the late presidential campaign was pulled by Art Thompson. "Whichever party wins," said the philosophical Art, "I'll still be able to get a Dutch Masters for a dime."

When there's trouble in the office,
Or a breakdown in the shop,
When every gear is slipping,
And the wheels of progress stop—
Who gets the S O S to come
And straighten out the place?
Some calm, unruffled fellow
With a cigar in his face.

Things haven't changed so much. In the old days, heap big chiefs discussed the affairs of their tribes over the peace pipe. These days when chiefs of the American business world get together there's always a box of good cigars on the table.

MANGANS MEET IMMACULATE TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The South Side Mangans will be out to strengthen their hold on first place in the second round of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League race tonight when they meet Joe Dobbs' Immaculate Heart passers on the Immaculate Heart floor, Brereton avenue.

The Mangans, admitted to be one of the best clubs enrolled in the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League, are eager to make up for their failure to win the first-half championship and are leaving nothing undone in an effort to reach their goal. The South Siders have played consistent basketball since the start of the second half and are favorites to win tonight.

Immaculate Heart, on the other hand, is just as determined to win this contest and will send an improved lineup against the South Siders. Indications are that the game will prove a thriller from start to finish.

The Duquesne Light team of the Allegheny County League will face one of its hardest tests of the season at the South Side Market House next Saturday night when the crack Butler Armco quintet, including in its lineup Whitey Littell and George Ramsay, appear here for a game.

The Butler Armco passers have been enjoying unusual success in tri-state professional circles, but will meet a worthy rival in the Light floor machine. The Lighters, while not winning the County League title, nevertheless played an important part in knocking the Rauhs and Goldensons out of the running. The two teams will play a return game in Butler a week from Saturday.

DRIBBLES

The Chipper Club, of Carrick, is eager to arrange games with junior and light first-class teams. Call Carrick 2662-M and ask for Solly.

The Lou Gordon Juniors and the Red McMahon Club, two of the best junior teams in this section of the state, likely will meet in one of the preliminaries to the Merry-Rosenblum game. The Goldenson Vanities will appear in the first preliminary.

The Crafton M. E. team will play the Moon Run Mohawks tonight on the Robinson Township School floor. The Whoopee Club and Greentree clash in the preliminary starting at 8 o'clock.

St. Louis Cardinals Have Eight Minor League Farms

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Announcement of the sale of the Dayton Central League club to the Louisville American Association club has been made by Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals. At the same time Rickey told of the purchase of the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Central League Club and of Scottdale, Pa., in the Middle Atlantic League. This gives the Cardinals a total of eight minor league farms. Rickey said it is probable another would be added this spring.

TWO WORLD MARKS FALL

NEW YORK, Feb. 19—(AP.)—The New York Athletic Club's annual games last night furnished the setting for the season's most spectacular indoor track and field performances. They were featured by the first setback for Percy Williams Canadian and Olympic sprint champion, but also included two world record performances and a mark of 14 feet in the pole vault by Frederic A. Sturdy, of Yale.

Williams, undefeated heretofore either outdoors or in, was conquered by Jack Elder, fleet Notre Dame University halfback, in the 60-yard dash.

A world inter-scholastic indoor record was tumbled by the crack Newark prep one-mile relay team, which beat three rival teams in three minutes, 30 2/5 seconds. This cut just exactly a second off the former mark.

Sturdy cleared 14 feet, only an inch short of the world indoor record set by Sabin Carr a year ago. Sturdy set this mark for his rival, Victor Pickard, Canadian representative of the University of Pittsburgh, after they successively had cleared 13-7 and 13-10 on their first attempts.

Paavo Nurmi raced to an easy victory in a special two-mile handicap, but failed to break his own world indoor record. His time was 9 minutes, 15 2/5 seconds.

BETHANY, W. Va., Feb. 19.—Bethany defeated Thiel here last night, 38 to 32, in a well-played game. The winners led from the start, but forced to the final whistle to retain victory as the invaders came fast at the finish. Excellent shooting by M. Rush maintained the Bison lead, the Bethany forward piling up eight field goals. The lineup:

BETHANY—38.		THIEL—32.
M. Rush	F	Morris
Baker	F	Bell
Telfair	C	Frampton
Danschroder	G	Schilling
Markley	G	Myers

Substitution—Flicker for Baker. Field goals—M. Rush 8, Telfair 5, Baker 2, Flicker, Markley, Danschroder, Frampton 5, Schilling 4, Bell 3, Morris. Foul goals—Bethany 4 out of 10, Thiel 4 out of 11. Referee—Watson.

CRICKET MATCH OFF

As this was the last day of the game the match was declared abandoned because of the condition of the ground. Scores were: New South Wales, 128; England, 144 for four wickets.

BELLE BAKER HEADLINED ON RADIO

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

Belle Baker will be headlined again tonight in a national hookup. Along with Fannie Ward, perennial beauty, and numerous other theatrical stars, she will be heard through WCAE at 11 o'clock. She will introduce a new ballad, "My Mother's Eyes."

Irving Kaufman has a little surprise up his sleeve for us city folk at 8:30 when he sings "Pittsburgh, Pa." through KDKA. Don't know a thing about it except that it must be pretty good to be named after the steel center of the world.

"RHAPSODY IN BLUE"

Pardon the social error, lovers of jazz. Paul Whiteman will come through with that tantalizing "Rhapsody in Blue" from WJAS at 9 p. m. The versatile leader has been teasing us long enough about this number, so we will be glad to hear it tonight.

Three good shows will be given over as many networks.

At the same hour KDKA will offer a satire on "Washington Crossing the Delaware."

IN THE W. VA. HILLS

Like to go show-boating? Be with Hank Simmons at 8 o'clock at WJAS when he offers "The Moonshiner's Daughter," a tale of moonshiners, revenue men and whatnot in the West Virginia hills. If there isn't some shooting we'll be disappointed.

Numerous other stars will be heard from local stations tonight including Wendell Hall with Guy Lombardo's Canadians over WJAS at 11 p. m.

Arthur Ferraro, Pittsburgh violinist, who returned from New York recently after a successful role as master of ceremonies at Bevy's Night Club, will be heard over KQV at 11:30 p. m. He will play one of his own compositions "Jennie, I Love You."

Sports Comment

By JAMES J. LONG.

season last year, major league club owners are pointing to the announcement from St. Louis that at the recent annual meeting of the Cardinal board of directors no dividend was declared. Here they point out, is a club that won the National League pennant and got into the world series and yet failed to make a substantial profit. Poor road business is given as the explanation of the Card's failure to do better financially. At home during the season the Redbirds played to 12,000 more persons than in any previous year, but on the road business was a comparative flop.

Larry French

AND this in spite of the fact that the Cards proved the best road club in either major league from a playing standpoint, just as they proved the poorest in that respect during the 1927 campaign. Last year the Redbirds won more than two-thirds of their games played away from home, winning 53 contests and losing only 24. No other National League club won more than 42 games aboard. And yet the Cards could not draw.

In view of lean conditions generally during 1928, and the lack of asurrance that profits, if any, will be any gerater this year, the magnates are likely to remain firm against granting the demands of some of the holdouts, particularly those youngesters like Larry French, Heinie Meine, Dick Porter, and others, who are just breaking into the big show. They argue that the rookies ought to prove they have big league ability before demanding salaries of the size paid to players of established class.

"Don't COUGH Your Energy Away"

Exhausted . . . .
Because of a Cough

A STUBBORN cough can wrack your whole body—sap vitality. Each spasm not only irritates the delicate membranes of your throat but puts a severe strain upon your chest, stomach and other vital organs.

Your health demands that coughs be checked. They feed upon your strength, lower your resistance—expose you to more serious affections.

At the first sign of a cough or throat irritation, take PERTUSSIN. It helps Nature free the air passages of germladen mucus, soothes the irritation and quiets the cough. PERTUSSIN has been prescribed more often for coughs than any other advertised remedy.

PERTUSSIN is safe even for small children and convalescents—a good remedy for "coughs that hang on". It is free from dope, does not upset the stomach and can be taken as often as necessary. At all druggists.

Why Research to Better Goods but Not Workers?

By B. C. FORBES

AMERICA'S most important product is not steel or automobiles or textiles or oil. The nation's most important product is its human beings.

Our billion-dollar and other corporations have established elaborate departments to conduct research into everything they turn out except the kind of men they turn out.

Thanks to the Rockefeller and Harkness millions, Yale University is to establish an institute of human relations.

This should arouse our financial and business leaders to a greater sense of the importance of their paying more attention than they have paid in the past to the flesh and blood and brains committed to their charge.

CALLOUS employers, whenever the subject of their treatment of their workfolks is mentioned, snap that they are in business to make money, that they do not profess to be philanthropists, that "labor" interests them only insofar as it enters into the producing of the goods made and sold to make profits. Sometimes they add that, of course they make donations, in their individual capacity, to pet charities, and so forth, but that they run their business strictly on a business basis, without any sentimental tomfoolery.

AND there are only too many evidences that many companies do give scarcely a thought to their workers as human beings. To them they are simply a part of the equipment necessary to run the plant. To such, the condition of the workers is of infinitely less concern than the condition of the machinery and other parts of the plant equipment.

Not only so, but it still is true that many executives throw workers on the scrap heap as readily as they throw obsolete machinery. Not a thought is given to what may befall the human material dumped. Even some of our very large corporations continue to be guilty of this inhuman conduct.

WILL the example set up at Yale move industry to alter its attitude?

True, an increasing number of progressive managements do recognize that they have an obligation towards those who spend their lives in the service. But heretofore there has been an utter lack of co-operation among the right kind of industrial executives to bring home to the wrong kind of industrial executives the need for more humane tactics.

Is it not time that America's ablest men of affairs, convinced of the vital importance of extending to all workers reasonable, considerate treatment, began instituting ways and means to bring their organized, co-ordinated influence to bear upon those employers and executives who, by their shortsighted and unfair conduct, are turning out malcontents, Socialists, Communists and thus jeopardizing the safety and permanence of the American industrial and social order?

SEVERAL years ago John D. Rockefeller, Jr., told me that he had caused the world to be searched for information on the best methods of dealing with workers. He was at one time very hopeful that thorough inquiry, investigation and research would reveal the ideal plan of employe relations with employers. He approached the subject with a perfectly open mind. He was not committed mentally in advance to either profit sharing or "industrial democracy," or to any other scheme.

He confessed, however, that the results of his fact-gathering were somewhat disappointing, because, apparently, no ideal system of employe relationships generally applicable had been discovered.

PROBABLY the donation of Rockefeller millions to Yale to establish the Institute of Human Relations is the outcome of young Rockefeller's personal interest in human relationships and especially those existing between employer and employed. Yale's investigation will not, of course, be along the lines of Rockefeller's. The university will not interest itself especially in relations existing between so-called capital and labor, but will dig deep into the whyfore and wherefore of human conduct in all relations of life. All branches of the university will co-operate in this search into the fundamentals of human behavior.

"I cannot tell where this co-operation of research may lead us," said Dr. James R. Angell, president of Yale, "but we believe it will make important contributions, not only to knowledge, but to the breaking down of old barriers between the branches of science."

SINCE some of our largest corporations spend millions annually on research into how they should handle raw materials so as to yield the best results, may it not be appropriate to suggest that they make the experiment of devoting at least a small part of this research money to trying to find out how best to handle human material. This is not suggested solely from a mawkish, sentimental point of view; it has already been fairly well established that in the majority of instances the best results are achieved by those organizations enjoying the best relationships with their workers.

AND, after all, surely it should yield as much satisfaction to produce satisfied workers, satisfied citizens, as to produce satisfactory merchandise.

Farm Income Gains.

Revised estimates for the crop year 1928-1929, based upon the December 1 crop reports as published by the government, indicate a gross cash farm income of $10,660,000,000, The Brookmire Economic Service, Inc., says. This compares with a revised final estimate of $10,451,000,000 for the year 1927-28 ending last July. Buying power of the farmer is equal to, if not greater than, a year ago which was the largest on record, excepting the year 1918-19. Considerable increase in purchases of agricultural machinery and the upward trend in mail order sales, following liquidation of farm debts and reduction in interest payments, are evidence of the favorable position the farmer now is in as a buyer not only of necessities but a moderate amount of luxuries. Increased automobile registrations over last year in the large agricultural states indicate the recovery of what has been only a fair market in the last year or so. The farmer for the most part is now in a position to support the general business prosperity which has been the lot of the rest of the nation, the service says.

U. G. I. to Spend $34,500,000.

Electric and gas companies controlled by United Gas Improvement Company will spend approximately $34,500,000 during 1929 for additions and improvements to their properties, according to John E. Zimmermann, chairman of the executive committee. "Demand for electricity and gas for both industrial and domestic consumption is growing rapidly," Mr. Zimmerman said. "Street lighting also is increasing. To keep ahead of the demand and provide service as wanted it is necessary for public utility companies to plan their extensions several years in advance. A large portion of United Gas Improvement proposed expenditures is for that purpose, but the greater part is to provide additional plant, transmission and main capacity to take care of immediate growth. During 1928 United Gas Improvement system companies had a substantial increase in business, the sales of electricity reaching 2,945,217,500 kilowatt hours and gas 32,655,424,000 cubic feet."

Billion-Dollar Trade Balance.

"The upswing in United States export trade, which has been under way since 1922, continued at an accelerated rate through 1928," according to a Department of Commerce review. "This was largely the result of increased foreign demand for our manufactures and was the more notable on account of a marked decline in exports of crude foodstuffs. Imports also increased in quantity last year, although their value declined for the second consecutive year, as a result of reduced prices of rubber, silk and other important raw materials. Combined effect of the substantial increase in value of exports and the moderate decline in value of imports was an increase in the balance of merchandise trade to more than $1,000,000,000 for the first time since 1921. There was also a heavier net export of gold in 1928 than in any earlier year."

Aeronautic Mergers Pending.

An era of mergers among the principal companies in the aeroplane industry is anticipated by Adams & Peck, specialists in transportation securities. Fundamental reasons for the consolidation rest in the simplification of sales problems which the unification will accomplish; namely, a manufacturing company will be able to dispose of its product to a transport company, or an engine company to a plane company, etc. Mergers will also lower cost of operation and better the credit position of the companies involved, particularly of the smaller companies which find less difficulty in raising new funds when affiliated with a larger and better known unit.

Metropolitan Life.

In 1928, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company invested $192,594,939 in city mortgages, at an average rate of 5.62 per cent; $29,713,077 in farm mortgages, for an average yield of 5.11 per cent, and $202,190,589 in governments, municipals, railroads, utilities and miscellaneous corporations, the combined rate on these investments being 4.71 per cent. The company's total investments are subdivided as follows: City building loans, $1,019,052,552, to yield 5.68 per cent; farm loans, $195,438,346, to yield 5.26 per cent; stocks and bonds, $1,107,711245 to yield 4.91 per cent. Real estate, cash on hand, loans to policyholders, premiums deferred and in the course of collections, and accrued interest and rents go to make up the balance of the company's total assets of $2,695,475,965.

Rossia Insurance.

Underwriting profit of Rossia Insurance Company of America in 1928 was $942,394, comparing with $292,000 in 1927, and net interest and rents were $659,591, while profits on sale of securities were $280,052. In addition the company had investment appreciation of $826,891. Net surplus increased $1,700,000 to $5,462,355 and special reserves were increased $215,000 to $1,040,000.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Feb. 19—Wheat score an early fresh advance today, influenced by persistent cold weathe west and southwest causing furthe anxiety about likelihood of cro damage. Offerings of wheat wer relatively scarce except in bulges i price. Opening ⅛c to ⅝c higher, th wheat market afterward showe decided further gains. Corn averaged lower, starting at ¼c off t ¼c up, and subsequently undergoing something of a lag all around Oats were firm. Provisions hel about steady.

Adding to the bullish effect toda of continued low temperature threatening injury to domestic winter wheat, Liverpool advices wer at hand that India was still a buye of wheat, and that Argentine whea arriving in Europe was being hel at higher quotations. There wer reports, too, that fears of cro damage in many European countries as well as India were yet factor, and that although neede rains have fallen in Australia mor moisture there is generally required.

Corn was bearishly affected during a good deal of the time toda by "spread" transactions betwee corn and oats, with corn being sol against simultaneous purchases o oats. Receivers, however, said indications were pointing to a shar falling off in the movement of cor to primary terminal market There were also reports of an expected larger demand for corn to b shipped to northern European countries where stocks are diminishing

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Local Market Narrow

New York Curb Market

FIRMER TONE NOTED IN SECURITIES HERE

Trading volume showed a marked decrease in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but price movements were narrow and changes in the active issues were fractional.

The lowering tendency of the list noted in yesterday's market appeared to have spent itself and slightly firmer indications were noted in the recently active industrials. Vanadium Alloy Steel opened a fraction lower at 64, but made up the loss and sold a point higher on subsequent transactions. Witherow Steel, new stock, in the unlisted section, was also a little higher, but traders showed no disposition to push the issue into higher ground. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt was practically unchanged around its recent resting level of 25. Blaw Knox, which dropped back to a new low under 40 yesterday, was handled at 39½ in the forenoon today with very little of the stock changing hands.

The fuel issues were dull. Lone Star Gas did not come into the market until late in the session, but was steady following its 2-point decline yesterday. Western Public Service continued to range around $27 a share, comparing with its recent high of 28. The Arkansas Gas issues were quiet and unchanged, while Dixie Gas recovered a fraction on a small-lot trade.

Duff-Norton, newly added to the unlisted section of the market, made its appearance on the board this morning at 43½ for an odd lot. This is the price at which the shares were offered at public subscription a few weeks ago. The company manufacturers railroad jacks and drop forgings. National Fireproofing common was in moderate demand and gained a half point in the early market on sales of a few hundred shares. Long pull traders have been picking up the shares for several weeks on the strength of the resumption of dividends on the preferred and in anticipation of ultimate disbursement on the junior stock.

MANY MERGERS MADE TO GAIN MARKETS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE past decade has witnessed the birth of a new era in industrial consolidations. Since 1900 the merging of corporations for lowering costs has been under way at a rapidly increasing pace, but many of the more recent consolidations and changes in control have taken place for other reasons.

Before the war most of the purchases of the stock of one corporation by another were between companies engaged in the same lines of business or in closely related types of endeavor. This is still going on but there has been a new crop of mergers involving organizations in distinctly different types of work.

THE newer tendency is towards the making of consolidations and inter-company relationships either to insure an uninterrupted source of materials or to place a market permanently beyond the reach of competitors.

The anti-trust laws have set limits beyond which consolidations in a single industry cannot go. In many cases this point has already been reached. But the other type of consolidation has just touched the surface and can still make a substantial amount of progress before it can be considered a restraint of trade.

THE purchase of General Motors stock by the E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company was, first of all, a good investment but everyone knows that more than that was behind the transaction. The du Ponts bought more than General Motors stock. They bought a market for Duco.

A few years ago there would have been no sound reason for such a combination as Radio-Keith-Orpheum, but the development of the "talkies" made these organizations mutually dependent.

At present the ownership of companies handling the distribution of supplies to the oil fields is fairly well divided between the makers of pipe. Jones & Laughlin have the Frick-Reid Supply Company. Youngstown Sheet and Tube has Continental Supply. Spang, Chalfant and A. M. Byers have the Oil Well Supply Company.

THE ownership of the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company is distributed among several large consumers of its products. Thus we find the Koppers Company and the American Arch Company with representatives on the Harbison-Walker board. These directors are also members of the boards of large steel and utility companies which are also important buyers of fire brick.

Some of these "communities of interest" are less obvious and have not been brought about through actual control. The list of interlocking directorates which are valuable to many companies would fill a large volume. Besides this there are many close corporations whose stocks are owned by officials or directors of larger organizations for the control of either materials or markets.

THE first financing undertaken in this country for the Ernesto Breda Company, Italy's largest manufacturer of locomotives and other railway equipment, has been arranged by Dillon, Read & Co. and E. H. Rollins & Sons in the form of a $5,000,000 loan. An offering of 25-year first mortgage 7 per cent bonds, with stock purchase warrants, is expected this week.

Organized in 1900 as successor to a business established 80 years ago, the Ernesto Breda Company is one of the oldest and most important of Italian industrial enterprises. The company's manufacturing activities cover a wide field embracing, in addition to railway locomotives and cars, many types of electrical machinery, rails, road machinery, agricultural implements, tractors and trucks. The company is also engaged in shipbuilding and airplane construction.

U. S. Grain Exports Show Big Decrease

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19—(AP.)—Grain exports from the United States last week were 2,649,000 bushels against 3,700,000 bushels the week before. Commerce Department figures today gave these comparisons between last week's exports and those of the previous week: wheat, 212,000 bushels against 896,000 bushels; rye 73,000 against none; oats, 53,000 against 49,000; corn, 1,275,000 against 2,320,000; barley, 1,036,000 against 435,000.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Curb market stocks today opened higher with gains ranging from 3 to 14 points at midday. The bulk of the buying was in the public utility group on rumors of further consolidations, although the improvement was not confined to any one section of the list. Money was in supply and the rate for call loans dropped to 6 per cent from an opening rate of 7.

Electric Bond and Share was the feature of the utilities, advancing 7 points. Southern Power and United Gas Improvement each gained 3 points.

Goldman Sachs Trading, which was under pressure yesterday, recovered 5 points to 212 at midday and the new stock rose 4 points. Westvaco Chlorine Products moved up 5 points on announcement a new holding corporation had gained control and would purchase other chemical companies.

Advances in the aviation securities was led by Niles Bement Pond which shot up 14 points to above 229 and then reacted 6 points. Auburn Motor climbed 9 points to 170, but Ford of Canada declined a point and Checker Cab was lower.

Phelps Dodge & Co. was the feature of the mining list, mounting 14 points to above 329. Newmont gained 3 points. Buying in the group was encouraged by a sharp advance in zinc prices.

Oils were strong in face of a gasoline price war on the Pacific Coast. Vacuum rose more than a point to 115 and Humble and Indiana made fractional gains.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of bond list):

EIGHTY YEARS of PIONEERING

EIGHTY years ago, on February 22, 1849, the name of F. C. Eaton over the door of a little shop in Market Street was removed, and the name "Joseph Horne Co." nailed in its place. The news soon spread that young Mr. Joseph Horne had bought out his employer.

The business rapidly changed its character, as the young man recognized the growing demand for style and quality in merchandise. He went to Paris for his styles and sent his buyers to many other parts of the world for merchandise—the first store in Pittsburgh to establish this practice. This was the beginning of the pioneering of the Joseph Horne Co.

The Joseph Horne Co. introduced Saturday half-holidays for workers in 1886, thirty years before the practice was generally adopted. It was the first to supplant horses with motors in its delivery service, and the first to introduce the convenience of the Telephone Order Board. It was the first department store in Pittsburgh to join the group buying movement. Thus has the Joseph Horne Co. continued its pioneering through eighty years of service to the people of Pittsburgh.

On Friday of this week the store celebrates its 80th birthday. Officers and directors of the Mellon National Bank extend their heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a prosperous future.

SELLING WAVES FAIL TO DULL BULL ARDOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(AP.)—Lowering of the call money rate from 7 to 6 per cent, an advance of $2 a ton in lead prices and the publication of another series of favorable earnings reports provided the background for another advance in prices in today's stock market. Waves of selling swept through the market, at intervals, but offerings generally were well absorbed, and trading showed a tendency to turn dull on the reactions.

Judging from commission house comment, speculative opinion is still widely divided as to the future trend of prices, although many observers are agreed that a period of relative quiet is likely until just before inauguration. Wall street is anxiously awaiting Hoover's inaugural message for the light that it will throw on the policies of the new administration.

Oil shares were one of the few backward groups in today's market. This was attributed to reports of a gasoline war on the Pacific Coast, and also that several western companies were planning to enter the eastern market to find an outlet for their surplus crude production. Rail shares also took little part in the day's advance, Texas and Pacific standing out with a gain of about 3 points.

Revival of activity and strength in American and Foreign Power, which ran up nearly 10 points to a new high record at 138, was based on reports that the company was planning to enter Canada on a large scale, previous operations being limited largely to Central and South America. Wall street statisticians figured that at current prices, the company's stock was selling about 60 times net earnings. Commonwealth Power and American Power and Light also were in brisk demand.

Much of today's trading was believed to be professional in character, with pools again active in such specialties as Safeway Stores, St. Joseph Lead, Vulcan Detinning, Matthieson Alkali, Advance Rumely common and preferred and Wright Aeronautical, all of which were marked up 3 to 7 points. Allied Chemical, National Lead, National Cash Register and Gotham Silk Hosiery sold 4 or more points higher, and more than a dozen others, including U. S. Steel common, Union Carbide and Johns Manville sold 3 or more points above yesterday's final quotations.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 2 points in response to steady Liverpool cables. There was not much buying, apparently, and prices eased off a few points right after the call under a little Southern selling and realizing.

May contracts, which had sold up to 20.08 at the start, declined to 20.04. Other months showed similar fluctuations, but offerings were well enough taken to give the market a steady undertone and hold prices within a point or two either way of yesterday's closing quotations at the end of the first half hour.

Liverpool cables reported trade buying had absorbed local and continental liquidation in that market. The cables also said there was an improved cloth inquiry from India, although many offers were unworkable.

The market was very quiet later in the morning, with business confined largely to switching from near to late months. There was some commission house or local liquidation, however, and prices sagged off. The midday market was about net unchanged to 3 points lower.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Stocks Rally Further.

Another sharp rally in the market, carrying stocks up from two to 10 points had the effect of further confounding the trading element today. Strenuous efforts of the Reserve Board to bring about a reduction in the volume of credit in the securities markets and reactionary tendencies in stock prices following the developments of the past two weeks had brought fear to the mind of the average trader, unable or unwilling to decipher the whys and wherefores of all the fuss and turmoil. The general attitude around the Street was that the better policy was to stand aside until the Reserve had given some indication as to just how far it intended to go in the credit restriction campaign. Brokerage houses favored this policy as a general rule and had advised the lightening of long holdings on the bulges. Many traders followed this advice and it was noted even in today's strong market that the higher levels of prices immediately attracted considerable selling. However, the list ploughed through the offering under the strong leadership of such stocks as Steel common, some of the good rails and a few high powered utilities on an up move which had no other explanation at the moment than that call money was in good supply and the rates were down. The fundamentals of the situation complained of by the Reserve were apparently the same practically as a week ago, and the weekly loan report, due Thursday, may not show much of a decrease now that the period reported on has had two days of conspicuously rising prices.

Salt Creek Leases Valid.

It was reported from Washington that the report of the special counsel to the Senate Public Lands Committee found no fraud in the Salt Creek oil leases.

Former Senator Thomas Sterling, of South Dakota, in his report said he did not find sufficient evidence on which to base charges of illegal or fraudulent practices on the part of original applicants in securing leases issued to them. The question as to whether there has been a violation of the anti-trust laws is not decided, he reported. The investigation, which involves holdings of Midwest Refining Company in the Salt Creek field, was authorized by Senate resolution last year.

Crude Production Falls.

Daily average crude oil production declined 22,532 barrels in the week ended Feb. 16 to 2,667,518 barrels, acording to the Oil and Gas Journal. This is the first decrease since the week ended Nov. 20.

The decline is largely due to the restriction program put into effect in Oklahoma to limit its output to 650,000 barrels daily. Production in that state showed a drop of 20,385 barrels to 707,435 barrels. A decline of 7,275 barrels in the output from the fields of West Texas and the Texas Panhandle almost offset an increase of 7,750 barrels in production of California during the week.

With Oklahoma operators taking such tangible steps to reduce the over-supply of crude oil operators in California and Texas might well take similar moves. Both those states are over-producing oil and in California the outlook is for further increase in yield.

Although no decision in the Interborough 7-cent fare case was handed down by the United States Supreme Court yesterday, the financial district is looking for a ruling in the case within a short time. At 3 in the morning, IRVIN COBB finally said: "I'll Do It!"

IT was at the Crowley Club, down on the Gulf, in Louisiana, and we were getting up at 3 A.M. to shoot ducks.

From the time we boarded our train at New York, Irvin and I had been discussing a novel in which Irvin might tell of a phase of American life which had passed. It was a phase of life so rich in color and romance that I pleaded with him to write that novel, because he was the only writer capable of treating the subject with knowledge, understanding and feeling . . .

A novel which would tell the story of Bourbon whisky, and which would give a picture of the Bourbon aristocracy of Kentucky. An aristocracy composed of the proudest, yet the most hospitable people this country ever produced. An aristocracy which made Kentucky famous for its fair women, its fast horses, its fine whisky.

Irvin was afraid of it. "Some will think it's an argument in favor of liquor and condemn me," he said; "others will be as positive it's an argument against prohibition."

"If it's as impartial as that," said I, "it will be a great novel."

It is a great novel. There's humor. And there's tenderness. And there's that intangible something which Mark Twain got into his writings.

You'll like it. It's just the sort of story—and story-telling—which makes Cosmopolitan different from any other magazine in the world, a magazine so distinctive that people all over America are glad to pay 35 cents for it. [R. L.]

She hesitated.

"Don't hesitate," said the other; "every second makes it worse."

Reached His Goal

Helen—"I fear I have made a mistake."

Ruth—"Why?"

"Jack proposed in a taxicab. The minute I accepted he paid the fare and we got out and walked."

LUCRI BONUS EST ODOR EX RE QUALIBET!

FINIS CORONAT OPUS!

WASHINGTON—"I owe it all to my mother!" With these simple words Congressman Frisby today accepted the cash prize for the first non-stop flight on foot. The finish was dramatic. Twice Frisby attempted to sit down on the curb. The crowds hissed. He was but a block from the end of his goal. Commissioner Whalen, who had come all the way to greet Mr. Frisby, saved the day.

He encouraged the staggering Congressman with several well-directed kicks—and when Frisby whimpered Whalen sternly threatened him with arrest. The intrepid Congressman carried a note to the American ambassador, and is resting tonight at a local auto camp.

No General Work Danger In Sunday Law Change

Although the Sun-Telegraph has received numerous communications supporting the proposal for a modification of the Sunday blue law of 1794, indicating wide approval of the movement to permit innocent and wholesome amusement and recreation on Sunday, it is only fair to state that the sentiment of the people is not all in that direction.

There are some well-intentioned persons who think we still need the old law as a protection against the general employment of workers on Sunday. At least, we assume that is the basis of their objection, judging from reports of a number of meetings held in churches Sunday to protest against any change in the law. It was claimed the ultimate effect of amending the law would be the institution of a seven-day week for the worker.

We believe these good people are entirely under a misapprehension, and that if that is their greatest fear, they can readily join with those who merely wish to legalize Sunday recreation and pastimes. Their presence on the side of those desiring a more liberal Sunday would be a force for preventing the very thing they feel apprehensive about, and of which we are certain there is no danger anyway.

We are certain of that because Sunday work, in this district at least, has been greatly lessened, not in compliance of the law, but for economic and health reasons. Formerly there was a routine of Sunday work in steel mills that was greatly in excess of that prevailing at present. Now the mills are shut down on Sunday except for a few workmen to watch continuous processes of steel making. The steel companies changed their plans voluntarily and there is little danger that they ever will make employment general on Sunday.

Give the working people of our district the same opportunity to enjoy Sunday that the rich have and they may be trusted to guard themselves against being forced to do unnecessary work on Sunday. Especially if they have the cooperation of the good people who met on Sunday to protest against any change of the law that they felt would be detrimental to the working man.

Pirates to Meet Spring Just Around the Corner

Perhaps it is a little early to begin to sing "Tra-la-la, spring is here," but we know for sure that it is just around the corner. That hardy harbinger, Robin Redbreast, may or may not have decided to brave the rigors of February weather, as some of our neighbors in the suburbs have reported, but it is certainly a fact that one reliable sign of spring is evident in the departure of our baseball boys for training camps to prepare for pastime which officially gets under way in April. A mere matter of two months.

Meanwhile the tedium of winter is eased through reports of our "war correspondents" who go with the players. We will eagerly read about the developments from day to day. We will learn, as usual, after a day or two, that the veterans are taking their time and that Manager Bush has had to warn the rookies against being too brash, cautioning them against injury of their golden muscles by using them too vigorously. We will read about Pie Traynor's efforts to change a third baseman into a shortstop and about the practice games between the Regulars and Yannigans, and so forth.

And before we know it baseball—and spring—will be here in earnest.

Girls Intelligent Enough To Be Great Moral Force

Tests of seniors in 49 out of the 52 colleges of Pennsylvania showed men slightly in the lead of women in the matter of intelligence, according to a report of the study, made by the Carnegie Foundation, at a conference here of the Pennsylvania-Delaware division of the American Association of University Women.

Well, we suppose that facts are facts and figures are figures, yet we wouldn't advise any mere man to try to win an argument with the boss of the household just through flaunting the report in her face. One of the reasons why we would not advise that is the fact that language is one of the things in which our college girls were found to excel. Others in which they stand highest are literature and fine arts.

Perhaps the result of the survey may have some practical value—we leave that matter to educators—yet we don't think our girls have to worry about the state of their intelligence more than the boys. It is still high enough to keep them where they always have been—our greatest force for morality and home-building.

Give Prisoners a Chance

Good Plan in Atlanta.

Prisoners in the Atlanta Penitentiary earn $100,000 a year in wages for working in a mill that manufactures duck, white canvas, for the government. The prisoners are paid two cents a yard for goods produced. Some earn as much as $15 a month.

Prison labor should not compete with FREE labor, directly or indirectly, cutting down the earnings of free men or the demand for their work. But it should be possible to allow men in prison to earn money that will help them when they come out. The earning will make them realize that a life of industry pays in the long run better than a life of crime.

Tales That Are Told

Rather Different

NO one in the village showed much concern at the news that Rooker was dead, for he had earned a reputation as one who could not be trusted. But a few months after his funeral Rooker was responsible for a big sensation.

"Have you heard about the defacement of Rooker's tombstone?" asked one villager of another as the two met in the main street. It appeared to be the one topic of conversation in the place. But the second villager had not heard about it.

"Someone has added the word 'friends' to his epitaph."

"What was his epitaph?"

The first villager grinned.

"'He did his best,'" he said.

Jungle Manners

A NATURALIST had gone to collect specimens, and he went about unarmed. One day, while trekking through the jungle, he encountered a ferocious-looking lion. He gazed at it steadily, murmured a few words, and the beast slunk away.

Five minutes later he encountered another brute, and repeated his procedure with success.

On his return home he retailed this story to friends. It was received sceptically.

"But tell me," asked one of his listeners, "what were the words you spoke that made those lions run away?"

"Oh," said the naturalist, "I merely murmured to them, 'You'll be expected to say a few words after dinner.'"

Unavoidable

THE milk inspector was on the look-out for a case. He waylaid the rather diminutive apprentice of the local dairyman, and after a friendly remark or two said casually.

"Tell me, does your employer ever put anything into his milk before he sells it to his customers?"

The inspector smacked his lips approvingly. From an inside pocket he produced a bulky notebook.

"What does he put in the milk?"

The small boy considered the matter before replying.

"Well," said the boy, "before he sells any milk to anybody he allus puts the measure in. He has to!"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

IT was that same old kid by the name of Johnny that come out on the porch one night and caught the young man kissing his big sister

The kid just stood there and wondered. He couldn't make out why any guy that knew his big sister could make such a fuss as all that about her.

So the fellow was kinda excited, and he says, "Say, Johnny, here's a whole package of gum I happened to buy today. You can have it. But I'd like to have you promise that you won't tell your dad that I was kissing Polly just now."

"Oh, gee," says the kid, "that's easy. I won't tell. I won't get a chance, unless I do it now. As soon as you're gone she'll come in and brag about it to Mom and Pop both."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I HAVE been watching some grass grow in my back-yard.

It started to grow under a piece of cement. The cement was a stubborn half-inch in thickness—the grass was a green whisper. The grass was inconceivably frail. But today the cement is broken in two and through the crack the grass lifts sturdy green blades.

That is the greatest lesson in the power of faith I have ever had.

There was an urge which was stronger than dynamite—

THE URGE OF LIFE—

THE WILL TO BE.

We think of faith as an attitude of mind—

A vague, visionary, dreary wishfulness—

Faith isn't a dreamy wishfulness—

It's as real as bone and blood and breath—

As powerful as dynamite to blast away the obstacles which lie before it.

Grass is grass and men are men but the same mystery moves through both the grass and men. THE MYSTERY OF LIFE—

THE WILL TO BE.

The thing that broke its way through cement for the grass will break its way through pain and poverty and fear and oppression for a man.

"ASK AND IT SHALL BE GIVEN YOU. SEEK AND YOU SHALL FIND," said Jesus of Nazareth.

A man with all the fury of faith may ask for happiness and health and power and also find them.

BUT HE MUST ASK AS THE GRASS ASKED—WITH ALL THE FORCE OF HIS LIVING SPIRIT BACKING THE DEMANDS AND WHILE HE ASKS, HE MUST HURL HIMSELF AGAINST THE THING THAT BINDS HIM.

"That isn't true," you say, "I've often prayed for things and they didn't come true. I prayed to be a writer, and it didn't come true. I prayed for my brother to live and it didn't come true."

It seems to me that faith works as long as it is a reasonable faith—as long as it demands something which really belongs to us — which doesn't tie up with some other life.

That grass could will to get through the cement. It had a right to get through the cement. And it got through the cement.

But it couldn't will to change itself into a turnip. Just as you can't will to be a writer if you were designed to be a carpenter.

There is a law for faith as there is a law for everything else and we must keep within that law. But don't worry about that. For one thing which you CAN'T do through faith there are a MILLION THINGS YOU CAN DO.

EQUATORIAL DAYS

By Garrett P. Serviss

I JUDGE from questions that many persons are puzzled to understand how it happens that, while the relative length of day and night changes with the seasons on all the most populous parts of the earth, it never changes on the equator. It may be worth while, therefore, to present this simple geometrical illustration. The three views of the earth show the direction in which the sun's rays strike the northern hemisphere (which only we need consider), first in the northern summer, then at either the spring or the autumn equinox (March 20 or September 23), and finally in the northern winter. The arrows show the way the earth turns on its axis.

In the middle of the northern summer the sun is 23½ degrees north of the equator; at either equinox it is perpendicular over the equator; in the middle of the northern winter it is 23½ degrees south of the equator. This is shown in the pictures. The polar circles and the circles of 40 degrees latitude are also shown. It is not necessary to draw more.

Begin with the upper view. The whole Arctic polar circle is in continual daylight; there is no night within it. Along the line of 40 degrees north latitude the day is much longer than the night, as can be seen at a glance by comparing the length of the part of the line representing that latitude which is included in the day area with what is included in the night area. But the equator is exactly divided by the line between day and night, so there they are equal in length.

Look next at the middle view. This shows the situation at either of the equinoxes. The sun being perpendicular over the equator, the line between day and night runs straight from pole to pole, and day and night are of equal length all over the globe. Only at the equator has there been no change.

Finally, consider the bottom view. Now the sun is south of the equator; it is perpetual night inside the Arctic polar circle (and perpetual day inside the Antarctic polar circle), while in 40 degrees north latitude, and simultaneously all over the northern hemisphere, the nights have become longer than the days, as the picture graphically shows. But still there is no change on the equator.

The picture shows another important fact not always understood, viz., that the difference of length between day and night increases with distance from the Equator, i. e., with increase of latitude. The day shortens relatively, and the night proportionately lengthens up to the Arctic Circle where day entirely vanishes and night reigns alone—just as in the northern summer, as the upper view shows, night vanishes and day holds an undisputed throne. In the Southern Hemisphere these variations all occur in the reverse order.

Bible Passages

Samson's Death

(Judges 16; 2-31)

BUT the Philistines took him, and put out his eyes, and brought him down to Gaza, and bound him with fetters of brass; and he did grind in the prison house.

Howbeit the hair of his head began to grow again after he was shaven.

Then the lords of the Philistines gathered them together for to offer a great sacrifice unto Dagon, their god, and to rejoice: for they said, Our god hath delivered Samson our enemy into our hand.

And when the people saw him, they praised their god: for they said, Our god hath delivered into our hands our enemy, and the destroyer of our country, which slew many of us.

And it came to pass, when their hearts were merry, that they said, Call for Samson, that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison house; and he made them sport: and they set him between the pillars.

And Samson said unto the lad that held him by the hand, Suffer me that I may feel the pillars whereupon the house standeth, that I may lean upon them.

Now the house was full of men and women; and all the lords of the Philistines were there; and there were upon the roof about 3,000 men and women, that beheld while Samson made sport.

And Samson called unto the Lord, and said, O Lord God, remember me, I pray thee, and strengthen me, I pray thee, only this once, O God, that I may be at once avenged of the Philistines for my two eyes.

And Samson took hold of the two middle pillars upon which the house stood, and on which it was borne up, of the one with his right hand, and of the other with his left.

And Samson said, Let me die with the Philistines. And he bowed himself with all his might; and the house fell upon the lords, and upon all the people that were therein. So the dead which he slew at his death were more than they which he slew in his life.

Then his brethren and all the house of his father came down, and took him in, and brought him up, and buried him between Zorah and Eshtaol in the buryingplace of Manoah his father. And he judged Israel 20 years.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Tomorrow

ALWAYS we can meet today,
Though we feared it, far away,
Visioned it as grim and gray.

Once we said: "Tomorrow brings
Change and strangeness on its wings,
It may take our best-loved things."

Yet with that tomorrow's dawn
Ranks of terror were withdrawn,
Dark forebodings all were gone.

Still we found that each day lent
Strength to meet its needs, content
With its flying hours was sent.

Always we can meet today
With high hearts and courage gay,
It is such a little way!

Those who dread tomorrow, pray
Cast such idle fears away,
See in it a fresh today!

The Sons of Merlin

By Herbert Kaufman

THE well-known firm of Merlin & Sons, general dealers in marvels and miracles, is expanding its business

Magic has become the mainstay of progress. Hardly a day passes but what science plucks a feather out of some fairy tale to stick in its cap.

Story book wizards and their piking stunts no longer thrill youngsters, who hear of speaking likenesses, flashed from coast to coast—as David Wark Griffith's face and voice were simultaneously televisioned and radioed across America

Hop-o'-my-Thumb enviously watches "Hop-o'-the-World" Lindbergh deliver mail from Washington to Panama before his own Seven League Boots could cover the distance

He addressed meetings, smoked cigars, answered questions and obeyed orders

And now, the Electric Eye promises immediate personnel reduction, lower industrial costs, and precisions fiction dared not even contemplate.

This vacuum tube, from General Electric laboratories, counts entering audiences, detects fires and releases extinguishing fumes, sorts colors and matches shades to a frog's hair, supervises the packing-room, records output, and kicks aside imperfect or unlabeled containers

The uses to which this latest wonder may be put stagger belief—no estimates can be placed upon the economies and efficiencies it assures.

Slowly and inexorably, fingers and brains of steel and brass are invading the factories and handicrafts.

Survival demands their employment—competition compels their adoption—at the alternative of bankruptcy.

Man must gradually retire from manual service. Future balance sheets won't tolerate his errors, faulty memory, or confiscatory wages

And it's not beside the point to remind the linotyper setting this very sentence, that wireless has already successfully demonstrated its ability to follow copy, and press the keys on which he weaves warning of a civilization in course of precipitate readjustment.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Subtle legends about Edna St. Vincent Millay continue. She is not America's most distinguished, but she is its best known and best selling writer of poems. Her friends have created for her the same tantalizing aura of mystery surrounding Maud Adams and James Barrie.

She has acquired the elfin glamor and wistfulness that have a cash value. Her newest book, "The Buck in the Snow," has been out but a few months and the first $2 editions are quoted at $6 and mounting daily. This inverse process of being publicized is a dandy lesson to first-page crashers.

Interviewers find her not only coy and reluctant, but she will rarely be photographed. All this whets the news-mongering appetite and fills scrap books. Miss Millay was born in Rockland, Me., 37 years ago and was graduated from Vassar in 1917. She is the wife of Eugene Jan Bossevain.

For many years she sought seclusion in a quaint brick house in the Cherry Lane district of Greenwich Village. In rambling about the town for nearly 20 years I have never seen her at a theater, cafe or other haunt of amusement. She is a frail, ethereal type, and said to be quite easy on the eye.

Since her marriage she has settled permanently on a farm upstate near the Massachusetts line. Her studio adjoins a ramshackle barn across the roadway from her farm and is built poetically in a treetop with the floor resting on the branches. There she has a view of the rolling countryside and thinks up things.

Like most poets, she is inspired by impulse, having no fixed hours. Now and then she goes on soft pedal "personal appearance" tours, reading her verse aloud to audiences. There is a story that the favored few strangers admitted to her presence are so awed they often approach her on tiptoes.

Those who know say that, despite the prevailing impression, she has none of the somber manner of a cloistered life and is quite a jolly person. Her first volume was "Renascence," published in 1917, and her best known and most widely purchased is "A Few Figs from Thistles."

Into a certain Park avenue restaurant nightly there comes a dignified, silver-haired gentleman who sits staring-eyed—like a dead fish in a sea food window. His meal consists of a few crackers and a glass of milk. According to a garrulous waiter captain, he was, several years ago, introduced in the same cafe to a young woman whom he married two weeks later and who deserted him in a few days. "He always hopes to see her here again," he said, tapping his head significantly.

New York has many such characters roaming about in a mental fog and quite harmless. In a large store, at intervals, a handsome young man arrives with an air of authority, visits various departmental heads, and hands them written instructions about their duties. He is received gravely and cordially. He was once a clerk there, and shell shock during the war unbalanced him mentally.

New York's worship of success, money and worldliness seems overwhelming, but there is the other side. During the past week I met a man who has for 28 years occupied a humble post in an office where he came in contact with prominent men. He had saved $2,300 which he invested with his employers three weeks before they failed. Since his misfortune, he received more than a score of offers of financial aid—including two properly signed checks for him to fill in. In addition, he has four jobs which he may step into any time at an increase over the job he lost.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

ARE you afraid to subject yourself to temptation lest you find yourself unable to conquer it?

Are you willing to admit you are not master of yourself?

Don't you feel ashamed to make such an admission?

Wouldn't you have greater respect for yourself if you were convinced that you could withstand any temptation that assailed you?

If you are doubtful about being able to control yourself, subject yourself occasionally to the things that are the hardest for you to stand out against.

You are in need of that sort of self-discipline.

There is no strength of character where there is doubt of self-mastery.

Perhaps you have not been as successful as your education and ability would seem to warrant.

Sometimes you wonder why.

Perhaps it is because you have been too weak to withstand certain kinds of temptation.

It is your attitude towards things that makes for temptation or the reverse.

If you were under the right kind of self-control you could banish the temptation by resolute attitude.
